

GOVERNOR WILL ADDRESS GRADS ON YOUTH AND WAR

GEORGE J. MILLER NEW STUDENT HEAD

Francis J. Mueller Elected New President Of Loyola College Athletic Association

When the campaign din had ceased and the ballots were cast, the capable team of Miller and Mueller emerged as the victors in the contest for the two highest student offices. On Friday, George Miller is shown being installed as President of the Student Body by Very Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S.J., and Rev. Lawrence C. Gorman, S.J., as Francis Mueller, Athletic Association head, looks on.

May 8th, George J. Miller was sworn in as President of the Student Body, and at the same time, Francis J. Mueller took over the duties of the President of Loyola's Athletic Association.

GLEE CLUBS TO SPONSOR CONCERT

Maryland Societies Will Present Vocal Program and Dance In Gymnasium Tonight.

Loyola College's Glee Club will play host to the members and directors of the Associated Glee Clubs of Maryland tonight, at 8 P.M., in the Evergreen Gymnasium. Approximately 200 singers, representing five Glee Clubs are expected. The organizations and their directors are: Waverly Chorus, Albert Galloway; Orpheus Glee Club, Hohann Eltermann; Faevan Glee Club, David Lowe; University of Maryland Glee Club, Harlan Randall; Loyola Glee Club, George Bolek; Baltimore and Ohio Glee Club, Ivan Servais.

The clubs will combine, and, as one group present a program of varied and well known music for the public. Each director will direct the groups in turn. The program for the evening will consist of: The National Anthem; Salutation; Autumn Sea; Border Ballad; a piano solo by Charles Bechtold; Prayer of Thanksgiving; I Love Life; Morning; a solo by William

Scientist From India Visits Evergreen

Jesuit Priest Had Studied At Louvain Before Nazi Invasion Of Belgium.

By Frederick L. Dewberry, Jr.
Last week Loyola had a very unusual visitor. The dark-complexioned, bearded, little priest who attracted so much attention as he strolled about the campus was the Rev. Lourdu Marianna Yeddanappalli, S.J., Father Yeddanappalli has just completed his graduate work in chemistry at Princeton University and will receive his Ph.D. at the June graduation exercises.

With eyes sparkling and manifesting a grand sense of humor throughout, Father, when questioned, related that he was born near Madras, India, and received the greater part of his education from the Jesuits. His people were converted by the Order of the Society of Jesus in the latter half of the 18th century. At the time of the conversion, they were settled 400 miles north of Madras. After the conversion, they migrated south to Madras and it was at this time that the Jesuits were suppressed.

CHARLES M. COHN WILL GET HONORARY DEGREE

On Sunday evening, June 7th, the sixty-seven members of the Senior Class of Loyola College will receive their Bachelor's Degrees at Evergreen, during the 90th annual commencement exercises. The principal speaker on this occasion will be the Hon. Herbert R. O'Connor, Governor of Maryland. Governor O'Connor, class of 1917, will speak on "College Youth and War." Casimir M. Zacharski will deliver the Senior Valedictory Address.

One of the highlights of the evening's ceremonies will be the presentation of an Honorary Doctor of Laws Degree to Baltimore's most prominent civic figure, Mr. Charles M. Cohn, recently elected President of the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light and Power Company of Baltimore.

Dr. Edward A. Doehler, Chairman of the History Department at Loyola College, will receive the Alumni Award. The honors will be conferred by the Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S.J., President of Loyola College.

Mr. Cohn, Class Of '97

Mr. Charles M. Cohn received his Bachelor of Arts Degree and his Master's Degree from Loyola College in 1897 and 1899 respectively. Following his education at Loyola, Mr. Cohn entered the Baltimore University School of Law, subsequently merged with the University of Maryland School of Law, and received his Bachelor of Laws Degree. Following his graduation from Law School, Mr. Cohn became a member of the Baltimore Bar.

Mr. Cohn was chosen to receive the Honorary Degree by the Trustees of Loyola College. Only seventy other men have been distinguished by an Honorary Doctorate from Loyola since its foundation in 1852. The degree is the highest honor the College can bestow on a man for exceptional qualities of leadership, demonstrated throughout his career. Mr. Cohn was selected by the Trustees as the recipient of the degree for his achievements in public and business life, and in view of the fact that he is a cultivated gentle-

NEW MEMBERS ADMITTED TO ALPHA SIGMA NU

Loyola's newly formed chapter of the Alpha Sigma Nu, the National Honor Fraternity of Jesuit Colleges, has increased its membership from five to fifteen. Three seniors and seven juniors received the coveted key and certificate in secret ceremonies held behind the closed doors of the office of the President of Loyola, the Very Rev. Edward

B. Bunn, S.J. Following the induction, an informal buffet supper was served in the faculty house.

The senior candidates included P. Edward Kaltenbach, Anthony F. Stedem, Jr., and Joseph E. Reahl. The junior candidates were Thomas E. Cinnamond, Frank J. Feild, Charles F. Hemelt, Jr., George Wm.

Miller A Leader

The office of Student President demands above all else a leader with energy, determination and perseverance. Such a man is George, to whom few Loyola men need any introduction. His past record of many diverse activities, as well as his general popularity with all the students, mark him a man fully capable of directing the student activities of Loyola.

Brilliant Record

In studies, in sports, and in extra-curricular activities, his record is a long list of achievements undertaken and fulfilled. Scholastically, George, who is an arts student, ranks among the first five of his class. In addition to his high class standing, this bright lad from Loyola High School is well known as Assistant Editor of THE GREYHOUND and writer of the column, COLD SPRING MURMURINGS. He has recently been elected a member of the Jesuit honor society, Alpha Sigma Nu. He was one of the charter members of the Math Club, and was its Vice-President last year. For the past three years he has been interested in dramatics and Sodality work.

Besides these activities, George was also a member of the Debating

DESTROY AND BUILD

The last editorial of the year usually bids farewell to the Seniors. It expresses the sincere hope that each Senior will arrive at that particular success he most desires. But this year, it's different. The situation is no longer one in which each individual strives to attain his own idea of a successful life. This year, we all have the same job to do. This year, each one of us must pitch in his strongest effort to accomplish the one tremendous two-fold task—first, destroy the world-shaking forces of oppression; and secondly, build a post-war world in which the freedom of each country, of each person, is protected for the common good.

We have been educated during a decade of peace. We have prepared ourselves to be journalists, lawyers, priests, actors, business men, doctors, and teachers. But these ambitions, which we have worked hard to fulfill, must be put aside, at least for awhile. Unless we put them aside now, universal and permanent oppression will prevail against all men. Democratic citizenship will not mean a reversible bond of duty between state and individual. It will mean duty only toward the state—slavery. Whether or not individual aims will be allowed to be pursued in a peaceful and free America of the future depends on our action now. That's the reason why thousands of middle-aged men, who have devoted their lives to peace industries, are now learning new, war-time occupations.

We don't want to merely win this war. We have more fight in us than that. We realize emphatically the destruction caused by the ungodly force of the Axis party. Our job is to annihilate suppression and dictatorship. We want to stamp out the last dictatorial spark, so that the oppressors' flame will never again rise on this earth. We will do that not only by winning the war, but by winning the peace. The Japs will regret that sneaky attack of December 7th. The Germans will never again bully small nations. We'll dictate this peace treaty. And we're out to dictate it as soon as possible.

The new war program aims to have every citizen engaged in this one job. Let's remember that. Let's remember that whether we are riveting in a factory, training in the armed forces, or preparing ourselves in school for better post-war reconstruction, we are doing one job. We want to do that job well—with one idea in mind—to destroy oppression and to build a world order wherein will reign the Christian principle of freedom for the common good.

ALMA MATER, LOYOLA

Loyola's school song, Alma Mater-Loyola, was introduced in "Your Town" last year. The first orchestral arrangement was played by Claude Thornhill at the Junior Prom. The tune attracts everyone. But the words are known by few. Yet, the words are printed in the Student's Handbook. Let's resolve to learn them. Nothing helps more to raise the feeling of good fellowship among both grads and students than does the singing of the school song.

News In Brief

Samuel J. Powers, Jr., '39, who captained Loyola's baseball team in his senior year, received an award for the highest mark in his course on Trusts at Catholic University Law School. The prize was conferred by Associate Justice William O. Douglas, of the Supreme Court of the United States. When he graduates within a few days he will begin V-7 courses.

John Morgan Mattingly received his commission as a lieutenant in the U. S. Army Air Corps, when he graduated from the Air Corps Technical School at Lowry Field, Colorado, on Saturday, May 2nd.

The annual Lee Oratorical Contest was won by Frank E. Horka, '43, who spoke on "The College Student and the War." Six students entered the contest and Robert E. Chartrand, '44, was the second best speaker.

The Playshop of Loyola College, directed by Father Richard F. Grady, S.J., recently conducted a unique one act play contest. Only members of the playshop were allowed to enter competition, and their entries had to be original plays written about a standard set of circumstances. Three of the best plays were chosen for dramatization, and these will be judged on how the author handled the common problem. The presentation of the dramatized versions, which will be directed and acted by members of the playshop, will be held in the little theatre in the basement of the faculty annex building.

Captain Harry Baldrige, U.S.N., who spoke at the presentation of the service flag on Parents' Day, recently presented to the college a photostatic copy of David Glasgow Farragut's Commission as a Midshipman in the United States Navy. The future Admiral was only nine and a half years old when he enlisted.

Four members of the class of '40, who were taken in the early days of the draft, have been chosen to go to Officer Training School. Leo McCarthy was sent to Fort Knox, and R. Duvall Rector to Fort Monmouth, N. J. Joe Clancy and Walt Cummings have also been selected but their destination is not known to us at present.

The annual Block-L activities banquet is tentatively scheduled for June 9th in the gymnasium.

Dr. Hubbard, faculty adviser of the Carroll Club at Johns Hopkins University, was a guest of the Sodality at the annual Communion-Mass and breakfast and gave a brief talk to the members. Dr. Hubbard is an honorary alumnus of Loyola and an honorary member of the Loyola Sodality.

On Saturday, May 30th, Rev. Eustace Henry Brosenne, O.M.C., class of '37, will be ordained at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, Albany, New York. He will celebrate his first Solemn High Mass at St. Mark's Church, Catonsville, on June 7th. Rev. William Aloysius Braun, ex-'38 will also be ordained on the same date at the Cathedral of the Assumption, Baltimore. His first Mass will be said, on May 31st, at St. John the Evangelist's Church in this city.

The Reader's Right

(We invite both students and alumni to use THE READER'S RIGHT as a channel for opinions and inquiries—Ed. Note.)

Fort Jackson, S.C.

To The Editor of THE GREYHOUND:

Dear Sir:

This is the first opportunity I've had to write since hearing of Frank Brown's death. It is an inspiration to think that Frank has gone ahead to point the way for the rest of us, and I'd like to offer a suggestion while I think of it. I know the college planned a memorial of some sort to Ensign Rogers, and last night, when I read of Frank's death, I recalled a picture I once saw of a little memorial which an English town set up to honor its war dead. It was a simple stone cross with the names inscribed upon the base. It struck me that something similar would harmonize with the buildings at the college, and would be a permanent tribute to two fliers who are surely a credit to the school that trained them. I'd be happy to give $21 (the equivalent of my first month's pay) toward such a memorial if you like the idea and think it suitable.

I am proud to have known Frank, and I hope that he will speak a good word for me and save a place for me. I can say of him that in the eight years I knew him I never heard a profane or unclean word from his lips. I am happy for him and I envy him, for he has finished a difficult job and can rest in the glory of his accomplishment. Pray that I shall keep him before me as an example and do as well, in my small way, as he did.

Sincerely,
John B. Thompson

ED. NOTE—A few days ago, Fr. Bunn received John's check for $21—his full first month's pay. May his generosity serve as an example to students and alumni.

Cold Spring Murmurings

BY GEORGE J. MILLER, JR., '43

Do you play hunches? Well, on Wednesday, May 13th, Junior Prom won the fifth at Charlestown and paid its backers $19.20 for every two bucks they wagered. Wonder how many juniors had it!

At 6:00 A.M., on the morning after Bill Bavis and Harold Molz debated the Fordham Freshmen in New York, Mr. John Henry Lawton was awakened from his sleep by a telegram from the boys telling of their victory. The wire came collect. (46c.)

Moved to distraction, the other day, over a psychology test, Mouse Kearney came up with this classic. "If I had a photographic memory or a seat in the back row, I could pass."

STAR BOARDER?

It was late Friday afternoon and the perspiration flowed freely from our pores as we cudged our brains for ways to get the other fellows on the staff to write the articles assigned to us. Suddenly the deathly quiet (they'd all have to be dead for it to be quiet) was shattered by the ear-splitting jangle of the cafe phone. (That reminds me — Frank Mueller told me that he broke a tooth on a cafe hot dog, several days ago.) The phone was still ringing. We voted unanimously that it should be answered and started to look around for a nickel to toss. Kearney got the short straw and went grumbling on his way.

When he lifted the receiver, he heard, "Hello. Is John Pugh there?" Mouse said, "Wait a second and I'll see," and was just about to duck out of the booth and take a look around, when the voice continued "Look, if John's not there, I'd just as soon speak to Tippy Tewes." (We always thought that she lived next door.)

IF HE ONLY WOULD

Practice had been going poorly all afternoon, but that last play took the cake. Lefty jumped to his feet, grabbed off his hat and piped, "Dam! Schoeberlein does everything perfect but think."

PROM NEWS

Before the Prom. Charlie Hemelt's date opens corsage box and finds card inscribed, "Tonight's the night."

During the Prom. Everytime a member of the faculty got up to dance what he thought was going to be a waltz, Claude turned on the heat.

After the Prom. Ooooooooooooo!

WHICH WAY?

Somebody must think that Loyola's orchestra doesn't get around much. Last Sunday we saw the following sign on the doors of the library building.

ORCHESTRA REHEARSAL

In the Gymnasium
(behind the Faculty Building) at 11 A.M.

We thought that the orchestra played in the gymnasium on parents' day. Guess artists just naturally have short memories.

FLAG DEDICATED TO SERVICE MEN

Captain Baldrige Gives Address; Plaque Presented By Alcalá Caravan; Seminar Held.

Combining (censored) weather, an excellent crowd and a member of the United States Navy as guest speaker, Loyola's annual Parents' Day, on May 10th, held on the campus, was a gala setting for the raising of the Service Flag and the memorial plaque dedication. Captain Harry Baldrige was the naval representative who addressed the assemblage on the subject, "Service and the Flag."

The Captain stressed the importance that should be attached to the duty of the students in learning as much as they can, as long as they can. He pointed out further that Catholic colleges by their continuance of basic courses at a time that such training was subject to great criticism by the "modern schools," were instrumental in providing a nucleus at the time of the present emergency.

Plaque Presented

Following the impressive ceremonies accompanying both the raising of the Service Flag and the presentation of a plaque by the Alcalá Caravan which is the Baltimore unit of the Order of Alhambra, an informal reception and social took place in the gymnasium. The college orchestra presented several selections serving as background to the pleasantries exchanged by the alumni who were well represented.

Psychological Symposium

Additional entertainment was afforded by a philosophy seminar conducted by the Rev. Joseph Donceel, S.J., in which the following participated: Thomas J. Thaler (chairman), Nathan Canter, John V. K. Helfrich, Casimir M. Zacharski, Herbert R. O'Connor, Jr., Charles F. Hemelt, Jr., and Frank E. Horka. The seniors presented the freedom of the human will, while the juniors traced the development of the human will. Previously, the Loyola College Glee Club had offered two selections, Visions and Loch Lomond which they had recorded earlier for the Fred Waring Glee Club Contest.

JENKINS DEBATERS TAKE DECISION FROM FORDHAM

Debate In New York Ends Season; Society Plans Banquet For Members On June 1st.

The Jenkins Debating Society, brought an active season to a close with a victorious debate against the Freshman Debating Society of Fordham University. The contest was held before the members of the Freshman Society, in the debating room of Keating Hall, on the Fordham campus.

Molz Best Speaker

The Loyola men, William S. Bavis, '44, and Harold A. Molz, '44, upheld the negative of the question, Resolved: That the Federal Government Should Force the Labor Unions to Incorporate, and were given the decision over James Ashley and Fred Gassert, affirmative proponents for the Rams. Molz was voted best speaker. Mr. William N. Clarke, S.J., Moderator of the Jenkins Society, made the trip to New York with the two debaters.

Will Hold Banquet

The Society will officially bring the year to a close with a banquet on Monday evening, June 1st. The dinner will be held at Schellhase's Restaurant.

Student Pictorials

(This is the third in a series of word-snapshots of outstanding men of Loyola)

FRANK J. AYD, JR.

A rising vote of thanks to the retiring president of the Student Body, a unanimous lifting of brows to versatile Frank J. Ayd, Jr., a versatility nearly illimitable. A chorus of "How do you do it?"s to a man who does things well in large doses.

Frank, blonde-haired lad from Loyola High, is poised, pleasant, popular, and perhaps the best known man in the school. His record is marked by a consistent average of 85% and a lengthy list of extracurricular activities. To express Frank's record in terms of one year for each year of participation in each activity is to say that he has a minimum of twenty-five years experience in Loyola's extra-curriculars.

Frank was partly responsible for Loyola's latest literary innovation, The Quarterly. For two years he was Business Manager of it and THE GREYHOUND. He has also taken care of the business end of the '42 yearbook. At present he is Business Manager for the Lew Lortz Orchestra.

Frank has also been active in the Debating society, the Mendel Club, the Sodality, the Chemists' Club and the Social Science Club. Because of his outstanding work he is listed in the '42 edition of "Who's Who In American Colleges."

Between school terms Frank has hitch-hiked over an incredible expanse in North America, from the northern tip of Canada to the sunny West. During his vacations Frank has held at least a dozen diverse jobs, from the Bethlehem Steel to the World's Fair.

Jesuit Priest From India Evergreen Guest Last Week

Not until 1923 did the Society once again return to Madras, where they founded Loyola College. Because there were no Jesuits in Madras at the time he began his education, Father Yeddnapalli, desiring the Jesuit training, travelled 300 miles south of Madras to attend high school and St. Joseph's College.

Joins Jesuits

Upon graduating from St. Joseph's he entered the Jesuit Order at the Medura Mission in India. Later he studied the sciences for two years at Calcutta University. From there he went to Belgium for his Theology and in 1938 was ordained.

ANTHONY F. A. STEDEM, JR.

Anthony F. Stedem is another of the class of '42 that has brought distinction to the college as well as himself. During the past four years, Tony has not only been successful scholastically, as evidenced by his acceptance as a medical student following graduation, but has been interested in a staggering number of extra-curricular pursuits.

A graduate of Loyola High, Tony engaged in Sodality and Holy Name activities as well as fencing for the varsity and serving on the Student Council, in his first year. Subsequent studies and further familiarity with college life were instrumental in his becoming active in journalism which culminated with his position as Associate Editor on THE GREYHOUND this year. In keeping with his medical ambitions, Tony joined the Chemistry Club and Mendel Club. He now serves as president of the latter. This year too, he engaged in the Social Science Club's activities besides playing intra-mural basketball and acting as Senior Manager of the lacrosse team. He has been a member of the Student Council in addition to serving with the Athletic Association board and the English Academy. His name appeared in the current edition of the "Who's Who in American Colleges" along with other classmates earlier this year.

Tony, somewhat reticent concerning his own achievements, is nevertheless an interesting subject for interview, as we found out. After a questioning which lasted far into the night, Tony admitted that he had a future. The Army!

COLLEGES FORM SODALITY UNION

Initial Meeting Held At Loyola;
Delegates From Mt. St. Agnes And Notre Dame Attend.

The Loyola Sodalities joined with those of Notre Dame of Maryland and Mt. St. Agnes Junior College in forming an Archdiocesan Sodality Union on Friday, May 8th, 1942, in a meeting held at Loyola. The proposal for the Union was made by Fr. Francis P. LeBuffe, S.J., when he addressed the Sodalities last March, and was accepted on Friday.

Fr. Ward Moderator

Fr. Thomas P. Ward, S.J., was appointed by the Most Reverend Michael J. Curley as Moderator of the new Union. He was introduced to office by Fr. LeBuffe who expressed the Archbishop's wish that the Union adopt a program of developing and spreading a love for Mary as its primary objective.

The guest speaker at the meeting was Fr. Lawrence R. McHugh, S.J., Moderator of the Washington Sodality Union. In explaining how the Capital organization functioned, Fr. McHugh stressed the importance of the Individual Sodalities, and emphasized the fact that the primary purpose of the Union was to strengthen and encourage each member unit.

Organizational Meeting

The two Sodalities of Loyola as separate entities were voted individual representation in the Union, thus giving Loyola an equal vote with Notre Dame and Mt. St. Agnes combined. Because of war-time changes in curricular schedules, election of officers was postponed until next autumn. The date for this meeting will be Friday, October 9, 1942 and it will be held at Notre Dame. For the elections, each member Sodality will send three delegates to form an electoral body.

MENDEL CLUB HOLDS YEAR'S LAST MEETING

On April 22, Eugene T. Wisniewski, '43, addressed the members of the Mendel Club on the recently developed science of "Sex Predetermination". This revolutionary advance in science is still in the infancy of its development, the speaker pointed out, since it was discovered only twenty years ago.

Experiments Very Successful

After narrating some ancient superstitions on sexual predetermination, Mr. Wisniewski described the male and female mammal reproductive systems and explained the process of fertilization and conception. He then narrated how the core of natural sex determination lies in the chromosome. Just prior to coitus a solution of lactic acid or bicarbonate of soda, depending on the sex desired, is injected into the specimen. These experiments, although tried on animals in most cases have been successful.

O'Hare Closes Yearly Program

Last Wednesday, James F. O'Hare, '43, closed the regular meetings of the club for this year with a lecture on "Allergy".

The background for this topic, which has aroused so much discussion in the medical field during the past few years, was described in detail by Mr. O'Hare. One of the most annoying of all allergies today is hay fever and the speaker held this up as a typical example in describing the actions of allergies. Contrary to what many people think these diseases are curable, although not entirely.

THEATRE GROUPS ATTEND LUNCHEON

Plan Radio Programs For USO.
Notre Dame, Hopkins And Loyola To Give Plays.

Last Saturday at 2 o'clock a group of people connected with the amateur theatre convened in the Loyola Library Building for a luncheon and discussion meeting.

Each guest delivered a short talk on the effect of the war on acting in their respective organizations and the problems that must be met. After this, papers were delivered by Dr. Isabelle Berger of Johns Hopkins University and Mr. John Henry Lawton of Loyola College. These discourses dealt with "The Effect of the War on the Amateur Theatre".

Guest List

A list of the guests included: Dr. Isabelle Berger, Johns Hopkins; Earnest Gohn, president of the dramatics society at Hopkins; Phyllis Tilly of the Guild Theatre; Harry Welker, Vagabonds and the Cathedral Players; Ken Rockefeller and Kay Rivitt, Museum Players; Miss Eileen Meise, Notre Dame College; Fr. Richard Grady, S.J., Mr. Lawton, and Jim McManus of Loyola, and Mr. William Proffitt, director of the Baltimore USO.

Shows For USO

Considerable attention was given to plays as entertainment at the USO center. Johns Hopkins, Notre Dame, and Loyola volunteered to present plays in the auditorium of the USO center on Charles St. Hopkins will give the first presentation in a few weeks time. Loyola's presentation will be "The Bridge", by Thornton Wilder. Radio programs will be arranged in connection with the USO for the summer. Johns Hopkins, Notre Dame, and Loyola will participate in these half-hour programs, also.

The group terminated with a resolution to form the "Baltimore Society of Dramatic Directors" in the fall.

CLASS OFFICERS ELECTED FOR COMING SCHOOL YEAR

Jim McManus To Head Next Year's Seniors; Manzer Choice for Important Junior Post.

Class administrations changed hands last week, as the result of the annual elections. The returns showed that the competition for the various offices was the keenest in several years.

The incoming senior offices are: President, James McManus; Vice-President, Frank Feild; Treasurer, Fred Dewberry; Secretary, George Wm. McManus.

The new junior officers are: President, Joseph Manzer; Vice-President, John Brickner; Treasurer, Harry Chase; Secretary, John Woytowicz.

Next year's sophomore officers are: President, Anthony Leary; Vice-President, Sam Brocato; Treasurer, Joseph Krejci; Secretary, Robert Nugent.

Leary Re-elected

Tony Leary, the new sophomore president, also served as the president of his class this year. Another interesting aspect of the elections was the close race for the presidencies of the senior and junior classes. In the former, James McManus led Frank Feild by the narrow margin of ten points, while Joseph Manzer nosed out John Brickner by the even smaller difference of four points, in the other.

By John J. Pugh, '43

In *The Land Of Spices*¹ Kate O'Brien has given us a secret glimpse of the complex drama that daily treads the cloistered walks of convent gardens, and we find it quite intriguing. Whether the story belongs to Reverend Mother Mary Helen Archer of the Compagnie de la Sainte Famille or to little Anna Murphy—and who is there to say?—by reason of both it has in its softness a compelling grip. Reverend Mother represents the best of the conservative old regime meeting its painful end in the world-wide throes of the last Great War. She enters the convent "on the rebound" from a shocking picture of real life cruelly thrust upon her beautiful innocence, an innocence unusual then as it is more unusual now in a pretty girl of eighteen. Such a blow to her youthful faith in the rich promises of life drove her to the extreme severity that lies as a refuge in the religious life, hid from all but those who seek its solace needfully. Question her vocation if you will, but you may so risk questioning God's instrument in gathering His own. Anna Murphy plays the part of the sad offspring of a disintegrating family who is withdrawn to the pit to watch and feel the unfolding of the tragic plot. As the curtain falls, Reverend Mother has just been elevated to the office of Mother General of the Compagnie; and the growing Anna, now fifteen, is herself faced with the vocation dilemma. She, too, has been forcefully isolated from the world by the sudden death of her beloved younger brother, Charlie, her last link of love outside the mantle of Sainte Famille.

The book is worthy of high merit at this time because it presents an answer to the utter feeling of futility which besets the modern world and particularly modern youth. The hopelessness and the ¹THE LAND OF SPICES. By Kate O'Brien. Doubleday, Doran & Co. New York. 1941.

"thrashing of the Hellespont" are there, but ever subdued and steadied by the protecting influence of religious authority. It presents a sound simple answer to this problem that pervades the present day novel—"Where do we go from here?" It is also a silencing attack against those who cryptically slur religious vocations as reactionary harbors in which to flee the storms of unrequited love. There is more than one type of "rebound" in this life and its purpose more often than not is precisely to teach through experience the treachery of the material world alone as a foundation for the future.

The life of the story is preserved in the tense struggles between its characters that fill each chapter. The plot, wisely spiced with tasteful humor, fairly sparkles with little crises, running along together yet each with an interest of its own. Its variety is complete. Its human wisdom will give you a good evening's entertainment.

Robert St. John comes back from the Balkans with scars and memories to prove in language of blood and screams what a truly wonderful thing the bravery of man is and how helpless it is alone in this war. The horror of his flight from death through Yugoslavia, Greece, and Crete as he presents it in this book² are a clear enough expansion of his introductory definition of war. From point of view of gripping interest the work cannot be excelled. He has strong powers of expression and his word pictures will haunt your memory. The tragic amazement of the conquered peoples, the pitiable and unnecessary plight of the Anzac Army, and the total absence of the R.A.F., blocked by censorship there are unforgettably described by Mr. St. John after his recovery in America.

HAROLD A. MOLZ WINS WHITEFORD CONTEST

Announcement was recently made that Harold A. Molz, '44, had won the annual Whiteford Essay Contest. The winner will be awarded a Gold Medal at the first Student Assembly this coming fall. The subject for the essays in this year's contest was "Problems of Hispanic-American Unity". Eight Loyola students submitted essays on the Inter-American question. James R. Crook, a member of this year's graduating class wrote the second best essay in the group, and Frank J. Field, a junior, ranked third.

Ignorance Cited As Obstacle
"Hispanic-American Unity" is an important and timely topic and has been spotlighted in many college student activities throughout the country. Among the various problems of Hispanic-American unity treated in his essay, Mr. Molz stressed the fact that the average 'man on the street' knows little or nothing about his neighbors "south of the border," and suggested as a remedy for this obstacle in the path of unity, a study of the Hispanic-American situation.

The student exchange plan was cited as a very effective means of fostering a strong, lasting Hispanic-American unity.

JUNE WEEK FEATURES BANQUET AND DANCE

Although some of the plans are still tentative, the graduating class has outlined a partial program of events for June Week, which is to be held this year from June 1st through June 7th.

The initial celebration will be a banquet at the Stafford Hotel, on Monday evening, June 1st. On June 3rd, the senior class will deviate from a practice followed in past years by combining their beach party and dance into one affair. They are now negotiating with the management of the Hillendale Country Club to lease their entire facilities for a full day of golf, tennis, swimming, archery and the like. A buffet supper has been arranged for early evening and will be followed by a formal dance in the clubhouse.

Baccalaureate Mass

On the morning of June 7th, the Baccalaureate Mass will be held at St. Ignatius' Church at nine o'clock. A communion breakfast will follow, at which time the graduates will be inducted into the alumni association. At six-thirty in the evening of the same day, the seniors will receive their degrees from the Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S.J., president of Loyola, at the graduation exercises in the gymnasium.

SODALITIES HOLD ANNUAL RECEPTION

Mass At Evergreen Followed By Breakfast At Stafford; Father Bunn Speaker.

On Sunday morning, May 17th, the Sodality held its annual reception of new members. Fifty members of the Senior and Junior Sodalities received Communion in a body at Mass in the Students' Chapel. The Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S.J., President of the College, celebrated the Mass, and following the Mass, received the new candidates into the Sodality.

Breakfast At Stafford

Following the Mass, the sodalists assembled at the Stafford Hotel for breakfast. Toastmaster for the occasion was Senior Donald J. Schmidt. After introducing the past prefect of the Senior Sodality, Joseph B. Smith, Mr. Schmidt called upon the Moderators of the Sodalities, the Revs. Thomas P. Ward, S.J., and the Rev. William V. Herlihy, S.J., to address the Sodalists.

Dean And Rector Speak

Rev. Lawrence C. Gorman, S.J., Dean of the College, also spoke to the group, and he suggested that the Sodalities form an Alumni chapter, to keep the men who have left the school in close association with the ideals and principles, which they learned during their years in the Sodality.

Following the Dean's address, Fr. Bunn addressed the Sodalists. In his talk he stressed the fact that the Sodality was principally a men's organization, founded in a Jesuit College in Rome over three hundred and fifty years ago. He also placed special emphasis on the importance of the Sodality to a college. The spirit of the Sodality should permeate all other College activities. It should be the main thread in the tapestry of college life. The Sodality is not supposed to compete with other activities, nor even to come into conflict with them, but it should pervade all other campus organizations. The Sodalists themselves should be the leaders behind the scenes at a college, always mindful of their tremendous importance in the great scheme of God's universe, and yet always remembering their tremendous personal insignificance.

Sodality Most Important

"The Sodality has always been, and will always be, the most important organization at the college. Although a man be the most eloquent debater in this school, the most outstanding member of the Dramatic Society, the editor of the Year Book or president of the Student Council, I would still place his value to the school and himself second to that of a man who is an active Sodalist".

Alumni Award To Dr. Doehler

Dr. Edward A. Doehler, Chairman of the Department of History at Loyola College, will receive the Alumni Award at graduation for his outstanding work in the Loyola College Alumni Association. The Board of Trustees, in selecting Dr. Doehler for the Award, commented upon the conspicuous success he has achieved this year as Treasurer of the Association due to his unflagging efforts and unselfish service.

Loyola Class Of '30

Dr. Doehler received his Bachelor's Degree from Loyola College in 1930, and then went to Georgetown University where he received his Master's Degree in 1931. While studying for his Master's Degree at Georgetown, Dr. Doehler held a Fellowship in History, and was an Assistant Professor in the History Department. Later on, Dr. Doehler resumed his graduate work at the University and received his Doctor of Philosophy Degree in 1935.

In the Fall of 1931, Dr. Doehler came back to Loyola as a Professor of History, and upon receiving his Doctorate in 1935, he became Chairman of the Department of History.

Active In Cultural Circles

Dr. Doehler is a member of the Maryland Historical Society, the American Historical Association, the American Catholic Historical Association and the Medieval Academy of America. Dr. Doehler is well known throughout the Archdiocese of Baltimore and Washington for his lectures and talks on historical subjects and Catholic Action topics. Dr. Doehler is Secretary of the Baltimore-Washington Archdiocesan Union of the Holy Name Societies.

Saga of Jazz

THOMAS B. CONNOR, '43

Thus far in my brief and perhaps not-too-concise history of jazz music, I have neglected to say very much about present day hot music. It seems only proper therefore, in this, the final chapter of the jazz saga, that I devote some space to the music's present status. Perhaps too, it would not be out of place to list a number of available phonograph records, by means of which anyone interested in studying the development of this art might contact it in a very vital way.

New Jazz Group Discovered

It is true that in the last issue I spoke of a group of musicians who are currently giving bi-weekly jazz concerts at New York's Town Hall. Essentially, their music is no different from the jazz of thirty years ago. It cannot be denied that specific styles of playing have been varied, but the core of the original music is still the basis of modern jazz forms. Yet practically all of the men participating in these "revivals" are among the "white pioneers" of jazz. Consequently this latest activity on their part might be dismissed by some as simply a last desperate effort to "erase the handwriting on the wall", so to speak. What we must look for is an example of contemporary musical expression in the original unadulterated jazz language, coming from young musicians of the present generation.

Just within the past six months there has been discovered in San Francisco a group of young artists playing in a downtown night club. Their musical style, and even their instrumentation, is identical with that which the New Orleans Negro made famous in the early part of the twentieth century. Their playing contains clear and distinct remnants of the styles of such early jazz immortals as Louis Armstrong, "Kid" Ory, Johnny Dodds, and "Jelly-Roll" Morton. This group play under the title of "Lou Watters and his Yerba Buena Jazz Band", and already a private record concern in 'Frisco has recorded some of their finest efforts. These discs rank with the best in all recorded jazz history, and clearly show that despite the turbulent seige this musical form has been through for the past forty years, true jazz still has remained unchanged—certainly a strong argument for the music's artistic worth.

Records Available On Subject

I shall mention only a few hot records at this time, for space does not permit a longer list. Although it is probably impossible to gain much of an appreciation of hot music from such a limited list, nevertheless, I hope that through these few your curiosity will be aroused, and that thereby you will become interested enough to search for more. The list:—

King Oliver's Creole Jazz Band
—Dipper Mouth Blues
Bessie Smith—Young Woman's Blues—Baby Doll
Louis Armstrong's Hot Five—Muskat Ramble
Louis Armstrong's Savoy Five—Tight Like That Bix Beiderbecke and his Gang—At the Jazz Band Ball
McKenzie-Condon Chicagoans—China Boy-Sugar
Duke Ellington and his Orchestra—Black and Tan Fantasy
Muggsy Spanier's Ragtime Band—Dipper Mouth Blues

Alumni Participation In June Week Exercises

Baccalaureate Mass: The Annual Baccalaureate Mass will be celebrated on Sunday, June 7, at 8 A.M. in St. Ignatius Church, Calvert and Madison Sts. Members of the Alumni Association are invited and urged to attend this impressive ceremony. An Alumnus of the Class of '37, Rev. William D. McGonigle, recently ordained for the Diocese of Richmond, will be the celebrant of the Mass. Special seats will be reserved for Alumni attending the service.

Breakfast and Alumni Induction: Following the Baccalaureate Mass, the Graduates and Alumni will meet at a breakfast to be held at the Stafford Hotel. In the course of this meeting the graduating class will be formally inducted into the Association. We are hopeful of filling the hotel ball-room for this occasion.

Graduation Exercises: On the same day, Sunday, June 7, at 5 P.M., the Annual Commencement Exercises will be held at Evergreen. Again all Alumni members are encouraged to attend. As many as possible are urged to attend in academic dress and take part in the procession.

NOTE: A card will reach each member within the next few days asking for information about reservations for breakfast and measurements for caps and gowns. If you intend to be with the Alumni for these activities please return the attached card at once to facilitate arrangements.

Reunion of Class of 1935

(Class Captains Please Note!)

One of the most practical ways of keeping Alumni Associations alive is the holding of periodic class reunions. ALUMNI DOINGS is always pleased to hear of these and ready to report them in its columns. The most recent one was held by the Class of '35. At an informal dinner gathering at the Hotel Stafford on Friday, May 1, about one-half of the graduating class met for an enjoyable evening.

It is interesting to notice the varied occupations of this class on the occasion of their seventh anniversary of graduation. Roger Lewis is employed in Washington as associate editor of the bi-monthly publication of The Army Ordnance Association. Edward Wlodarczyk Stuart is engaged in labor-relations work in Pennsylvania. Edward Kelly is doing art work with a publication in Washington. Edmund Lubinski is practicing law in Baltimore. Edward O'Hare is an X-ray technician with the Medical Corps of the U. S. Army at Fort George Meade. Donald Douglas is employed by an electrical concern. John McFadden is in hotel work at the Lord Baltimore. Chris Kamka is in the offices of Bethlehem Steel Co. Edgar B. Biggs is with the Baltimore Transit Company. Joseph May is teaching mathematics at Loyola High School. Donald Lee is an employee of the Post Office, while Elmer Lambdin is in another government department. Gregory Kane, the other journalist of the class, is about to enter the U. S. Navy. Paul Kircher is connected with the Maryland Glass Company. Pat Phelan is in his fourth year of medical school at the University of Maryland. Three doctors are found in the ranks of '35: Dr. James Cianos of St. Agnes Hospital; Dr. Raymond Cunningham of University Hospital; and Dr. William H. Kammer, Jr., of Mercy Hospital.

LEO A. CODD, '16

Alumnus Of The Month

This month ALUMNI DOINGS salutes its distinguished Alumnus of the Class of 1916, Leo A. Codd of Washington, D. C. Paging through the Annual of that year we note the editor's attempt at prophecy: "We believe that in future years the Halls of Congress shall vibrate with the eloquence of his oratory, and the legal profession which he intends to enter be enriched by his ability." While we have not yet heard of Congressman Codd, we have heard many things that make his name equally famous.

Mr. Codd attended Georgetown University in the years following his graduation from Loyola, and by 1923 had collected a Bachelor's degree in Law and Master's degree in both Arts and Law. In the educational field he was also for a time instructor in Chemistry at Georgetown, and in 1937 was Brackett Lecturer at Princeton University.

During World War I, Mr. Codd was Explosives Chemist in the United States Army, and since that time holds a Lieutenant Colonel's commission in the Reserve.

His great national contribution has been as Executive Secretary and Executive Vice President of The Army Ordnance Association, and Managing Editor of the Association's journal, "Army Ordnance." The Army Ordnance Association is a national technical and scientific society composed of over six thousand executives and engineers of American industry. Nation-wide in its scope, non-political in its character, non-profit bearing in its operation, it was formed exclusively for industrial preparedness for national defense. The Journal is published solely for the purpose of disseminating information on American military armament so that American industry can at all times know its responsibilities to national defense. Formed to prevent a recurrence of the industrial paralysis of 1917, the association and its Journal have vindicated their existence today in the way in which industry is meeting the demands of our country in modern total industrial war. Much of the success of The Army Ordnance Association is due to the capable and energetic leadership of its Executive Vice President, Leo A. Codd.

NAVY ANNOUNCEMENT TO COLLEGE FRESHMEN AND SOPHOMORES 17^{THRU} 19

You want to serve your country! Why not serve where your college training will do the most good?

Under the Navy's newest plan, you can enlist right now. You don't have to quit college. You can stay in college, continue your studies and qualify to become a Naval Officer—on the sea or in the air.

Who may qualify

If you are between the ages of 17 and 19 inclusive and can meet Navy physical standards, you can enlist now as an Apprentice Seaman in the Naval Reserve. You will be in the Navy. But you may remain in college, taking regular college courses under your own professors. Your studies will emphasize mathematics, physics and physical training.

After you have successfully completed 1½ calendar years of work, you will be given a classification test. This examination is competitive. It is designed to select the best men for training as Naval Officers.

How to become an Officer

If you qualify by this test and can meet the necessary physical standards, you will have your choice of two courses—each leading to an officer's commission:

1. You may volunteer for training as an Aviation Officer. In this case you will be permitted to finish at least the second calendar year of college work, before you are ordered to active duty for training to become an officer-pilot.

However, at any time during this two-year period, you may have the option to take immediately the prescribed examination for Aviation Officer... and, if successful, be assigned for Aviation training. Students who fail in their college courses or who withdraw from college will also have the privilege of taking the Aviation examination. Applicants who fail to qualify in this test will be ordered to active duty as Apprentice Seamen.

2. Those who qualify in the classification test and do not volunteer for Aviation will be selected for training to be Deck or Engineering Officers. In that case, you will continue your college program until you receive your bachelor's degree, provided you maintain the established university standards.

Those whose grades are not high enough to qualify them for Deck or Engineering Officer training will be permitted to finish their second calendar year of college. After this, they will be ordered to duty as Apprentice Seamen, but because of their college training they will have a better chance for rapid advancement. At any time, if a student should fail in his college courses, he may be ordered to active duty as an Apprentice Seaman.

Your pay starts with active duty.

It's a real challenge! It's a real opportunity! Make every minute count by doing something about this new Navy plan today.

'Hounds Clinch Two Spring Titles

GREEN AND GREY NINE GAINS M-D CONFERENCE LAURELS.

The hands of fate, which eluded the grasp of the Loyola baseball team all season, laid the Mason-Dixon Conference Championship in their laps over last week-end, when a rainstorm forced the postponement of the Western Maryland tilt. This stroke of fortune enabled the Greyhounds to enter the "Paradise of Champions" through the backdoor by virtue of their having played more league games than Mt. St. Mary's.

Claim Undisputed

The completed league schedule of the Greyhounds and Mountaineers showed that both teams were deadlocked with a .667 average. However, the Greyhounds were awarded the trophy before the Mounts, because their record of 6 wins and 3 losses was superior to the Blue and White's 4 wins and 2 losses. An Emmitsburg spokesman stated that they would make no claim for the championship, having been shellacked by the Greyhounds earlier in the season.

About Face

In achieving their second Conference championship in as many years, the Greyhounds started off in reverse, dropping two decisions to American U. On the strength of newly found batting power, the Green and Grey surged from the depths, humbling Hopkins, Western Maryland, Mt. St. Mary's and Catholic U., displaying marked improvement.

Coaching Magic

History repeated itself this year, when Coach Lefty Reitz started off the campaign with a very green squad. Patiently working with his rookies and building up their confidence, he gradually brought them along to the Conference Crown. Against big-time teams like Villa-

Loyola Squads Bag Four Crowns

Basketball, Baseball Squads Take M-D Titles; Golfers Win College Tourney.

By Ed McGraw

With four well-earned championships to her credit, Loyola is preparing to close her sports year, one of the most successful ones in her history. With only two baseball games remaining on the schedule, the record stands at fifty-one victories in eighty-five contests, for a won-lost percentage of an even .600. Top honors must go to "Reds" Hucht's undefeated swimming team, which, led by Captain Jimmy Russell, coasted through a five-meet season with little difficulty, and the runner-up spot unquestionably belongs to "Lefty" Reitz's third championship basketball team in the past three years. And finally, one cannot overlook the fine performance of the baseball nine in retaining its Mason-Dixon Conference crown, or the startling upset pulled by the Greyhound golf team in recapturing the Maryland Collegiate title which it lost two years ago.

Soccer Record Good

The soccer team also sports a fine record in its second year of organization. Sweeping through its first five tilts with nary a loss, it lost the state title by a one-goal margin, when the University of Maryland scored a lone marker in the closing minutes to clinch the championship. The booters were handled by Franny McDonough, now stationed at Maxwell Field as a member of the Army Air Corps.

The fencing team, under Coach Johnny Gleim, finished its first season out of the red, with a 4-4 record that included triumphs over Western Maryland, Catholic University and St. Joseph's. The wrestling squad, splitting even in four dual meets, improved greatly with Mike Ventura at the helm, and had

GREYHOUND LINKSMEN TAKE STATE COLLEGIATE CROWN

By Francis X. Kearney, Jr.

On Saturday afternoon at the Bonnie View Golf Club the Greyhound linksmen climaxed a successful season by capturing the Maryland State Collegiate golf crown. In a driving rain which resulted in over-par rounds for every one of the contestants, Charlie Pfeil, who ended his golfing career at Loyola in a fitting manner, led the Green and Grey team to the coveted title with a thirty-six hole total of one hundred and fifty-seven.

Third At Western Maryland

In the Western Maryland Invitation Meet held two weeks ago at Westminster the Evergreen drivers placed third. Helped by the fact of playing on their home course the Terrors took first spot and Gettysburg College came in second. This performance gave their followers a tip on what could be expected of the Greyhound golfers.

In the first dual match of the season against a fine Virginia U. team the Green and Grey team was snowed under by a nine to nothing score. Learning a lesson from this meeting the Loyola boys came back to pin a defeat on the Terrors of Western Maryland. In the third inter-collegiate match of the year the Blue Jays of Hopkins were met and vanquished.

Tough One To Hilltoppers

Shooting sub-par golf the Hoyas of Georgetown downed the Green and Grey. Playing the best golf of the season with par scores our team dropped the toughest match of the year to the Washingtonians. In the fifth and final dual meet of the schedule we gained an even break by shooting a tie with Western Maryland, thus ending a fair season against college opponents.

Title Regained After 1-Year Lapse

Two years ago under the leadership of Johnny Farrell, now a Second Lieutenant in the U. S. Army the Greyhounds won the Maryland Collegiate title. And this year after a one season interval the Loyola team recaptured the crown taken last year by Baltimore University.

TRACKMEN COMPLETE SUCCESSFUL SEASON

The record book has closed on the first chapter of track at Loyola College. When big Jim Nouss soared over the 5-foot 11¼-inch bar at Homewood last week, the Mason-Dixon Conference became aware of a new threat to be reckoned with in future days. The record compiled by Coach Gallico's cindermen may appear outwardly insignificant, but actually those inked figures are a forecast rather than a history.

With a squad comprised of eighty per cent frosh, the Greyhounds view the past season as one of warm-up and practice, with an eye to coming meets when they will compete on equal terms with conference foes.

To briefly scan the season—A mid-April test with Hopkins found the Green and Grey on the short end of the score, but rather satisfied with the crimps they'd left in the pride of several confident Jay sprinters; at the C.U. games the following week, the Evergreen tracksters nosed out American U. to place fourth as a crack Loyola relay team thrilled the fans by leading the way for half the distance; at the Penn Relays four days later, the Mason-Dixon event saw a record shattered by Catholic U. while the Greyhound foursome toured the Franklin Field Oval in a speedy 3:32 to place fifth out of eight, nailing down a point toward the tourney slated for Hopkins on May 8-9; the lone home victory was gained at the expense of American U, whose weak squad fell prey to Loyola by a lop-sided margin; a veteran Gallaudet squad was the first May contestant on the home field, and it was a much-improved and spunky team that lost a close one to an outfit well-respected in conference competition; the final meet was the Mason-Dixon Championships at Hopkins which saw Jim Nouss crowned high-jump champ.

Intramural Meet Scheduled Today

This afternoon all the hidden talent will have a chance to show itself when the Intramural Track Meet is run off. Due to the efforts of the Track Coach, Mr. James Gallico, S.J., and Assistant Intramural Commissioner Jim McManus, the first scheduled track meet solely for the student body is to take place on the athletic field at three o'clock.

The method of scoring will be on a class basis, with special awards for individual performances. The day's events will include the quarter-mile, half-mile, 100-yard low hurdles, 220-yard dash, running broad jump, discus throw, half-mile relay and the shot put.

LACROSSE SEASON ENDS WITH WIN OVER C.C.N.Y.

With a crushing 13-1 onslaught, the Loyola lacrosse team concluded its fifth season under Coach Jack Kelly, two weeks ago, against City College of New York. The team, in setting an all-time high of seventy-one goals in seven games, finished the season with a record of four triumphs as against three defeats and once more emphatically established its superiority over teams outside the Maryland district.

Ten-Goal Average

The average score of the tilts Springfield, Lehigh, Washington and Lee, and C.C.N.Y. was 10.5 to 4.3, much better than has been the case in previous years, and while the 'Hounds did not fare as well against Maryland, Navy and Hopkins (who totaled fifty-three goals against them) they did display a much stronger attack than usual against the "Big Three" of the Free State. They became the first team of this year to score seven goals against Hopkins, the 1941 national champions, and far outplayed the Middies in their annual game with the Naval Academy.

Walker High Scorer

Cory Walker, the rangy southpaw who directed the close attack, led the scoring department with twenty-four tallies, over a third of his team's scores. As far as can be determined, he set a new single-game high of nine goals, against Washington and Lee. The defense, which was probably the weakest spot on the squad, still deserves to be cited for its performances against Lehigh, C.C.N.Y., and Navy. All in all, the season may be termed a successful one, with prospects for the future very bright. Kelly loses seven men before the '43 season, Keller, Boone, Miles, McElroy, Siwinski, Kearney and Lucchesi, but has seven stickmen returning.

EVERGREEN ECHOES

5 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK—Ball team halts Hopkins to take second place; Frosh lacrosse squad trims Catonsville High.

The lacrosse boys have come a long way in five years.

10 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK—(News Item)—The Loyola golf team has been playing a steady game this year. So steady that they're practically standing still.

The linksmen have come a longer way in ten years, seems as though. (Cf. news story on State Championship.)

Running With The Hounds

by
JIM McMANUS

THINGS WE WANT TO REMEMBER ABOUT THIS YEAR: Comes the last issue of the year, we can't help but look back over the long parade of sports events at Loyola since last September. . . . Remember that surprising soccer team and how they lost the State Championship to Maryland by a single goal? . . . Remember the inexperienced cross country squad which proved its right to a place on the Loyola sport roster by bringing home the South Atlantic Collegiate trophy? . . . Then there was the basketball team . . . beating Wake Forest by fifteen points . . . and Wake Forest going on to cop third place in the strong Southern Conference. . . . The truly great comeback of big Vic Bock, whose prowess was rewarded with the title of Maryland's outstanding court star . . . and that was the same Vic who had lost all interest in the game as a junior Another regular season M-D crown . . . and sweet revenge in the play-offs against the Green Terrors of Western Maryland, who snatched the trophy from Loyola last year in that wild struggle at Homewood. . . . A beautiful sight to behold was Franny Bock's scoring of twenty-three points against A.U. in the tourney semi-finals . . . What a pity it was that only five Greyhound rooters saw them whip Washington at Chestertown after trailing by sixteen to four midway in the first half. . . . The court squad's first donation to the armed forces in the person of Franny McDonough, as fine a defensive player as Evergreen has seen in many a year. . . . "Lefty" Reitz's masterful method of substitution, which won more than a couple ball games for the Loyola basketballers. . . . We know you recall Loyola's first unbeaten swimming season, starring Jimmy Russell and Hank Steingass, two of the best in the East . . . but you may not know that the fencing team slid over the .500 mark for the first time in several years under the tutelage of alumnus Johnny Gleim . . . or that the Frosh track team took third place in the Southern Conference Freshman indoor mile relay, bowing only to Duke and North Carolina. . . . Sam Brocato's victory over Johnny Eichner in the finals of the Conference rassling tourney will be long remembered by those who saw it. . . . Credit is certainly due Fred Dewberry, whose one-man revival of cheer-leading at Loyola put plenty of pepper into the basket squad.

Then came spring and Loyola's first Mason-Dixon track championship won by basketballer Jim Nouss in the high jump . . . and two track meets held at Evergreen before audiences of bewildered students, many of whom had never witnessed a cinder contest before . . . another green baseball squad for Lefty Reitz, and another remarkable comeback after a disastrous start . . . a freshman infield, which improved with every game . . . a State Championship for the golfers after a year's lapse . . . Charley Pfeil tying for the individual state crown with Baltimore's Eddie Johnston . . . and a lacrosse team minus individual stars but plus spirit, and with a better record than any stick club at Loyola.

Then, of course, there were bound to be

THINGS WE WISH WE COULD FORGET: That Villanova basketball game . . . that Villanova baseball game . . . the basketball refereeing in general . . . injuries to five of Loyola's eight rasslers in the week before the Mason-Dixon Championships . . . twenty-six errors in two successive games for the baseball club . . . Repetti's Wildcats trouncing the Thin Men, 10-4, in the softball loop . . . and that awful, awful "broken-whistle" affair at Mt. St. Mary's . . . not to pass over the unwarranted fold-up of a potentially powerful tennis team . . . or the Hopkins lacrosse game.

All in all, however, the good things far outweigh the bad, and the year is one to be happily remembered. In closing, I suppose we should make some sort of selection for an All-Maryland baseball team or All-American lacrosse squad. However, we are definitely through with sticking out the proverbial neck for the year. Nevertheless, we hate to close the year without some sort of official proclamation, and so we nominate for the LOUDEST VOICED SECOND STRING GOALIE ON THE LOYOLA LACROSSE TEAM: Francis X. (Check On The Right) Kearney.

LOYOLA NINE ENGAGES MOUNTS AND SOLDIERS

Greyhounds Entertain Aberdeen and Mt. St. Mary's In Games Which Highlight June Week Festivities. Soldier Line-up Studded With College Stars.

By Joe Burns

Another baseball season comes to an end at Evergreen when the Greyhound nine engages Mt. St. Mary's and the Aberdeen Soldier's teams on June 3 and 4. These two non-league games will be highlights of the June Week festivities. The Green and Grey tossers hope to close their books with two more victories on the records, which appear alternately good and bad throughout the campaign.

New Faces

The Mountaineer nine which comes to Evergreen will present an entirely different line-up from the one which dropped a 10-4 decision to the Greyhounds earlier in the season. An early graduation brought about the loss of key men on the Mountaineer nine. However, although little is known of their actual strength, the Mounties may be counted on to furnish stiff opposition in this encounter, which will not count in the Conference standings.

Loyola will face much stronger competition when they play the soldiers from Aberdeen. Boasting a line-up which is studded with former college stars, the Soldiers have won their share of games from college teams and have also made a good showing in Twilight Defense League in Baltimore, displaying a smooth fielding, hard-hitting aggregation.

Batting Slump

The inconsistent hitting and fielding of the Greyhounds has been Coach Reitz's main problem throughout the season. Against Hopkins and Villanova the team made one widely scattered hit. In the Georgetown game the willow-wielders showed signs of life, mainly through the efforts of Will Schoeberlein, who garnered four hits and has been the only one to catch hold of the ball of late. Needless to say, when the other ordinarily strong hitters stop pressing at the plate, they will gradually throw off the slump, and lighten the burden on the pitchers. The Hounds are gunning for two more victories to bring the campaign to a successful close.

TITLE PLAYOFFS IN INDOOR LOOP

As the Loyola sports year draws to a close, the stalwarts of the intramural softball loop are the last to hang up their shoes. In the playoffs now nearing their conclusion, Vic Bock's fall champions hold the edge, and are favored to repeat their triumph of last autumn. Worthy of note is the fact that the four teams in the final playoffs represented the entire four classes. Representing the Frosh were Joe Repetti's Wildcats. Besche's Bashers upheld the Sophomore reputation, while the Polish Legion represented the class of '43.

The season was an exciting one, with a particularly close race for the second place spot in League I, where Repetti's Wildcats nosed out the basketball champion Thin Men for the playoff position. The Polish Legion, led by Len Lewandowski, George Baker, and "Let-me-bat-I'll-hit-it" Huesman easily copped the honors in League II.

Biggest disappointment of the campaign was the failure of the supposedly strong Thin Men, who featured Carroll (V-7) Feeley, George (Nip-nip) McManus, and Ed McGraw.

Since this will be the Grand Finale for the Intramural program of the present year let's all try to make it a successful day. There is plenty of opportunity for all you athletes who have kept your running abilities under cover to garner a little glory. It will be all the easier because members of the Track Team are not allowed to participate and will officiate at the meet as starters and timers.

TRACKMEN CLOSE SUCCESSFUL YEAR

It is a track-minded Loyola College that tips its cap to Coach James Gallico, S.J. Popular with every single man on his squad, Coach Gallico, who sprinted to fame on Fordham cinderways, toiled alone to condition the track, dig the pits, have hurdles constructed, and is the spirit of inspiration that will guide his charges to future heights.

nova and Syracuse the young Schwallenberg, Will Schoeberlein, Bobby Nugent and Gil Dunn proved to be most reliable. Along with Schoeberlein, Joe Tewey and Frank Mueller carried the weight of the attack, which was at times explosive. Johnny Fick and Ed Pazourek turned in capable performances on the mound although they never achieved their former brilliance.

Gaining confidence and experience as the season progressed the new freshman infield of Babe

Tournament Triumph

Sweet revenge came to the Greyhound court five, when after plowing through a thirteen-game conference schedule with a lone overtime loss, they downed Western Maryland in the tournament finals, having eliminated Washington College and American University in the early rounds. The final record was eighteen victories and four defeats, fifteen of the wins coming at the hands of conference foes. Vic Bock and Barney Goldberg were named to The Sunpapers' All-Maryland first team, Bernie Thobe and Franny Bock to the second team, and Franny McDonough to the third team.

Spring Sports

Keeping up the good work, the spring teams have made a reputable showing against all classes of opposition, and two more championships have been added to the growing list. The golf team, led by Charles Pfeil, who carded a 157 for thirty-six holes, won the Maryland Collegiate crown by a comfortable margin, and finished the season with two wins and a tie in five dual matches. The lacrosse squad, playing a particularly difficult schedule, managed to win every other tilt in a seven-game card, and set a new Evergreen scoring record of seventy-one goals. The stickmen, paced by Cory Walker and Dick Keller, can be justly proud of their record against non-Maryland teams.

Tennis, Track Records

The tennis team, for reasons known and unknown, has failed to produce and has won only two of eight matches, both against a very weak Catholic University team. The lone bright spot is the fine record of Captain Tom Thaler, who has been defeated only once in four years of intercollegiate competition. The track squad at last received some response from the student body, but lack of material provided a severe handicap, though Jim Nouss, Bob Bachman, and Jim Ball contributed their share of points.

Baseball Season Unfinished

The Greyhound ball team with two games remaining on the schedule, has been on a roller coaster all season, but yet managed to rack up a .667 percentage in the Mason-Dixon Conference to cop the laurels. Ed Pazourek, except for a three-hit effort against Hopkins, has been ineffective all season, though southpaw Johnny Fick has maintained a fairly steady pace. The hitting, led by Bill Schoeberlein, Gus Hennegan, Babe Schwallenberg, and Joe Tewey, has been spotty at times, but good enough on the whole to win the title.

As for schools in her own class, Loyola can boast of a fine record, with 49 victories and only 18 defeats for a .733 percentage. Eight of the eleven intercollegiate teams finished with at least a .500 mark, and though only one was undefeated, each team was not without a victory.

NOW FOR COLLEGE MEN A NEW OFFICERS' TRAINING PLAN

★ New Deferred Service Plan Allows You to Continue Your Education ★

In the skies over America the mightiest air fleet in the history of the world is mobilizing for victory!

So fast is it growing that there is a place here — an urgent need here — for every college man in America who can qualify for Officer's Training.

The U. S. Army Air Forces need Flying Officers and Ground Crew Officers. And many of them must come from the ranks of today's college students — men who make their plans now for the necessary Aviation Cadet training.

Thanks to a newly created Air Force Reserve plan, men of all classes — aged 18 to 26, inclusive — can enlist for immediate service or continue the scholastic work required for graduation before being called to active duty.

You must meet the requirements for physical fitness, of course. In addition, you take a new simplified test to determine your ability to grasp the training. A college man should pass it easily.

$75 A MONTH DURING TRAINING

Those accepted who wish immediate duty will go into training as rapidly as facilities permit. As an Aviation Cadet, you are paid $75 a month, with subsistence, quarters, medical care, uniforms, equipment, traveling expenses.

In 8 months you can win an officer's commission as a bombardier, navigator or pilot — and be well started on your way to serve America and advance yourself in aviation.

MANY BRANCHES OF SERVICE

There are also commissions awarded in ground crew service. College men particularly

THREE ENLISTMENT PLANS FOR COLLEGE MEN

Juniors—Sophomores—Freshmen May Continue Their Education

1. A new plan allows Juniors, Sophomores and Freshmen, aged 18 to 26, inclusive, to enlist in the Air Force Enlisted Reserve and continue their schooling, provided they maintain satisfactory scholastic standings.

All College Men May Enlist for Immediate Service

2. All college students may enlist as privates in the Army Air Forces (unassigned) and serve there until their turns come for Aviation Cadet training.

3. All college students may enlist in the Air Force Enlisted Reserve and wait until they are ordered to report for Aviation Cadet training.

Upon graduation or withdrawal from college, men will be assigned to active duty at a training center as facilities become available.

If the necessity of war demands, the deferred status in the Army Reserve may be terminated at any time by the Secretary of War.

The new Army Air Force Enlisted Reserve Plan is part of an over-all Army Enlisted Reserve Corps program shortly to be announced. This program will provide opportunities for college men to enlist in other branches of the Army on a deferred basis and to continue their education through graduation if a satisfactory standard of work is maintained. In case of necessity the Secretary of War shall determine when they may be called to active duty.

It is understood that men so enlisted will have the opportunity of competing for vacancies in officer's candidate schools.

This plan has been approved in the belief that continuance of education will develop capacities for leadership. (Reserve enlistment will not alter regulations regarding established R.O.T.C. plans.)

will be interested in the requirements for Armaments, Communications, Engineering, Meteorology, Photography. If you have engineering experience your chances of getting a commission are excellent.

This past year about 80% of all Aviation Cadets were commissioned as Second Lieutenants — about 67% as flying officers. Those who do not qualify remain in the Air Forces on an enlisted status and have further opportunities.

As a Second Lieutenant on active duty with the Army Air Forces, your pay ranges from $183 to $245 a month.

ACT AT ONCE

If you want to fight for America, this is where your blows will count.

If you want the best training in the world, and years of solid achievement in aviation — the great career field of the future — this is where you belong. Your place is here — in the Army Air Forces.

If you plan to enlist immediately, start getting your necessary papers ready for the Aviation Cadet Examining Board when it meets in your locality. For complete information, see your Faculty Air Force Advisor. You can take your mental and physical examinations the same day you apply. Get further information now.

NOTE: If you wish to enlist and are under 21, you will need your parents' or guardian's consent. Birth certificates and three letters of recommendation will be required of all applicants. Obtain the forms and send them home today — you can then complete your enlistment before any Aviation Cadet Examining Board.

NAVY SELECTED IN STUDENT POLL

FR. GRADY HEADS SUMMER SCHOOL

Named Director of Fordham Seminar Of Theater Practice; Noted Faculty Under Him.

By Maurice F. Mackey, '44

Father Richard F. Grady, S.J., chairman of the English department and professor of dramatic literature, was recently appointed to the faculty of the Fordham Summer Seminar of Theatre Practice to be held from July 6 to August 14. The purpose of this seminar is to give directors and teachers of the drama a deeper and more practical knowledge of both the ancient and modern traditions of the theatre, and with professional help to work out actual problems of play production. Supplementing the regular program will be: (1) a series of lectures by such members of the professional theatre as: Philip Houston, Florence Reed, Margaret Webster, Walter Kerr and Jo Mielziner; (2) Attendance at a select group of current Broadway plays; (3) visits behind the scenes at plays in action.

Other Faculty Members

Besides Father Grady, the faculty is composed of: Lemuel Ayers, costume designer for Maurice Evans' Macbeth; W. J. C. Corington, designer and stage manager; Helene Pons, one of the country's leading theatrical designers; Frances Pole Sacco, specialist in play direction; and Reginald Lawrence, playwright. Father Grady will lecture during the six week course on: "Catholic Heritage in the Theatre."

Familiar Figure

No one needs an introduction to Father Grady—"I've seen him someplace before"—even the most unobservant student admits. You can hear his name mentioned daily on the campus, by some refugee from the Freshman Latin class, by an English or drama student, and even by some timid soul who slips unchallenged (of a Monday morning) into a large room to enjoy of a little Beethoven or Mozart. In class, Father Grady startles his pupils with incredibly accurate statements on all kinds of subjects. But withal, he doesn't affect to be Kieran, Adams and Levant rolled into one. Loyola students have often heard him say quite frankly: "I don't know, I would have to look it up".

Past Achievements

In three years at Loyola Father Grady has crowded many major accomplishments. Just to mention a few: translating "Cenodoxus"—that would have been a big enough job in itself—but then to produce and help direct it—well, that's Father Grady. His drama students helped him come through last year with a great musical show, entitled: "Your Town". He also originated the Music Appreciation course, and the Thursday afternoon concerts. Besides these activities he has taught Latin, English, religion and drama; he has written book reviews for America; and is now on the staff of the Jesuit Educational Quarterly. To the ordinary observer Father Grady's appointment to the faculty of the Fordham Summer Seminar of Theatre would seem to be quite a milestone in any teacher's life, but when we look at his past accomplishments that event is just another "big job".

Sulfanilimide

The Red Assassin

The story of the discovery of sulfanilamide is an epic of science. In 1908 young Dr. Heinrich Hoerlein, a brilliant chemist went to work at the Bayer plant in Germany. He started his work in dyes and did much in the study of para-amino-benzene-sulfonamide. Later he became head of the drug department and then a director.

But in 1927 Dr. Domagk went to work for Hoerlein to discover a new drug to kill streptococci. Naturally with all the dye formulas of the company at his disposal, he tried many of them, and found one which would serve as a streptococci infection cure. He reported to Hoerlein who immediately told him to say nothing to anyone about the compound. Hoerlein had it tested in a hospital with successful results and soon the chemical which would cure almost anything—prontosil—was heralded as great.

However the French wished to have the use of this drug also. But Hoerlein refused them. The French took samples of prontosil and discovered it to be sulfanilamide with a new and complicated formula, no doubt an attempt to conceal its true identity.

Here, then, the probable explanation of the microbe-killing powers of prontosil. In the body, prontosil breaks down to form sulfanilamide, and it is the latter which actually kills the germs.

At the International Congress of Microbiology at London in 1936, the announcements concerning the first results of prontosil and sulfanilamide considerably excited Doctor Perrin Long of Johns Hopkins. He and his associates performed highly successful experiments with the two chemicals and were soon performing scores of cures of blood poisoning, scarlet fever, impetigo, and even streptococci meningitis. Prontosil and sulfanilamide became widely known after Dr. Long had made use of them to save Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. from streptococcus infection. Prontosil soon faded out of the picture because sulfanilamide is just as effective besides being cheaper and more easily available.

FR. DELANEY, S. J. ADDRESSES GRADS

Rev. Arthur McGonigle, '37 Will Say Baccalaureate Mass. Grads Will Attend Breakfast.

June 7th, at 8:00 A.M., the Rev. Arthur McGonigle, '37, will celebrate the Baccalaureate Mass in the lower church of the Church of Saint Ignatius in downtown Baltimore.

Father John P. Delaney, S.J., founder of The Institute of Social Order, will deliver the address. Father Delaney will be remembered as the guest speaker who gave the fall series of lectures on sociological problems.

Two members of the college faculty, Rev. Thomas J. Higgins, S.J., and Rev. Joseph Donceel, S.J., will act as deacon and sub-deacon. The former is professor of Senior Ethics while the latter is professor of Psychology.

Alumni To Attend

As an innovation, the members of the Loyola Alumni have been invited both to the Mass and the breakfast which will take place this year at the Hotel Stafford. At this function, the graduates will be formally inducted into the Alumni Association. The present status of the graduates necessitates such action since eventual induction into the armed forces faces virtually all men of such training and age. Heretofore, the formal induction has taken place at a special assembly of the alumni.

COMBINED GLEE CLUBS TO PRESENT CONCERT TONIGHT

College And Sectional Societies Will Entertain in Gymnasium; Dancing Follows Program.

Music will be provided for dancing. Loyola's representation in this group concert marks its first active participation in a function of the Association of Maryland Glee Clubs, of which it is a newly enrolled member. It also marks the last appearance of the Loyola Glee Club before the Baccalaureate Mass in June.

GREYHOUND RATED TOPS; BOB HOPE FAVORITE.

Thanks to the splendid co-operation of students and faculty, the first student poll conducted by the staff of THE GREYHOUND has met with surprising success, and the results, having been tabulated, checked and re-checked, are listed below. Altogether, 325 students participated in the voting, and though the seriousness of some of the answers leaves much to be desired, the editors of THE GREYHOUND are grateful to the students for their fine response.

Navy and Daylight Saving

1. Your preference of the armed services: Army, Navy, Marines or Coast Guard?

In answers to this question, the choice of the Navy was predominant, with almost fifty per cent of the ballots cast in its favor. Only among the seniors did the Army hold a very slim margin, while the freshman class, on the other hand, had twice as many preferences for the boys in blue as it did for the soldiers.

RESULT: 1) Navy (154); 2) Army (94); 3) Marines (48); Coast Guard (16).

2. Do you think Baltimore should have daylight saving time during the summer months after the war is over?

The city fathers should pay heed to the younger generation. With a convincing 72% affirmative answer, the question appears to be definitely settled among the students at Loyola.

RESULT: For D.S.T.—226; Against D.S.T.—88.

Dr. Shenton Speaks To Mathematics Society

Members Hear Interesting Talk On Geometric Stereograms

The Math Club of Loyola College, which was finally admitted to the student council last week, just two years after its inception by Mr. Frank Celauro, professor of Mathematics at the college, convened on May 1st, to hear a brief lecture on "Geometric Stereograms", delivered by Dr. Walter F. Shenton, professor of Mathematics at American University.

Geometric stereograms, as Dr. Shenton explained, are pictures designed to give an impression of three dimensions and so facilitate the teaching of solid geometry, where ordinary two dimensional pictures would make it difficult for the student to visualize the figures. They are made, he said, by drawing the figure in two colors in such a manner, that when viewed through colored glasses they will appear to stand up on the paper.

In conjunction with his lecture, Dr. Shenton, who is somewhat of a pioneer in the field of stereography, displayed many stereograms, which he constructed for his own use.

3. Do you think that colleges will be forced to abandon intercollegiate athletics for the duration of the war?

From all appearances, Loyola men intend to carry on, since an overwhelming majority (88%) answer in the negative.

RESULTS: Will Abandon—39; Will not Abandon—280.

4. In your opinion, should physical education be compulsory at Loyola during wartime? permanently?

Despite those creaking joints and aching muscles, the students have handed Athletic Director Emil G. Reitz, Jr., and Swimming Coach Arthur F. Hucht, a heavy vote of confidence.

RESULT: WARTIME—Compulsory 238. Not Compulsory—54.

PERMANENTLY — Compulsory—205; Not Compulsory—108.
Hope and Thomas Win

5. What radio program do you rank as the best in the nation?

Bob Hope's appearance at the Frosh initiation has not been forgotten. Only among the juniors did he fail to get a 2-1 majority.

RESULT: 1) Bob Hope (73); 2) Red Skelton (25); 3) Fred Waring (20).

6. What radio news commentator do you most like? Most dislike?

With every class at Loyola, it's Lowell Thomas by 4-1, and second place to H. V. Kaltenborn. Likewise, flag-waving Walter Winchell sweeps the poll in every year as the least popular, with second spot again going to Kaltenborn. Come, men, let's be consistent.

RESULT: Most popular—Thomas (146); Kaltenborn (30). Least popular—Winchell (50); Kaltenborn (37).

It's Thornhill's Favorite, Too

7. What popular song would you most prefer hearing played by Claude Thornhill at the Junior Prom?

He didn't play it once! or twice! He played it six times!!!! That's right—it's Autumn Nocturne, with Tangerine, Stardust, Moonlight Cocktail, Sylkark, I Don't Want To Walk Without You, I'll Remember You, Jersey Bounce, String of Pearls, and Miss You, following, in the order named.

RESULT: 1) Autumn Nocturne (39); 2) Tangerine (18); 3) Stardust (16).

8. With 10 as a perfect score, how would you grade the following?

Cafeteria—For this, dear Earl, you may blame your fellow seniors, who dragged your score to 4.15, and last place in this group. However, plans are now being formulated for a new college cafeteria with the best of modern facilities.

Athletic Facilities—Good work, Lefty Reitz. Second place to your organization, with a 7.21 rating.

Intramural Program—There's not much room for improvement, Jim McManus, but evidently the majority believe there is. Fourth place, score of 5.71.

The Greyhound—The Winnah! A strong vote of appreciation from the entire student body to George McManus and Co., for a well-done job. Rating of 7.78.

The Quarterly—Another blue ribbon to John Pugh and his staff. Third place, and a score of 7.18.

GEORGE J. MILLER NEW STUDENT HEAD

(Continued from Page 1, Col. 2) Society; he has been on numerous committees for extra-curricular activities and is now a member of his class board of governors. At the present time, he holds an alternate's appointment to West Point. George is an ardent sports fan and a staunch supporter of the Loyola teams; he has a special fondness for basketball, and seldom has missed a game. For the past three years he has played regularly on the J.V. Basketball team, and this year was its representative on the Athletic Board.

These numerous achievements, together with his tireless energy and affable personality, mark Mr. Miller not only as one of the most popular and active Loyola Students, but also as a reliable leader and a true representative whom all will willingly follow.

New President of Athletics

Though the election for President of the Athletic Association was very close, a thoroughly capable sportsman was selected in the person of Frank Mueller. Frank, who is in the science course, won a scholarship to Loyola and came here from City College. Well liked among all the fellows, Frank combines the qualities of an energetic leader with a thorough knowledge of his duties. His familiarity with the Loyola Athletic set-up can hardly be over-emphasized and this is due mainly to his personal participation in sports during the past three years.

Activities

His interests closely parallel those enumerated above of Mr. Miller. He is a member of THE GREYHOUND staff, and like George, is also one of the charter members of the Math Club. They are the only Juniors who expect to write their theses in Math. Frank also has

FROSH DEBATERS BOW TO SENIORS

Kaltenbach and Zacharski Defeat Freshman Representatives In Annual Contest.

The annual prize Debate was held in the College Library on Friday evening, May 8th. The subject of the contest was: "Resolved that the Federal Government should regulate all Labor Unions by Law". Messrs. Kaltenbach and Zacharski of the Senior Class upheld the affirmative, and were opposed by Messrs. Molz and Chart-rand of the Freshman Class. Mr. Thomas J. Thaler, '42, was chairman of the debate. The question capably handled by both sides, and the affirmative was judged the winning team of the evening. Mr. Kaltenbach and Mr. Zacharski were chosen "ex aequo" as the best speakers. The judges of the debate were Mr. J. Powers, Mr. J. Starlings, and Mr. T. Hendricks.

Debate Well Attended

The debaters were chosen at the tryouts held in the first week of April, in which members of both the Bellarmine and Jenkins Debating Societies participated. The debate was one of the best attended functions held at Evergreen this year.

Season Ends

This Prize Debate terminated another highly successful season for the two Societies. They have met some of the outstanding universities in the East, among them Georgetown, Fordham, Princeton, and North Carolina State.

been selected for membership in the Jesuit fraternity, Alpha Sigma Nu. He is enlisted in the Naval Reserve, Class V-7, which leads to an ensign's commission.

Baseball Star

Of course, as we can gather from his new office, Frank is very much interested in sports. His figure is a familiar one on both the basketball court and the baseball diamond. For three years he has been a regular member of the J.V. basketball team and during this same time has been a star player on the Varsity baseball team. Our team's offensive strength is greatly boosted by the powerful slugging of Mueller, and a timely hit from his bat has helped put many a game in Loyola's win column. Our outfielder also is a well-known figure on the softball diamond for the intramural games. His practical knowledge of sports at Loyola should cause Frank to have little difficulty in fulfilling his new duties.

Junior Promenade Judged A Success

Crowning the efforts of a hard-working Junior Prom Committee, one of the largest crowds ever to attend a Loyola dance turned out on Wednesday evening, May 13th, to hear and see Claude Thornhill's colorful aggregation in the gaily decorated Evergreen Gym.

For the first time in many years, this annual affair proved a financial as well as a social success.

Alma Mater Played

The class of '43 was the first in eight years to decorate the gym on their own initiative. The results of their efforts were surprisingly clever. Working on the patriotic theme, the committee constructed a huge red, white and blue "V" as a back drop for the bandstand. Flags, streamers and numerous other original decorations effectively completed the arrangements.

One of the highlights of the Prom was the special arrangement of Alma Mater Loyola by Claude Thornhill, which he played for the first time during the Promenade of the Juniors at midnight.

NEW MEMBERS ADMITTED TO ALPHA SIGMA NU

(Continued from Page 1, Col. 4) McManus, Jr., James K. McManus, George J. Miller, Jr., and Francis J. Mueller. The charter members of the fraternity, who conducted the ceremonies, were Robert J. Bachman, John V. K. Helfrich, Donald J. Schmidt, Thomas J. Thaler, and Casimir M. Zacharski. At present, the seniors are formulating plans for the alumni chapter of the society.

Founded At Marquette

Alpha Sigma Tau (now Alpha Sigma Nu) was founded at Marquette University in 1915 by the Rev. John A. Danihy, S.J. It continued merely as a local organization until 1912, when Creighton University was invited to join and a chapter was installed there on December 18, 1921. William Hebard and Charles Coheen, both of Marquette were appointed as a committee to draw up a form of constitution, which was later proposed to and adopted by the first convention held by the society in Milwaukee, in February 1925. Starting in 1926, conventions have since been held every two years at the various member colleges.

Name Changed

At the 1930 convention in St. Louis, the name was changed to Alpha Sigma Nu because of conflict with a national educational sorority bearing the name Alpha Sigma Tau. Among the Jesuit Universities, where chapters have been established, are Loyola of Chicago, Loyola of New Orleans, Detroit, St. Louis, Creighton and Marquette. Among the colleges are Spring Hill of Alabama, St. Joseph's of Philadelphia and Loyola of Baltimore.

Standards For Membership

Scholarship, loyalty and service are the three standards constituting the basis for election to the society. This organization is an agency which not only purposes to give recognition to these qualities, but is capable of actively assisting their continued development in its members and their advancement both in the college and in the world beyond the campus.

COL. HUGH J. KNERR IS GUEST SPEAKER

Frederic Moore, Correspondent; Faculty Members, Will Speak
On Organized Social, Political and Physical Unity; College Students May Attend.

The tremendous advances in modern aeronautical engineering have reduced to a minimum the time element between the various nations and places on the face of the globe. Nations, taught by the bitter experiences of war, are realizing the need for a unified program of social reconstruction. But such a program, to be successful, must safeguard the rights and privileges of the individual personality.

These three factors form the basis of a School For Adult Citizens which will open at Loyola College, Monday evening, October 19th, and run for six weeks with two fifty-minute lectures each Monday and Wednesday nights constituting the classes. The program of lectures entitled, "Studies In World Unity" will be approached from three different viewpoints.

Father Bunn Will Lecture
The Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S.J., President of Loyola College, will lecture on "Spiritual Unity In The World," and will treat the individual as the ultimate unit in society. In the field of Political Unity, Mr. Frederic Moore, noted diplomat and author, will deal with Trans-Pacific Unity as planned by China and Japan. "Planned Society and Democracy" will be the subject of the lectures given by the Rev. Hugh M. McCarron, S.J., to accompany Mr. Moore's course. Father McCarron is Professor of Literature at Loyola College.

Colonel Hugh J. Knerr, veteran American airman, will speak on "Air Power" as a dominant force in the Physical Unity of the World. "Geography Without Boundaries" will be the title of the

SCIENCE ENROLLMENT LARGEST IN HISTORY

Loyola College opened its doors on Monday, September 14, to one of the largest freshman classes in the history of the college. A total of 151 registered in the freshman class. The present sophomore class lost an appreciable number of students, while the junior class lost the greatest proportion of any class in the school. The total enrollment of the school is now 407 students which is approximately the same as last year.

War Has Effect

The effect of the war on the courses is graphically shown in the number of freshmen who are entering the science courses, since physics and chemistry are vital to the war effort and requirements in some branches of the reserve corps demand courses in these subjects.

This Year's science enrollment is the largest in Loyola's history.

FR. BUNN URGES STUDENT LOYALTY

Mass Formally Opens Scholastic Year; Quarterly Assembly
Held; Honors Given.

"Am I performing my patriotic duty to my country?" This question, a very serious problem for every student, was the theme of the Reverend Edward B. Bunn, S.J., President of Loyola, at the Mass of the Holy Ghost in the gym on Monday, Sept. 28th. The Mass, celebrated by Rev. Thomas P. Ward, S.J., Student Counselor, marked the formal opening of the school year.

Rector Cites Duty

"Performing duty means fulfilling a design, a plan," Fr. Bunn told the assembled student body. "We can display our sense of duty to God by our cooperation with the Holy Ghost in fulfilling the design of the Divine Architect." The Rector exhorted the students to be mindful of their sense of duty to the country, particularly in these distressing times and to share in the Divine Guidance of the Holy Spirit so that they might fulfill their duty with facility, perseverance and joy.

Following the Mass, the Rev.

RESERVE ENLISTMENT BOARD ADDRESSES STUDENT BODY

On Monday, September 21st, the entire student body and faculty assembled in the gymnasium to learn about the various reserve officer training programs. The speakers were a committee of military officers consisting of Major Carl V. Compton, U.S.A.; Lieut. Martin J. Monaghan, U. S. Army Air Corps; Ensign J. Harry Miles, Jr., U.S.N.; Lieut. Warren R. Jones, U. S. Navy Air Corps, and Captain John D. Slaughter, U. S. Marine Corps. Loyola College was the first college in this section to be addressed by this military committee.

College Men Needed

Major Compton impressed upon the students that there is no competition among the several branches of the armed services, but that they are all working as a single unit for victory. He pointed out that the reserve officer training programs in which college students, after enlisting in one of the services, are permitted to complete their college careers before being called to active duty, is not a draft-dodging scheme. Furthermore, Major Compton said: "All college study has a military value and men in the reserve are permitted to continue in college not for their own benefit, but in order that the reserve corps will be benefited, since educated men are needed for officers." However, enlistment in the reserve corps of one of the armed services does not guarantee that a person will be permitted to graduate. If the exigencies of the war so demand, those in the reserve can be called from college at any time.

Many Opportunities In Air Corps

The requirements for enlistment in the reserve corps of either the

Reservists Expect To Be Called Immediately Upon Graduation

It will be "Anchors Aweigh" on January 31, 1943 for Loyola seniors—at least for approximately thirty-five per cent of them. The Navy ranks high with the class of '43 and, a few weeks after Loyola's first mid-term graduation, twenty-seven of them will don the traditional blue and gold.

Twenty-five seniors, out of a class of seventy-seven, are enlisted in the United States Naval Reserve's Class V-7. Upon leaving Loyola they will enter several of the nation's leading universities for four months of intensive training. Successful completion of this course leads to an ensign's commission in the Naval Reserve. Following is the list of seniors in Class V-7 USNR: John M. Burns, Joseph Burns, Thomas Cinnamon, William Clary, Fred Dewberry, James Downey, J. Carroll Feeley, John Fowler, John Galvin, Louis Gibbons, Charles Hemelt, August Hennegan, Francis Kearney,

Grad Tells of Pacific War

LIEUT. C. R. BRODERICK, JR.

A tale of meetings with a former classmate, wounds from flying bomb fragments, chasing Japs and running from them, is the story that Lieut. (j.g.) Charles R. Broderick, U.S.N.R., '39, tells of warfare in the Pacific.

Ignorant Of Wounds

Lieut. Broderick, who was wounded in both legs at Midway, was the officer in charge of the torpedo shop on the Carrier Yorktown. He was responsible for the maintenance, handling and loading of the torpedoes on the planes. In the action off Midway on June 4th, his station was at a gun mount on the flight deck with a crew of eighteen men. In speaking about his wounds, Lieut. Broderick said: "I didn't know that I had been hit until a half an hour after the bomb struck. The bomb splinters had numbed the muscles of my legs and I hadn't felt any pain. When someone told me that I had blood on my pants, I looked down, saw the holes in my legs and almost fainted. I received excellent medical care, suffered no infection and am now as good as new."

Kernan On Enterprise

Lieut. (j.g.) Philip Kernan, U.S.N.R., '39, who is attached to Admiral Halsey's staff, was a classmate of Lieut. Broderick's while at Loyola, and was assigned to the same task force. The two, therefore, met whenever the force was in port and spent many pleasant hours comparing notes. Both men were assigned to carriers — Kernan to the Enterprise, Broderick to the Yorktown. In the raid on the Marshall Islands, the Enterprise rained shells on one of the islands for ten hours from only three miles off

PLAYBOYS

A playboy is defined by Noah Webster as a pleasure-seeking profligate or buffoon.

We meet them in several patterns. Some prefer to appear as cynics, as misanthropes; some as social spotlights; others as pseudo-comedians. Their shades and guises are as numerous as the stars in the sky, but each remains a trifle. Barely is there an institution that a few do not inhabit. Loyola is no exception!

In time of peace, there may have been a place for the playboy. But during this war, city, state and nation depend on men who effect a sense of responsibility; men who will do their job as it ought to be done. The playboys are dirt clogging the wheels of valuable machinery which must produce at maximum speed. More specifically, college playboys are obstacles. These would-be clever individuals should realize that though their company is permitted, appropriate private judgments are formed of them.

Freshmen, then, who hope to continue in college; who hope to acquire wisdom and true principles for life, would do well to learn what a college career involves. Yes, college life is a full-time job. In fact, more than that. For no human being can acquire all the riches of a liberal education in a mere three years. The courses of study and the extra-curricular activities are too numerous, too varied. You could graduate from Loyola College twice and still leave behind more than you've learned. The question for the Freshmen is not: How much education is Loyola College going to give me?, but, how much education am I going to take from Loyola? The answer? Start working. Keep at it for three years.

TIME IS SHORT

No senior has to be reminded that only four months remain of their College Careers. They realize the fact. But the implications!

Four months to—add a note of success to their scholastic records. A short time? And yet, military services and post-war enterprises too, will cast a pleased-eye on college records finished with good scholarship.

Four months to—acquire some of the personal character traits, gained through extra-curricular activity. These activities are a stimulant to study. Each is a miniature portion of the world you will meet outside the walls of Loyola.

Four months to—enjoy the comradeship of their colleagues. On January 31, they will leave Loyola. But by June, there may be some of them in each quarter of the globe, fighting and dying so that democratic spirit might live.

Four months to—become rich in the very essence of your Catholic college education — Catholicism. Lieut. C. R. Broderick, Jr., in a GREYHOUND interview, tells of the months that often go by before a service man, in action, can hear Mass. He tries to communicate to us the unique pleasure experienced when Mass again becomes so convenient at home. We cannot truly appreciate Lieut. Broderick's thoughts and emotions. But we can be morally certain that some seniors will share in the same reborn pleasure of attending Mass.

Viewing the whole picture then, the words of Lawrence C. Gorman, S.J., Dean of Loyola College, are most appropriate for the Seniors during the next four months at Loyola:

"Make every minute count."

News In Brief

William M. Burke, '42, recently reported to the United States Pre-Flight School at the University of Georgia. At the end of three months physical training, he will be sent to one of the Navy's reserve bases for primary flight training. Bill is remembered at Loyola for his work on the Student Council and as an Assistant Editor of THE GREYHOUND.

* * * *

In the future, all assemblies of the students, including Masses and retreats, will be held in Alumni Gymnasium instead of in the Jenkins Library building.

* * * *

Austin J. McGlannan, ex '41, was recently commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the Army Air Force. The coveted pilot's wings were received at Turner Field, an Advanced Flying School in the Southeast Army Air Force Training Center, located at Albany, Georgia. Lieut. McGlannan was recently married to Miss Frances Konicsek.

* * * *

George Wm. McManus, Jr., '43, editor-in-chief of THE GREYHOUND, was commissioned as an Assistant Paymaster in the Navy with rank of Ensign on August 4th. Mr. McManus's probationary commission places him in the supply department.

* * * *

Alfred R. Tandy, '41, is completing his basic flight training at Enid Army Flying School in Oklahoma. Mr. Tandy, whose home is at Fort Worth, Texas, attended Texas Christian University and the University of Minnesota before coming to Loyola.

A day of recollection was conducted at Evergreen by Msgr. Harry A. Quinn, on Sunday, September 27th.

* * * *

William H. Shea, ex, '43, was recently appointed a Naval Aviation Cadet. He received his preliminary flight training at the Naval Reserve Aviation Base in Anacostia, D.C. Upon successful completion of the elimination course late in August, Shea was transferred to the "Annapolis of the Air." There, Cadet Shea will receive his Navy "Wings of Gold" and will be commissioned an Ensign in the Naval Reserve or a Second Lieutenant in the Marine Corps Reserve.

The Reader's Right

(We invite both students and alumni to use THE READER'S RIGHT as a channel for opinions and inquiries—Ed. Note.)

Baltimore, Md.

To The Editor of THE GREYHOUND:

Dear Sir:

News dispatches originating in Washington leave one to believe that the near future will bring legislation calling for the induction of men between the ages of 18 and 20 into the armed forces. Speaking as a member of the class soon to be called, I thought it important to present the young man's side of the question. We are well aware that this war will determine national policies long after we leave and our children are gone. Even further we are more than willing to defend to the best of our ability the nation that has afforded us so much.

In our assumption of this privilege of a citizen, viz., to defend his country against all enemies, it is only logical that the other right should follow. The principle issue is, of course, the right to vote. Some of the more conservative members will smile at the presumption of this declaration. Mothers and fathers will look at their offspring and shake their heads knowingly at the thought of Little Johnny casting a ballot. Why, then, we ask in answer to their rather contemptuous sagacity, did Congress show such concern about preserving the vote for men far from home that they openly violated a fundamental state right?

It is ridiculous to maintain that the army or navy will refuse applicants because they were either young or foolish in civilian life. More than one present believes that the "army will make a man of him." With these thoughts in mind, would it still seem outrageous to relax the present majority age so that when our younger men enter the service they will do so as real citizens with the rights, privileges and duties that being an American entails?

Sincerely,

Robert E. Chartrand, '44

Cold Spring Murmurings

BY GEORGE J. MILLER, JR., '43

During the summer, some Loyola men worked and some spent their time at Aero Acres. The Acres lays claim to the longest lunch hour in the world—7:30 to 4:00. We cite the following incident as an example of the torture that our heroes endured in the employ of ———— (military secret).

One day several ingenious Loyola men had rigged up a way of playing shuffleboard. They had small goals, discs, paddles, everything—even the urge to play. So they did.

The game started at about 11 o'clock. Eventually the clock arrived at 12:00 as it always does one hour after eleven, and the lunch bell clanged noisily. At this, Dr. Celauro, one of the players, threw down his paddle and exclaimed seriously, "Golly, we can't work through lunch."

Then there is the story of the defense worker, who happened upon a conversation about the high salaries that the defense industries are paying. Seeking to give the others the benefit of his intellect, he came out with the following. "Well, now we do get paid good salaries. I have to admit that. But the cost of living is high, too. We have to be paying out almost as fast as it comes in. Why nowadays you break a dollar, and in 2 or 3 days it's gone."

OVERSIGHT

When the Freshmen received their mimeographed copies of the purposes of the various clubs and societies on the campus, the following was left out through a lamentable oversight.

FEELEY SOCIAL CLUB—Lessons in black jack and pool cheerfully given for a nominal fee. No cover, No minimum. Our motto—"Winners learn to lose. Losers learn to lose with a smile."

Unlike most of the clubs at Loyola which are only now beginning to function after the summer vacation, The Feeley Social Club got back into action on the first day of school. They tell me that it even held a few meetings during the summer.

Seniors And Juniors Welcome "Pups"

SENIORS, FROSH HEAR LINTHICUM

Sun Sports Editor and Bill Dyer, Sports Announcer, Guests at Smoker

As their part in welcoming the incoming freshmen last week, the senior class held a smoker in their honor on Wednesday night in the recreation room of the gymnasium. Admission was limited to freshmen and seniors and the turnout from both classes was surprisingly large.

Guest Speakers

Jesse Linthicum, Sports Editor of The Sun, and Bill Dyer, sports announcer of radio stations WCBM and WTH were on hand to address the gathering. Both men emphasized the importance of physical conditioning today for a better life and a better country. Bill Dyer entertained the crowd with accounts of his experiences as baseball announcer in Philadelphia a few years ago.

"Lefty" Reitz congratulated the freshmen on their victory over the sophomores that afternoon in a swimming meet. He reminded them that he was expecting great things from them in athletics, especially because of the accelerated program which will produce a much quicker turnover of athletes at the college.

Open Forum Held

An open forum, which had been suggested by Mr. Linthicum, was then held and all kinds of questions pertaining to sports were fired at the two speakers. They, in turn, answered them as best they could, often giving their personal views.

Following this, refreshments were served. Music for the community singing was furnished by Repetti's Hot Three.

Special credit should be tendered Paul Himler, '45, who came all the way from Westminster, Md., to attend the affair. His action should be a reminder to all freshmen for future activities held at the college.

SEVEN FRESHMEN ELECTED TO EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Will Temporarily Preside Over Frosh Class Activities Until November Elections

Under an arrangement newly inaugurated by the Student Council, a temporary freshman board was elected last Thursday. This board will represent the Freshman class until the regular elections are held during the first week of November. A ballot was issued on which the name of every freshman was listed with the provision that seven men be designated by the voter.

The Student Council stipulated that of the seven highest men on the ballot there be at least one representative from each section. Fortunately such was the case and no change in the balloting was needed. The Board is as follows.

Charles Dailey—BSI
Thomas Daniels—BSII
David Falkenstein—PhB
James Oaster—BSI
Eugene O'Connor—AB
John Philips—BSI

On Friday this board elected Eugene O'Connor as its chairman. In this capacity he will qualify as a temporary member of the Student Council.

Activity Meeting Held For Frosh

Club Presidents Outline Plans For Coming Year At Assembly.

Monday afternoon, September 21st, the one hundred and fifty-one members of the Freshman Class assembled for a series of talks by the Presidents of Loyola's various extra-curricular societies. Before introducing the organizational presidents, Mr. George J. Miller, Jr., President of the Student Council, explained to the Freshmen the purpose of the newly inaugurated Freshman Week exercises, namely, to make the Freshmen feel welcome at Loyola, and to make them realize that they are an integral part of college life and activities. Mr. Miller prefaced the talks of the club presidents by stressing the importance of these societies to those students who want to get the most out of their years in college. "Extra-curricular activities", Mr. Miller stated, "are without a doubt, one half of college life, and the student who does not take an active part in them misses half his education."

Presidents Speak

Following Mr. Miller's brief address, the heads of the various activities explained their clubs, outlining the achievements of the past, and their hopes and plans for the future. Prospective members were advised how and when they could join the clubs. The club executives were unanimous in calling the attention of the Freshmen to the opportunities their groups offered for developing the student as a social being, as well as bringing out his qualities of initiative and leadership.

Sophs Score In Track

At the very beginning of their college course, the Freshman class was introduced to Loyola's sports activities. On Tuesday, September 22, an Athletic Assembly was held in the Gym. On the following Wednesday, a swimming meet was held and on Thursday, a track and field event took place between Freshman and Sophomores.

Sports Talk

At their first athletic meeting, "Lefty" Reitz, Athletic Director, addressed the Frosh and explained to them the ideas and ideals of Loyola's sports. Mr. James Gallico, S.J. explained the benefits derived

Hazing Of 'Pups' Begun By Sophs

After Week Of Grace, Frosh Begin Daily Aztec Dance Around Flag Pole.

The freedom enjoyed by the Freshmen for a full week can be attributed mostly to an innovation, conducted by the Seniors. With the co-operation of Tony Leary, President of the Sophomore Class, the future Greyhounds were allowed a week of grace, in which to acquaint themselves with the activities at Loyola, and the main officers of the activities. The "Pups" were pampered and befriended, even by the Sophomores themselves. At the end of the week they were given a formal reception at the Freshmen Welcoming Dance.

Hazing Underway

The past Monday brought new developments. No longer do the Freshmen address the Sophomores in an informal manner but their names are now prefixed with the title of "Doctor." The Frosh hazing program is now in full swing. Not a strange scene is it to see a "Pup" arise upon request, and amid harsh exhortations recite before a crowd of grinning Sophomores that hallowed eulogy: "You are a Sophomore, gentle and kind, how handsome you are, what a marvelous mind—"

Sophs In Control

Every Sophomore has the privilege to arrest and order the "Pups" to trial.

In addition to these, the more humiliating of the hazing rules, the Freshmen must daily gather about the flag pole, and after an Aztec war dance, pledge their allegiance to their country and the Sophomores.

from participating in track and field events. The meeting was drawn to a close with a group of college cheers and a rendering of the "Alma Mater Song."

Wednesday afternoon found the "PUPS" and Sophs in the swimming pool and the eventual emergence of the Freshmen on the long end of a 47 to 39 score. The probable difficulty of the Sophs was their lack of numbers, for seven swimmers against thirty is a definite handicap. The Sophomores gained revenge on Thursday, when they soundly defeated the Frosh 51 to 39 in a track and field event.

JUNIORS SPONSOR WELCOMING DANCE FOR FRESHMAN CLASS

By Harold A. Molz

"Every dog has his day (or night)" as the old saying goes, and the "Pups" of Loyola College are no exception. For last Friday night, the "Pups" stepped into the limelight (at $1.65 per, in coin of the realm, payable to the Junior Class) at the annual Freshmen Welcoming Dance held in their honor in the gymnasium at Evergreen. The Welcoming Dance, traditionally sponsored by the Juniors, climaxed a week of intensive activity for the Freshmen, highlighted by the Senior-Frosh Smoker and the Sophomore-Freshmen track and swim meets, which events have been recorded for posterity in articles elsewhere on this page.

Over 250 Couples Present

Over two hundred and fifty couples were present at Loyola's first social event of the year, to extend a friendly hand of welcome to the one hundred odd "Pups" and their dates and to pay homage to Terpsichore to the dulcet tones of Michael Greene's Orchestra. Informality was the keynote of the affair (although a special communique from the Student Council prohibited the wearing of slacks or zoot suits).

Freshmen Promenade

A little after eleven o'clock, a fanfare from the brass section accompanied by a roll of drums focused the attention of the dancers upon handsome, sunburned Joseph M. Manzer, President of the Junior Class and Chairman of the Welcoming Dance Committee, who directed the Freshmen in their Promenade. At the conclusion of the Prom, Mr. Manzer turned the microphone over to George J. Miller, Jr., President of the Student Council who introduced the newly elected Chairman of the Freshman Board, Eugene O'Connor.

Waltz Honors Freshmen

Following the election results, the orchestra matched the mellowness of the autumn air with their version of "Sweethearts" for the Freshmen Waltz. The impending threat of hazing at the hands of the tyrannical Sophomores, come Monday, in no way dampened the spirits of the "Pups" and Joy reigned the undisputed Queen of the Ball, until the soft strains of "When Day Is Done" sent the dancers wending their way home—via Sobol's or the "Nibble."

FRESHMEN QUIZZED ON IMPORTANT WAR ISSUES

'Did you come to college to prepare yourself for the post-war world; or to prepare yourself for a branch of the armed services?'

This was the first question put to the new Freshman class by THE GREYHOUND'S Student Poll. The result was rather surprising, as seventy-seven percent said they were readying themselves chiefly for a position in the world after the war. It shows clearly that the new men are accepting the present world conditions and are also thinking of their future. In preparing themselves for post-war life they are including subjects in their regular curriculum which will prepare them for officer training in various branches of the armed service.

Chances For Graduation

'Then, with regard to the war, what do you think of your chances of graduating?'

Six percent were very optimistic, considering their chances excellent, while twelve percent were at the other extreme, thinking them very poor. The majority placed their chances between 'fair' and 'good,' as forty-eight percent voted 'fair' and thirty-four percent 'good.'

'Whether the United Nations should immediately open a second front in Europe, or wait until they are adequately prepared, is a question causing more pro and con comment than any since the start of the war.'

Though the final decision remains in the hands of our war leaders, the opinion of the Freshman class on this question is to wait. Only twenty-eight percent were in favor of an immediate European invasion.

'As for preference of one branch of the armed service to the others.'

The Freshman opinion differs only slightly from the remainder of the college. The upper classmen, in a poll conducted last year, and the Freshmen in this one, rank the Navy first, Army next, Marines third and the Coast Guard last. The Navy, however, dropped off nine percentage points in the Frosh voting, while the Army and Marines gained in popularity.

Selective College Students

'Should college be limited to only better students?'

This question implies that many present-day college students would be more valuable to the country if they were trained immediately for the armed service. And on the other hand, the implication is that it would be a deprivation to the Allied cause if better students were drafted from their college training. The supposition: the better students, after they have been highly trained, will be more valuable than now.

The answer was sixty-five percent against any limitation, while the remaining thirty-five percent voted for selective college training. This is consistent with the results of the first question, in which the majority of the class, claimed they came to college with a view to their future after the war.

'Another question causing widespread controversy is that concerning the drafting of boys, eighteen and nineteen years of age.'

Since the age of the average college Freshman lies within the range, their opinion on the question should be worthy of consideration. As for the Loyola Freshmen, the poll shows sixty-two percent against such a draft unless they be urgently needed.

Frosh, Sophs Split In Dual Meets

FROSH TAKE SWIM MEET; TRACK EVENT TO SOPHS

Individual Frosh Performances Highlight Events Held During Freshman Week. Bruz Dailey And Bill Rathell Lead Swimmers And Cindermen.

TALE OF TWO CLASSES

The two sports events held between Frosh and Sophs last week marked the beginning of a five-sport rivalry between the two lower classes. Still to be held are the football game, the basketball game and the tug o' war. The class to win three of the five events will be declared champion. Should the Frosh emerge victors, hazing will be at an end. However, if the Sophs come out on top—suffer, you Pups, suffer!

Bruz Dailey Carries "Pup" Swimmers To Victory

Sparked by the great performance of Bruz Dailey, a little guy with big ability, the Frosh swimmers captured their meet with the Sophomores last Wednesday by a score of 47 to 39. The points garnered by the "Pups" in the 100 yd. free-style relay gave them their margin of victory.

The story of the defeat lies in the fact that only seven Sophs showed up for the meet, and, in contrast to the enthusiastic gathering of the Freshmen, with over thirty swimmers on hand and a like number of rooters in the stands to cheer them on it could hardly be called a good showing. However, those who did come, performed ably. Among them were Leon Greenbaum, Larry Schmitt, Bob Fahrney and Bob Moser.

Dailey, A Great Prospect

The meet uncovered a fine swimmer in Bruz Dailey who accounted for 13 of his team's 47 points by taking firsts in the 25 and 50 yd. free-style events, second in the 25 yd. back stroke, was a member of the 100 yd. free-style and 75 yd. medley relay teams and although he did not place in the 25 yd. breast stroke, he qualified for the finals and finished fourth. Other Freshmen who showed up well were Art Judge, Jim Oaster, Gene O'Connor, Gordon Mueller and Don Mohler.

A vote of thanks is due to Frank Mueller, President of the Athletic Association and to Hank Steingass for their able handling of the meet.

The results are as follows:

- 25 yd. free-style—Won by Dailey, Freshman; second, Oaster, Freshman; third, Mohler, Freshman.
- 25 yd. back stroke—Won by Greenbaum, Sophomore; second, Dailey, Freshman; third, Cooper, Sophomore.
- 25 yd. breast stroke—Won by Greenbaum, Sophomore; second, Schmitt, Sophomore; third, Clarken, Sophomore.

Team work of Sophs Marks 51-39 Track Triumph

Sparked by a quintet of varsity track veterans, Loyola's Sophomore Class out-gunned a spunky Frosh cinder squad by a 51 to 39 count last Thursday on the Evergreen oval. Freshman Bill Rathell, a consistent medal winner in his prep days at Mt. St. Joe, carried off individual scoring honors as he tallied well over half of his team's total points. Rathell took top laurels in the shot-put, 100 yard dash and discus, while scoring second in the quarter mile and notching off two thirds in high jump and broad jump events.

Clark Paces Sophs

Soph sprinter Dick Clark, who high-balled down Mason-Dixon cinderpaths last season, paced his teammates by knotting thirteen Sophomore points.

Larry Schmitt, current holder of every Loyola hurdle record, easily romped off with a first in the hurdles, added a second in the discus and a third in the half-mile to his string.

Molz Surprises

Surprise of the afternoon came in the form of Harold Molz who cleared the bar at 4' 8" only to be nosed out in the finals of the high-jump. In the only relay event of the afternoon, an all-varsity soph team with Clark starting, McKenny, second, Chesley Daniels, third and Bob Moser anchoring, finished well ahead of their Frosh rivals in the 880-yard relay.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION PROGRAM INAUGURATED

Every Student To Receive Three Hours Of Training Per Week; Athletic Director Emil G. Reitz Will Be Assisted By Members Of Senior Class.

This fall Loyola will inaugurate a program of physical training in answer to the request of leaders of the armed forces. Athletic Director Emil Reitz will assume control with assistants chosen from among the seniors.

Course To Be Intensive

Tentative plans call for the three hour per week course to include calisthenics, intramural competition, an obstacle course similar to the famed Commando type and instructions. The first several weeks will be devoted to "hardening up" exercises which will condition the students for more strenuous activity later in the year. With the students receiving marks as in any other subject, Coach Reitz believes that added incentive will thus be given for the regular attendance at each class. An unusual feature will be the transmission of the names of students over-cut in the subject to the authorities of the various reserves.

The gymnasium will serve for the indoor activity and the athletic field will be used for the sports competition. The obstacle course is an original idea of the director and will consist of an 8-foot scaling wall, a tunnel, hurdles and ropes. The overall length will be some three hundred yards with the students competing against one another as well as time.

Purpose Three-Fold

When interviewed Coach Reitz said, "The need for such a program has been long standing. Due to the present national conditions, we have been considering the probable plans and the tentative program will, we believe, serve a three-fold purpose. First, it will assure the graduation of real Jesuit men, sound in body and mind. Second, it will answer a definite requirement demanded of young men at this time. Third, it will give the individual student opportunity to enjoy excellent recreation and learn new sports which they have never had occasion to learn."

HOUND BOOTERS OPEN WITH JAYS

With Five Regulars Returned And Aided By Freshman Star, Squad Points For Winning Season

Although five of last year's starting eleven did not return to school this fall, nevertheless prospects are bright for another successful soccer season at Loyola. The main difficulty encountered by Director of Athletics Emil G. "Lefty" Reitz, who has taken over the coaching reins this fall, has been in drawing up a representative schedule. Cancellation of all inter-collegiate sports by both State Teachers Col-

LINTHICUM RAPS COURT OFFICIALS

Basketball Referees Trying To Take Game Away From Players, Says Sun Editor

Resuming his campaign against local basketball officials which, along with THE GREYHOUND's sports editor, Jim McManus, he carried on last winter, Jesse A. Linthicum, sports editor of the Baltimore Sun, openly discussed the "problem" last Wednesday evening at the end of his speech at the Senior-Frosh smoker. "The chief difficulty that I find with officiating today is that the officials are attempting to take the game away from the players," Mr. Linthicum stated. "When the action begins to slow down and the referees feel that the spectators have forgotten that they are on the court, you can usually count on a strong whistle blast from one of them. What I can't understand is where they get all the wind they use during the course of a game!"

Sees Good Possibilities

When someone suggested that the colleges might do well to adopt some of the professional rules, Mr. Linthicum enthusiastically agreed and added that the sport "would once more become the great game that it was twenty-five years ago. Throw the ball in and let 'em fight for it. Then everybody except the referees would enjoy the game."

"As for 'crow's nest' officiating, I believe it has great possibilities. It needs only to be given a fair trial here in Baltimore, and I think the fans and players would take to it immediately."

Ultimate Remedy

At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Linthicum was questioned about the theory of "controlled officiating." "The best suggestion that I can offer for controlling the whistle-blowing of the officials," he answered, "is to take them all out and shoot them!"

Sports Opportunities Outlined For Frosh

Freshmen Assemble In Gym To Hear "Lefty" Reitz And Mr. Gallico, S.J.

On Tuesday, September 22, as part of the Freshman Week Program, the incoming "pups" assembled in the gymnasium to become acquainted with Loyola's athletic department. President of the Athletic Association, Frank Mueller, presided over the meeting. Athletic Director "Lefty" Reitz and Mr. Gallico, S.J., track coach, spoke to the students about their departments.

Condition Emphasized

Particular emphasis was placed on the importance of all students keeping in the best of condition during the present situation. For each student to maintain this condition, complete participation in the physical training program and in athletics is essential. Mr. Reitz also explained to the Frosh that his office was open at all times for anyone who cared to come in for advice. Although he demands the respect of all the student body, he stressed that there was to be no formality between the students and Talk as we may of the Loyola spirit, which every student should have, the lamentable fact remains that all too few Loyola men are imbued with a real spirit and loyalty to their school. At meetings last week for the Freshmen, the "pups" were exhorted to find this Loyola spirit and to keep it with them not only through college but in later life. This is as it should be. But how can we expect the Freshmen to find this spirit, if they see no evidences of it among the upper-classmen?

Of the 252 upper-classmen, we feel safe in saying that not more than 100 realize what Loyola can mean to them. To some, it is a place of business, office hours 8:45 'till 2:15. To others, it is a place to which they are sent, quite against their will, by their parents, who "just don't understand about colleges." And to still others, it is a nice enough place, but merely another small day-hop college after all to be apologized for rather than bragged about.

Those are hard words, fellows, but they're true, all too true, and you know it. Why don't you wake up? It's not the school or your fellow-students that you're cheating, it's yourself. You're not showing yourself as a cosmopolite, a man-about-town who is above shouting his head off at a small college basketball game. Rather, you're proving yourself to be very small and very foolish.

Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors who have found the Loyola spirit and who have taken advantage of the opportunities offered at Evergreen are a far happier lot than you could imagine. Seeing their basketball team win the Mason-Dixon championship means just as much to them as a Rose Bowl bid would mean to Fordham. They have school spirit in the real sense, not the gaudy emotion exhibited in Class B football movies or the type flaunted by gold fish-swallowing longhairs.

How, then, do they show this spirit? I'll tell you how. They show it by traveling 100 miles in snow to see their team take a trouncing from a superior Villanova squad. They show it by attending all Loyola-sponsored affairs, whether they care for the attraction or not. They show it by playing intramural sports and keeping themselves in physical trim. And the varsity athletes themselves show it by doing things like last season's baseball team, which walked off with the Conference trophy, after being assigned to the loop cellar by the pre-season dopesters.

No, you don't know what you're missing, you who dash for the No. 11 at 2:15, you who take in a movie when the basketball team has a game, and you who have a parlor date with the girl-friend when there is a dance at Evergreen. Some day, though, you will know what you missed, and you'll feel like kicking yourself where it hurts the most when you realize what you could have had—but didn't!

So how about it, fellows? For your own sake and for the sake of the school, snap out of it and learn how to live. As the boys in the "zoot suits," three-foot key chains and wide-brimmed hats would put it, get hep to yourself, Jackson, get hep!

ANOTHER SPORT ADDED TO 'MURALS

Touch Football Will Replace Softball This Fall. Two Leagues To Be Formed

Football has returned to Loyola! No, not intercollegiate football but touch-football. Announcement has been made by James K. McManus, Commissioner of Intramural Athletics, that touch-football would replace the usual softball program this fall. The commissioner added that he hoped that this change would add variety to the intramural program and also increase student participation.

Leagues To Be Formed

Two leagues will be formed, one for each lunch period. The games will last for thirty minutes and will be played according to touch football rules. Each squad will be composed of eight men (six players and two alternates). Each team will have three men in the line and three in the backfield.

Bowl Game

When the season is completed the champions of both leagues will collide in a titanic BOWL game. The winners will be presented with medals as is the custom to award intramural champions at Loyola. All teams must be handed to the intramural managers. Watch the bulletin boards for schedules.

(Continued from page 4, col. 3) lege of Towson and Frostburg State Teachers College eliminated three games from the card, and the University of Maryland's decision to drop the sport has not eased the situation in any way.

Near State Title

It will be remembered that it was this same Old Liners' team that cost the Greyhounds the state championship last season, scoring in the last minute to take a 1-0 decision.

The Green and Gray defense has suffered the most, since both full-backs, Vic Bock and Frank Price, were graduated in June. Probably the most valuable stalwart on the Loyola squad, center-halfback Len Lewandowski, enlisted in the Navy during the course of the summer, and two promising freshman, Bill Schoberlein and Frank Rostkowski, have dropped out of school.

Veterans Return

However, Ed Pazourek, stellar goal-tender for the past two seasons, will be back at his old post, and right-halfback Tony DiNoto will also be on hand. Barney Goldberg, outside-right, and Harry Chase, outside-left, are expected to retain their regular spots, while the chief scoring threats of Babe Schwalenberg and Joe Repetti are both ready for their return to action. However, a valuable newcomer is to be found in Tommy Murphy, of Mt. St. Joe, who will take over Lewandowski's position.

The tentative schedule, as drawn up by Coach Reitz, is as follows: Oct. 23, Hopkins (A); Oct. 31, Delaware (A); Nov. 7, Virginia (H); Nov. 10, Hopkins (H); Nov. 13, Western Maryland (A)

Where Were You?

Only 98 students participated in intramurals at Loyola last year.

Harriers Begin Practice Early

Jim Hunter and Tom McCall To Captain 1942 Cross Country Team

A veteran Greyhound cross-country squad will begin practice next week under the reins of Mr. James Gallico, S.J. With the most ambitious schedule since the origin of the sport at Evergreen and a nucleus of five veterans around which to build the squad, the coach is looking for the 'Hound harriers to go places this fall.

Hunter and McCall, Co-captains

The order of finish among the Green and Grey hill and dalers in their meets last year was usually Clayton McKenny, Tom McCall, Jim Hunter, Tom Ball and Ches Daniel. These five veterans were consistent point-scorers last fall and they are out to better last year's performances. Much is expected of Gene Wisniewski, former City College harrier, who is out for the squad this year. This stocky senior was an outstanding distance runner in the scholastic ranks. Jim Hunter and Tom McCall will be co-captains of the team this season. Little is known of the ability of the freshman candidates.

Ambitious Schedule

Already meets have been scheduled with Delaware, Hopkins and Westchester for November. Plans are being arranged for a quadrangular meet in Washington with Catholic U., Gallaudet and American U. The most important meets are the Mason-Dixon Conference Championship meet and the Middle Atlantic A. A., the dates of which have not as yet been announced.

Frosh Learn Cheers

Cheerleader Fred Dewberry finished off the meeting by leading the students in the school cheers. A group of seniors and the Glee Club led the Frosh in singing the Alma Mater song. Mr. Gallico, S.J., track coach, stressed the fact that track and field builds character and also keeps students in condition. Men participating in sports at Loyola make social contacts and learn to handle themselves properly among their fellowmen. All sports prepare men for the conflict in which they will eventually become embroiled and helps them prepare for their future after the war.

DOPESTER'S DEN

With fear and trepidation the old Professor steps from the local sports scene into the big time. Here's hoping the Fighting Irish will get us off on the right foot with a slam-bang victory over Georgia Tech. Already mighty titans have fallen before smaller elevens and so many upsets mean sleepless nights for the Prof. Nevertheless, here goes—

FOOTBALL

Georgetown to edge Mississippi
Saturday, October 3
Army over Lafayette
Fordham to nose out Tennessee
Columbia to steamroller Maine
Georgia to romp over Furman
Wisconsin to slip by Marquette
Notre Dame to lick Georgia Tech
Penn to STIFF-en Harvard.

You all remember Bernie Thobe, don't you? The tall, handsome forward on the Greyhound basketball team for the past four years, who was high scorer for the squad in his sophomore and junior years. Well, since last August 22, it's been Lieutenant Bernard G. Thobe, U.S.M.C.R. For, after ten weeks of rigorous training, beginning on June 15, Bernie received his commission as a Second Lieutenant in the Marine Corps Reserve and has since been stationed at Quantico, Virginia, awaiting further orders.

Married Last Month

But that's not all of the story. Less than a month later, on September 19, to be exact, Lieut. Thobe was married to Miss Alice Baesche, whom he had known since his days at Southern High School, at St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church in Brooklyn Park, Maryland.

During his four years here at Evergreen, Bernie was a regular on every Green and Grey quint and in his second and fourth years received mention on The Sun's All-Maryland team. He racked up over 750 points in intercollegiate competition, scoring 226 of them in his sophomore year, with possibly his best game being against Potomac State in 1939 when he racked up twenty-six markers to establish a team record.

Lt. Bernard G. Thobe, U.S.M.C.R.

Awarded Gunnery Medals

A better-than-average student, Bernie was graduated from Loyola last June and left almost immediately for Quantico. During his two months of basic training, he was awarded eight medals for excellence, among which were included awards for bayonet expert, pistol sharpshooting, excellence in machine gun and automatic rifle expert.

It isn't hard for any of us who know him to picture Bernie Thobe as a Marine Corps officer. Aggressive and spirited, yet possessed of the rare gift of keeping his wits under pressure, he will go far in upholding the honor and tradition of the service in which he chose to serve. Save a few Japs for the rest of us, Bernie!

With Seventeenth Summer,¹ Maureen Daly has added another name to the growing list of student novelists who promise to dominate the American literature of the future. The story, drawn perhaps liberally from Miss Daly's own youth, concerns the Morrow family during the summer when one of their four daughters, Angeline, was seventeen. It is a love story, nothing more. But it tells of a love none of us is ever willing to forget—a first love. You will not find it difficult, while turning these pages to inject yourself into the scenes and relive in secret humor your own seventeenth summer. You will recall the first meeting, the shy glances, the embarrassing muteness that accompanied your first adventure in romance. You will thrill again at that first awakening "passion" you called love.

The story is well written from the viewpoint of style. Its languid rhythm is contagious, its atmosphere permeating. However, there are faults that may be found in the work by some who are anxious to criticize, or who are mistaken in their concept of the novel as a literary conveyance. First of all, the book is dangerously heavy with description, which, in the main, adds little to the progress of incidents. But this is no "blood and thunder" novel. There is no violent action to be delayed by these poetic pauses. The story is warm and calm, rambling along at perfect pace to relieve us from the hustle of life; a tale for the long winter evenings when the pleasantness of summer seems so distant.

Then there is the objection of the scientist whose head throbs and heart bleeds at the very thought of an ever-present moon shedding its nightly brilliance over peaceful Fond-du-Lac, week after week for three months at a stretch. But to the romantic novelist how can there be love without a summer moon? There are other complaints, little ones, that can be made against the work. Most of them are insignificant and seem even a bit out of place when leveled against the first novel of a college student.

On the whole Miss Daly evidences a remarkable knowledge of the thoughts and fears of the 'teen-age youngster of her own age—the knowledge of a constant thinker, to some extent an introvert, and an observer of the individual details that merge to form the background for our everyday scenes. Add to this a pleasingly accurate close-up of the file-like surface of family life with here and there, as in the case of Mrs. Morrow's sickness, a suggestion of the steely bond of love that underlies appearance; a dash of the spice of school-girl jealousies; an occasional "coke" in the back booth of the corner drug store; the heavy tones of the juke-box warbler half lost in the undertone of muffled masculine voices and feminine giggles—all clothed in a smooth flow of language, and you have two hours of real entertainment. We recommend this book to all sisterless (and therefore unbiassed) students.

Not a new book is Lin Yutang's Leaf In The Storm,² but one to which our attention can be called anew, now that China's long struggle for existence has suddenly become our struggle too. For it is the pitiable tale, not of a single Chinese girl in one locality, but of the girl in the eastern half of this sad country. You can here witness Tsui Malin's long struggle for a good husband, a family, and security; her conflict between emotions and ideals; and her final happiness which she finds by losing herself in a strange philosophy of life and accepting in marriage the one good man of her acquaintance. It is a sad story—war always is. It is profoundly human; so much so that only those who have reached maturity will appreciate it. And even of these, only those who have been through a heart-breaking experience similar to Malin's will taste the real meat of this novel. Judging from the sheer brilliance of Mr. Yutang's choice of words and expressions in his dialogue, we must conclude that deep in his own life somewhere there must be a tragedy that would form a striking analogy to this story—one that left, like searing scars on the tissues of his own memory, the soft spoken words of a girl who really lived and suffered.

Army, Navy, or Marines, are practically the same as regards general qualifications. Those who enlist as Army flying cadets are given a placement test to determine whether they will be either pilots, bombardiers, or aerial navigators. The ground crew affords ample opportunities for men in meteorology, communications or armament. This branch of the service is of vital importance in the warfare of today, and to quote Lieutenant Monaghan: "Airmen of today will be the heroes of tomorrow."

Naval Reserve Explained

Ensign Miles explained how the Naval Reserve is divided into two general classes, one for special service, the other for general service,

Those enlisting in general service will become line officers. Those students who cannot meet the physical requirements of the general service may enlist in the special service, which consists of various technical posts on shore. The Naval Reserve is divided into three groups, namely, the V-7 for Juniors and Seniors, the V-1 for Freshmen and Sophomores and the V-5 which is the Reserve for the Naval Air Corps. Those who enlist in V-1 are ultimately placed in either V-5 or V-7. After the assembly each officer held personal interviews with those students desiring to obtain further information concerning the various branches of the armed forces.

MANY CHANGES IN LOYOLA FACULTY

New Professors Come To Loyola;
Rev. James Cawley From Phillipine Islands

Students returning to Loyola this autumn were greeted by the most drastic faculty changes in the college in recent years. The reorganization, brought about by the need to staff the newly acquired Scranton University, involved the loss of several of the most brilliant professors here, including the Rev. Richard F. Grady, S.J., and the Rev. Richard B. Schmitt, S.J.

The changes, besides their effect in the classroom, form an entire new picture of the moderators of extra-curricular activities with few positions remaining intact. Among the new faculty members is the Rev. John J. Heenan, S.J., who comes to Loyola to teach for the first time, and brings with him the experience of teaching Apologetics and Sacred Scripture at Woodstock for ten years. Prior to that, he studied Theology at the same seminary, and at the Gregorian University in Rome where he received his doctorate. Asked to comment upon his new assignment, Fr. Heenan said that Loyola certainly presented "beautiful surroundings for the study of Theology."

The Rev. Edward S. Hauber, S.J., now heads the Chemistry Department. This is his second stay at Loyola, where he taught as a scholastic 1930-1932. For the past four and a half years, Fr. Hauber has been doing research work in physiological chemistry at Fordham University, specializing in vitamin B. While there, he took a memorable trip to the Sugar Bowl, as Prefect of Discipline of the victorious Rams. He received an M.A. in the Classics from Boston College and in Chemistry at Holy Cross.

New Greyhound Moderator

The Rev. Paul J. Gibbons has already undertaken his duties as new Moderator of THE GREYHOUND. He is teaching Freshman and Junior English, Public Speaking and moderates Freshman Debating.

The Rev. Joseph K. Drane, S.J., the new Freshman Student Counselor, is teaching Latin, Greek, English and Public Speaking and is Moderator of the Freshman Sodality, The Evergreen Quarterly, the Playshop and the Classics Academy. Fr. Drane, a small man for such a large order, when asked about his plans regarding all these activities, responded with enthusiasm: "I am a native Baltimorean and I would like to show critics that we Baltimoreans can produce as well as, if not better than, anyone else."

The Rev. Matthew G. Sullivan, S.J., who teaches English and Latin, will be Moderator of the Dramatic Society and the Public Speakers' Bureau. He promises an interesting year for the thespians and plans to give all students a chance to show him their abilities with a view to being cast in one of Loyola's productions.

Filipino Priest Here

The Rev. James Cawley, S.J., quiet, unassuming, almost overlooked because of these virtues, teaches Spanish and Mathematics. Fr. Cawley is from the province of Zamboanga in the Philippine Islands and came to the States in 1937. Before that time he was stationed in Manila.

Mr. E. Paul Betowski, S.J., teaches Freshman Mathematics, Elementary French and is Assistant in the Physics Laboratory.

Two Commissioned

Probationary commissions as ensigns in the Naval Reserve Supply Corps have been granted to Leo Doyle and George W. McManus, Jr. Upon graduating they must report to Harvard University for training before being ordered to active duty.

Running second to the Navy is the Army Air Corps with six enlistments from the senior ranks. George D. McManus and William Perkinson have been accepted as members of the air crew. Those working in special branches of the ground crew will be: Frank Horka, meteorology; Dan Lucchesi, communication; Walter Siwinski, armament, and George Baker, unassigned.

Completing the list of seniors who have already enlisted are Bernard Goldberg, who has been accepted by the United States Marine Corps for officer training at Quantico, Va., and Herbert R. O'Connor, Jr., who is enlisted in the Reserve Corps of the Army.

Divinity Student

Among the remaining seniors who have not yet officially signified their military intentions there are thirteen who have not received any draft classification, two are classified in 1A and seventeen in 2A. David Manrodt, who entered Loyola as a Divinity student, will begin his studies at the Lancaster Seminary of the Evangelical and Reformed Synod immediately after graduation.

ALTERATIONS MADE IN CAFETERIA

Wall Paneled In Oak;
New Chairs And Tables

Loyola's cafeteria acquired new dignity during the summer months. From a cold and bare looking room, the designer, Edward J. Storck, has turned the campus eatery into a classy dining hall.

The walls, formerly brick, are now finished in dark oak panel. The tables are of the same coloring as the wall panels, and the new chairs are the latest thing in bentwood. The counter has also taken on a renovated appearance, and the Rev. John M. Jacobs, S.J., tells us that, in the near future, Larry Schmitt's cafe attendants will be mixing milk shakes for their patrons.

Better Food And Service

When asked to comment on the changes that have been made, Father Jacobs expressed the hope that everyone would be pleased with the efforts to make their lunch period a more enjoyable one. He pointed out that since the stagger system has been adopted for lunch hours, the students will get better service. Father's only regret was that he will not be able to obtain enough of everyone's favorite soft drink. Dealers are beginning to ration these beverages, and they will become even more scarce as time passes. Finally, he expressed the desire that all will do their utmost to keep the new cafe clean and respectable.

MUSIC NOTES

Thos. B. Connor, '43

From my own observation here at Loyola during the past three years I have noticed the great lack of interest among the student body concerning good music. Courses in music appreciation have been inaugurated; concerts have been arranged. In each case not more than a handful of students supported such ventures. The school has certainly tried to do its part. Just what is the cause of this lack of interest in fine music?

Before I go any further, may I say that I do not pretend to be an infallible authority on the subject, nor do I claim to have a complete and absolute knowledge of it. I, too, am guilty of some of the faults which will be discussed here.

Lack of Education

I think I can safely state that, for the greater majority here at school, their musical education has been grossly neglected—in most cases through no fault of their own. For the most part their musical tastes run from the popular ballad of the day (which is usually forgotten inside of a month) to a few old melodies cherished because of some sentimental value attached. As for those who have some interest in classical music, their tastes are often absorbed in the honeyed sounds of a great work, rather than in any true appreciation of its musical worth. Now all of this is not to be condemned, since it is, at least, a start in the right direction.

Conquer Antagonism

"The real problem," as R. D. Darrell so clearly explains it (cf. Victor Record Review, Oct. 1941) "is how to enable the novice to conquer his timidity and antagonism toward what is new and strange to him." Such a problem cannot be solved by merely wishing. Again Mr. Darrell reminds us that "a fine start in the right direction is made once the novice resolves to maintain an open-minded curiosity toward all music whose melodiousness is not at first apparent or pleasing to him. Indeed, a fine rule (for every listener, and not merely the novice) is to refuse to pass final judgment on a piece of music until it has been heard often enough to be really familiar."

It has been proven in many schools of music that a knowledge of musical grammar and structure does enable one "to get more out of music." This is further attested to by students who have said that after an analysis of a certain work their attitude toward that piece had changed, and their appreciation for it greatly increased.

Course at Loyola

Here at Loyola a course in music appreciation is about to enter its sixth year. This time the Rev. John G. Hacker, S.J., will conduct the course. It will embrace not only the fundamentals of musical grammar and structure, but also a history of music as well. The weekly recorded concerts will also soon be resumed. As educated men we should grasp at the opportunity of furthering our musical knowledge so that, if we learn nothing else, we may at least be able to talk intelligently on the subject in society.

If it is impossible to take the course offered, one would profit very much by listening to more good music. It is important to note that listening to music requires active co-operation on the part of the hearer, which is more than simply giving ear to melodious sounds.

MILITARY TONE FOR YEARBOOK

Service Flag to Have Prominent Place in Annual; to Appear Soon After Christmas

The senior class has announced that the yearbook will be published shortly after the Christmas holidays. This issue will be more difficult to edit than previous publications because of the accelerated course. It will have a distinctly military theme with a photo of the Loyola "Service Flag" occupying a prominent place.

Dealing not only with the seniors but containing pictures and articles concerning every class and every organization in the school, the new Evergreen will appeal to every student. Pictures will be taken during the week of October 12th.

Commissions for Students

A commission ranging from 10% to 20% for each ad secured for the Evergreen is offered to all students in the school. Ad blanks may be obtained from George J. Miller, Business Manager of the yearbook. Under-graduates are urged to cooperate as much as possible with the staff, and to order their subscriptions early.

BRODERICK RELATES END OF LEXINGTON

(Continued from page 1, col. 5) shore. In Lieut. Broderick's words, "They nearly sunk the island." At Tulagi, it was the Yorktown that performed a similar mission.

Death Of Catholic Chaplains

Lieut. Broderick, who was able to attend Mass only twice from January 6th to the end of June, bemoans the lack of Catholic Chaplains—"In a task force comprised of about 5,000 men, there was only one Catholic Chaplain. This chaplain twice gave the Catholics in our task force general absolution. Outside of this the men are more or less thrown on their own resources in spiritual matters. It sure feels good to get to Mass when we get ashore."

Japanese Good Fighters

The Lieutenant analyzes the Japanese in the following way: "The Japanese are not fanatical—they don't want to die any more than we do. They are good fighting men, however, and should not be underrated. Jap prisoners at Pearl Harbor were surprised at the good treatment they received, evidently having been told to expect the worst at the hands of the Americans. In all the engagements with the Japs that I have been in, they have outnumbered us, but we have come out on top."

Lexington Sinking

According to Lieutenant Broderick, the sinking of the Lexington in the Coral Sea came entirely as a surprise to him. The big ship had been traveling for two or three hours at a speed of twenty-five knots, when Lieutenant Broderick, from his station in the hull of the Yorktown, heard a terrific explosion. It was the Lexington. After this the Yorktown ran from the Japs for two or three days without being really sure of the enemy's location.

Tension Lacking On Yorktown

Generally speaking there was no tension on the Yorktown because the men knew when they were going into battle. The task force, to which Lieutenant Broderick was attached, held gunnery practice almost every day and it is to this fact that the Lieutenant attributes their success in engagements with the enemy.

Student Pictorials

(This is the fourth in a series of word-snapshots of outstanding men of Loyola.)

JAMES K. McMANUS

An all around good fellow—that's Jim McManus—true blue and all Loyola. This amiable fellow, in his three-year stay at Loyola, has acquired a host of friends while making a place for himself in practically every field of extra-curricular activities. Jim has an enviable record, one acquired through an almost boundless energy and wit, plus a remarkably independent mind, that in the past year has served to characterize him as "that radical Sports Editor from Loyola."

Jim, who, by the way, is a fair-haired, good-natured, chubby fellow haunting THE GREYHOUND office night and day, came from Loyola High in 1939, and immediately became associated with THE GREYHOUND, where he rose to his present position as Sports Editor. Taking part in debating as a member of both the Jenkins and Bellarmine Debating Societies and in the Masque and Rapier Dramatic Society, he became president of the latter in his junior year.

Announces Games

Jim has been announcer for all the basketball games for the past two years at Loyola and has developed an excellent technique at the "mike."

As a crowning point to his ambitions, Jim was elected to the presidency of the Senior Class and was later accepted into the membership of the Alpha Sigma Nu, the Jesuit honor fraternity, because of his outstanding record of achievements.

A walking repository of witty sayings, covering every subject from Philadelphia scrapple to local referees, Jim has made his humor a campus tradition. He is remarkably clever master of ceremonies, displaying an incomparable capacity for dinner table repartee.

FRANK J. FEILD

Frank J. Feild, quiet, unassuming and competent, studiously avoids the lime-light but his extra-curricular activities would leave the ordinary student in a state of nervous collapse.

Frank, to begin with, as a member of the BSI section, has been in the Chemistry Club for three years and is now President of that organization and as such is on the Student Council. He is Vice-President of the Senior Sodality, Vice-President of the Senior Class and Office Exchange Manager of THE GREYHOUND. These are merely his Academic activities.

Frank still finds time to engage in intramural sports and although he is not active in Varsity sports, has been manager of the Varsity Baseball team for three years, on the managing staff of the Basketball team for three years and this year finds him the head manager. In addition, any time 'Lefty' wants something done quickly and efficiently he just calls for Frank and then sits back and stops worrying.

Last year Frank received a signal honor by being elected into the Alpha Sigma Nu Fraternity, an honor society in Jesuit schools, for those who are outstanding in studies and activities.

Blond haired, quiet, dependable, Frank has won the admiration and lasting friendship of his fellow students. With a ready smile and a cheery word, Frank is just the man to see early in the morning when things look sort of dreary. In Frank, Freshmen can find a great model for initiative and leadership. To him, we can attribute every trait which goes in the making of a true Loyola gentleman.

Society To Study Military Power

The John Gilmary Shea Historical Society will hold its first meeting on October 6th at 2:30 P.M. Freshmen and other new members will be registered and the constitution and purposes of the Academy will be explained to them. The topic for discussion this year is Military Power, its use and abuse. Special attention will be focused on the various aspects of sea, air and land power.

Rev. Thomas P. Ward, S.J., moderator of the society, will begin the series of bi-weekly lectures with an exposé on "Geopolitics." In view of the present situation, the Academy should hold much interest and, as usual, a hearty invitation is extended to all who may care to attend.

BOOM TOWN BELLE REVEALS HER FORMULA FOR SUCCESS

By Maurice F. Mackey

This is not a front page story—it happens every day. There is a certain newness to it—somehow—an exclusive interview with an ordinary personality. There are thousands of newcomers to Baltimore who could match this story's novelty. Veteran city-dwellers have a general name for them; they are either "hill-billies," "tarheels" or just plain "furriners." Beneath all these appellations, despite their being rated general nuisances—the average newcomer is really a "regular fellow." As a typical example:

An Exclusive Interview

To all appearances she was just another five-and-ten-cent-store girl, selling "cokes" at a small counter—until you heard her story. This was her first day, so she said, and it wasn't so bad. They paid her $12.50 a week and three meals a day... It was closing time; the store was almost empty—a few customers, but none at the soft drink counter. She went on to tell how she had come to Baltimore with another girl from a small town in Pennsylvania, on a railroad ticket and—thirty cents.

"This was the first place I came to for a job. We wanted to get work at Martin's but didn't know anything about the town," she related wistfully.

Formula For Success

A young woman approached the counter, stared at some soft drinks which were immersed in icy water and asked: "Do you have anything to drink?" She was served with a cheery smile and a soft "thank you"—all for a nickel. We got back, after a while, to the new salesgirl's "success story." When asked if she would feel like going back home if things went badly, she answered: "I was feeling pretty bad last night—I wrote a letter to my boy friend—it must have sounded awful. He'll probably be down to get me soon, but I'm not going back. I don't want people to think that I couldn't come here on thirty cents and make good."

Strangers To "Boom Town"

Just a five-and-ten-cent-store girl? Maybe—but not a "hill-billy" or a "furriner." This story is typical of the thousands of men and women who have come to "boom town"—for better things. You can see them crowding the streets of the downtown area every Thursday evening, shopping on the night shift. You can hear them ask at the theatres: "Is there any settin' down space here?" They will take almost any job they can find, from ten dollars a week to as much as seventy or eighty. You can put their life histories in a few words, but when they tell you about it, you would be amazed at their earnestness, at the unique way they have of saying things about themselves—they will make good—even on "thirty cents."

CLUB CONSIDERS GLOBE GEOGRAPHY

International Relations Club Studies Arctic Transportation

The International Relations Club of Loyola College held its initial meeting of the year on Sept. 29th. At this meeting, Dr. Edward A. Doehler, moderator of the club, outlined the plans for the coming season. Subject to the exigencies of the war situation, the club will again send a delegation to the Conference of International Relations Clubs, affiliated with the Carnegie Endowment for Peace. A member of the Loyola group will address the assembly. Definite plans will be announced later. The club also is planning to send a delegation to the Peace Commission of the National Federation of Catholic College Students, which will meet during Easter week.

Emphasis On World Geography

While no definite schedule has as yet been drawn up for the meetings, emphasis this year will be placed on global Geography. An investigation of the possibilities of Arctic transportation and other new developments in the field of transportation will also be carried out.

ALUMNI DOINGS

By Edward A. Doehler, '31

With the opening of the scholastic year, the Alumni Association re-opens its program of activities for the coming season. The actual program for the year must wait upon the election of the officers to be elected at the coming annual meeting, but it is safe to say that the Association will, as in the past, continue to work for the furtherance of friendly and co-operative relationship between the Alumni and the College.

Last year's program witnessed several innovations that have proven highly successful. With the aid of full-time secretarial help, the Alumni files and records have been put in much more practical condition, addresses being checked from time to time so that notices from the Association may reach all members promptly. THE GREYHOUND has been mailed to all members, and through its pages Alumni Doings has attempted to pass on information received from class captains and interested members. Questionnaires to be used in the preparation of a new Alumni Directory were sent to the membership and returns received from a representative number from the majority of the classes. The publication of the results will be the task of the newly elected officers of 1942. The Alumni Retreat of 1941 will long be remembered by all who made it, and particularly by the three Naval Officers who were literally called from chapel to the colors when the news of Pearl Harbor reached Manresa. The Alumni-Graduate Communion Breakfast on Baccalaureate Day proved an enjoyable occasion and the beginning of a worthwhile tradition. The solemn formal induction of graduates into the Association on the same occasion was also well received both by Alumni and graduates. Graduation Day also witnessed the Association present in goodly numbers at the exercises in the gymnasium. It was also the occasion for the annual repetition of the Alumni Reception to the graduates and their parents and friends.

Annual Election Meeting

Today, the Executive Committee of the Alumni Association will meet at Evergreen to make plans for the annual election meeting of the Association. The date under consideration is October 22nd. Due notice of the meeting will be mailed to all members. It is hoped that an unusually large number will be in attendance on the night of the meeting.

Senior Retreat At Manresa

Loyola's annual three day retreat will begin on Monday, November 23rd, with the celebration of Mass in the College gym. Arrangements have been made whereby the Seniors are to make their retreat at Manresa on the Severn, while the undergraduate conferences are scheduled to be held in the gym.

Presiding over the Senior group will be the Reverend Harold V. Folser, S.J., who is at present a professor of Sacred Oratory at Woodstock College.

Retreat Masters Renowned

Fr. Folser, well known as an authority in his subject, was graduated from St. Francis Xavier in New York; taught classes at Fordham University from 1931-35 and was ordained at Woodstock in 1938.

U. S. COLLEGES AID REFUGEES

Foreign Students Make Excellent Records; Pratt Stresses Aid For Anti-Fascists

Due to assistance by the International Student Service, 129 refugee European students were able to attend American colleges and universities during the academic year 1941-42. There were ninety-three colleges participating in the refugee aid program.

Trude W. Pratt, General Secretary of the organization, stated: "More and more American colleges are realizing the vital necessity of aiding anti-fascist students from the war-ravaged countries of Europe. After the war these young people, many of whom will return to their homelands, will play a significant role in the reconstruction effort and in securing a lasting and democratic peace."

Students To Have High Averages

The students placed by I.S.S. made excellent records. In a survey to determine how well they adjusted themselves—it was found that 83 out of 100 students reported on, had won the enthusiastic friendship of their colleges. Of the 70 students rated academically, 67 were above their class average; 49 had won honors.

The I.S.S. in five years of operation has aided 750 students. At the present time it is conducting a drive for scholarships for the year 1942-43. Already 40 scholarships have been received in responses to an appeal written by Dr. Albert Einstein and Dr. Johnson, Chairman of the International Student Service.

Colleges Give Scholarships

Scholarships are solicited from colleges each year, and when the college indicates its willingness to help a refugee, the I.S.S. makes a preliminary selection of candidates, and sends their dossiers to the college's committee on admissions. The college, however, makes the final choice.

Last year '83 out of the 129 students received full scholarships from colleges, covering tuition as well as maintenance, while 46 received only partial scholarships, which were supplemented by cash loans from I.S.S. to cover the balance of expenses. These loans are repayable whenever the students are in a position to do so.

Colleges participating in the past year include: Columbia, University of Missouri, Johns Hopkins University, New York University, Smith, Swarthmore and Wellesley Colleges.

Before assuming the professorship which he now holds, he completed his graduate work at Weston College, Weston, Mass.

The Reverend John P. Delaney, S.J., who last year visited Loyola to deliver the fall lecture series, will preside over the three day undergraduate retreat. Best known as the founder of the Institute of Social Order, Father Delaney has been recognized for his complete understanding of problems of the social nature and directs, through his institute, all schools that deal with factors of social order. A graduate of the Gregorian University in Rome, Father Delaney was mentioned in William L. Shirer's famous Berlin Diary and has gained a reputation as a lecturer through his extensive tours.

course given by Dr. Edward A. Doehler, Chairman of the History Department of Loyola, and this will tie in with Col. Knerr's lectures to give a picture of the present geographical unity of the world, due chiefly to air transportation.

Frederic Moore, Noted Diplomat Serious, soft-spoken Frederic Moore, now residing in the nation's capital, was born in New Orleans in 1877, attended Harvard and in 1900 decided upon the career of a correspondent. Listed in "Who's Who In America" as, at various times correspondent for the New York Times, the London Times, A.P., Reuter's, he served in these capacities in Washington (1900-1901), London (1902), the Balkans (1903-1904), London again in 1905, Morocco (1907), Turkey (1908-1909) and China (1910-1916). In 1917 he was in New York as Managing Editor of Asia. 1919 found Mr. Moore at the Versailles Peace Conference in Paris and the following year he was in Geneva at the League of Nations Assembly. As Adviser to the Japanese Foreign Office, he was in Tokyo from 1921 to 1926, thence to China in 1927 as a correspondent. In 1932-33 he was in Geneva as a member of the Japanese Delegation on the Manchurian question. Mr. Moore has also seen service in military life; was Secretary to General Pershing during the last World War.

Colonel Knerr, Veteran Airman Distinguished, far-sighted Colonel Hugh J. Knerr, was born in 1887, is a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy. During the First World War, he piloted a "Jenny" in France. Following the Armistice, he was assigned by the Army to Hawaii to build an air base, was transferred at its completion to the Coast Artillery by the General Staff. General "Billy" Mitchell restored him to the Air Corps and he became C.O. of the Second Bombardment Group at Langley Field in 1927. From 1931 to 1935, he was Chief of the Field Service Section of the Air Corps and during this time he acted as Executive Officer under General Arnold in the flight of twelve B-10's to Alaska. His retirement from the Army in 1939 ended four years of service as Chief of Staff, Headquarters Air Force.

FR. SULLIVAN NEW LEADER OF DRAMATIC SOCIETY

Despite Graduation Losses Many Veterans Numbered On Roster. Tryouts Will Be Held

Under the direction of their new moderator, Rev. Matthew G. Sullivan, S.J., the Masque and Rapier Dramatic Society expects to enjoy an unusually active season, despite war-time curtailment of extra-curricular activities. Although the Society was hard hit by the graduation of Don Schmidt, Bill Waters, Norm Waltjen and William Burke, an encouraging number of veteran thespians is still listed on the club's roster.

Student Plays To Be Produced

Father Sullivan has not as yet made definite plans for the coming season, but he has promised to continue a tradition at Loyola, by producing two one act plays for Loyola Night in November, as well as a major show similar to "Father Malachy's Miracle." "Should time permit," said Father Sullivan, "we hope to be able to produce a series of one act plays written and produced by the students of Loyola." This latter plan will bring about a greater degree of co-operation between the Play Shop, an organization devoted to the systematic study of dramatics and the Dramatic Society proper.

Tryouts To Be Held

The new moderator intends to use the complete catalogue of information about the society, which was compiled last year by Mr. John Henry Lawton, the retiring director, so that he may avail himself of all data concerning the experience and relative ability of every member. Tryouts for membership in the Masque and Rapier Society will take place at a date to be announced following a reorganization meeting of the society scheduled for next week.

LOYOLA SODALITY NAMES CHAIRMEN TO BEGIN YEAR

Father Ward Emphasizes Two-Fold Motive To Inspire Committee Activities

The first committee meeting of the Loyola College Sodality was held on Friday, September 25, in Fr. Ward's office. The committee chairmen for this year were announced at this meeting. They are as follows: Eugene Miles, '43, Our Lady's Committee, Bernard Muth, '43, the Sanctuary Committee, Charles Hemelt, '43, the Orphanage Committee, Bill Thater, '43, the Social Committee, Jim Noss, '43, the Catholic Action Committee, and John Pugh, '43, the Literary Committee.

Emphasis On Prayer

Stress will be laid this year more than ever on the spiritual activity of the Sodality, according to Fr. Ward. He emphasized the fact that a two-fold motive should now impel the sodalists; the need of their friends already in the service of the nation for the special protection of heaven, and their own need in the very near future when they will take their place in the battle lines.

Active Year Scheduled

Among the activities to be sponsored by the Sodality this year will be the weekly trips to St. Vincent's Orphanage to direct the athletic program and give the boys the benefit of the companionship of older fellows. Likewise the annual distribution of baskets to the poor at Christmas will be continued, assured Fr. Ward, in spite of transportation difficulties. The most promising activity of all is expected to result from the newly formed Sodality Union of which Fr. Ward is Moderator. The first meeting of this organization will be held on October 9, at Notre Dame College.

SENIORS TO DEDICATE ANNUAL TO FR. NORTH

"Loyola men in the armed services" will be the predominant theme of the Evergreen, the Senior Year Book, now in the making. With nearly 35% of the present class already destined for the armed services and many others already in the service, it is only natural that such should be the case. The dedication of the senior annual of '43 is most appropriate.

ately made in behalf of the Rev. Arthur A. North, S.J., now serving abroad as a chaplain in the U.S. Army Air Forces. Fr. North, who was the Student Counselor and Professor of German and Religion until his departure last February, rendered many services to the members of the present senior class. They have chosen to honor him both for his well remembered jovial cooperation here at Loyola, and his present endeavors in behalf of his country.

MUELLER BEGINS "BLOCK-L" CLUB FOR LETTER MEN

What is a President without an organization? Francis J. Mueller, '43, ASN, president of the Athletic Association, asked himself this question, rolled up his sleeves and barged in. Result—Loyola's newest organization—the Block-L Club. Realizing that there are clubs of all kinds to bind together students of common interests in the college, Mr. Mueller set out to unite those students interested in athletics.

Restricted To Athletes

Membership in the newly formed club is restricted to those students who have received a letter, either major or minor, as a member of one of Loyola's inter-collegiate athletic teams. The monthly meetings will be held in the evening in the recreation room of the gym. After a short business meeting, a prominent speaker from the sports world will be featured.

Occasionally, in the place of the regular meetings, dances will be held with music being supplied by recordings or small orchestras. Other mixed socials are a possibility.

ALPHA SIGMA NU ELECTS OFFICERS FOR SCHOOL YEAR

The members of the Loyola College Chapter of the National Jesuit Honor Society, Alpha Sigma Nu, met on Wednesday, October 14th, for the purpose of electing officers. The ballots showed George W. McManus, Jr., A.S.N., to be the new president succeeding Robert J. Bachman, A.S.N., '42. Mr. McManus is editor-in-chief of THE GREYHOUND. George J. Miller, Jr., A.S.N., president of the Student Council, is the new vice-president, Frank J. Feild, A.S.N., secretary, and Charles F. Hemelt, Jr., A.S.N., treasurer. Mr. Feild is best known as general manager of Loyola's athletic teams, while Mr. Hemelt is president of the Mathematics Society. The abbreviation affixed to these names, henceforth signifies the members of the Alpha Sigma Nu Society and will always appear with their names in the same manner as do the abbreviations of degrees.

Threefold Plan Of Action

With regard to the function on the Loyola Campus of the Society, Mr. McManus said, "We want to cultivate at Loyola a keener student interest in Loyola College to the point where it even surpasses

DIPLOMAT OPENS NEW WAR COURSE ON WORLD UNITY

This week, the first four lectures of Loyola College's course for adult citizens, "Studies in World Unity," were given in the Oak Room at Evergreen. The lecturers Monday evening were the Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S.J., President of Loyola College, and Mr. Frederick Moore. Wednesday evening featured the Rev. Hugh M. McCarron, S.J., and Lt. Col. Harold Evans Hartney. Over one hundred persons attended these opening lectures.

Integrated Education

The intention of this school for adult citizens is not merely informative, but educational. The course deals with that subject that demands the attention of all adult Americans today, namely, the closer relations on the globe, in travel, in society, in spirit, friendly and hostile. Places and people in the world draw nearer, in close contact with each other in time, in political and economic planning, in corporate ideals. "Studies in World Unity" break this general subject into three main fields, physical unity, political unity and spiritual unity. Registration is for the entire program as the course is integrated education, not merely a series of interesting lectures.

Fr. Bunn, Mr. Moore, Lecture

The Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S.J., President of Loyola College, gave the opening lecture of the course Monday evening. Fr. Bunn treats various phases of "The Individual As The Ultimate Unity Of Society" in his six lectures. Mr. Frederick Moore, noted diplomat,

LOYOLA BARN DANCE NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

By Frederick L. Dewberry, Jr., '43

Next Friday night is the night! So step aside gates and make way for all the hayseeds from Catonsville and Govans who will be on their way to the Annual Senior Barn Dance in the Ol' Evergreen Barn. Encouraged by the hearty reception given this dance in the past two years, the seniors this year are planning an evening that promises to produce more fun and entertainment than did the two preceding affairs combined. Jim McManus, senior president, has announced that The Townsman will furnish the popular dance music from nine to one, and Hank Ludwig and his Hillbillies have been booked as an added surprise feature.

Zoot Suits Banned

This annual fall affair has become one of the most talked about dances at Loyola because of its strict informality. Saddle shoes, moccasins, sweaters, and slacks will be the order of the day. The only attire that will be strictly banned are bathing suits and shorts. Needless to say, zoot suits are taboo. So everyone from the stately and dignified senior to the bewildered and well-paddled freshman will be searching the family attic this week for that pair of overalls or that battered straw hat. A bandana and corn cob pipe, presented to each couple as they enter, will add the finishing touches to their various apparel.

prominent place on our campus.

Another First For Loyola

The white light, a symbol of the feeling of the Senior Class towards the Navy, was molded of pure copper in Montreal, Canada. It is further significant in that it represents the first time in the history of Loyola that a graduating class has left a gift behind them as a testimony of their devotion to their alma mater.

OUTSTANDING STUDENTS CHOSEN FOR WHO'S WHO

Shown above are the men whose names will soon be published in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Loyola College has been authorized to select the names of ten of its outstanding students for publication in the 1943 edition of Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges. According to the requirements set down by the foundation supporting this student service, only Juniors, Seniors and men in advanced courses are eligible. Those who were selected this year were first nominated by the senior members of the Student Council, voted upon by them, and then the results were finally sanctioned by the faculty. The successful candidates are as follows: Frederick L. Dewberry, Jr., Assistant Editor of THE GREYHOUND; Frank J. Feild, A.S.N., President of the Chemist's Club; Charles F. Hemelt, Jr., A.S.N., President of the Mathematics

JUNIOR PROM

Due to the accelerated curriculum and the mid-term graduation of the senior class, the junior class has announced that the Junior Prom will be held earlier than usual this year. According to Joseph Manzer, Junior President, the traditional date during May will be abandoned, and pending further arrangements Loyola's swankiest social event will be held on either November 27th or December 29th. Negotiations are now being made with several agents for a suitable orchestra. Among the bands mentioned as possibilities are Dick Rogers, Bobby Byrne, Tony Pastor and Hal McIntyre.

The Reader's Right

(Ed. Note—We invite both students and alumni to use THE READER'S RIGHT as a channel for opinions and inquiries. Kindly limit letters to approximately 200 words.)

To the Editor of THE GREYHOUND:
Dear Sir:

I am writing this little epistle in behalf of myself and those who also belong to the "Proletariat" of this school. When I was a freshman I heard all day long that the class should operate as a whole and not as individual "cliques" from each high school. Naturally these "cliques" were prevalent during our freshman year. Along came the sophomore year, the high school "cliques" broke up and new "cliques" of individuals broke out. I, myself, didn't belong to any of them so, therefore, was politely pushed out of all the affairs. In class meetings what I said was quickly pronounced foolish by the leading "clique." Yes, this went on and on; now I am a senior and it is more prevalent today than it was three and one-half years ago. I find it very tempting to mention the names of those who form the leading bureau but think it would be very unethical. These parties of whom I am talking certainly should realize what they are doing and although it is too late for them now they should instill in the minds and hearts of the lower classmen that "cliques" should not be formed as they were formed in our present class. They separate the class and at times bring about unfriendliness. This certainly should not happen in a fine Christian college like ours. In conclusion I would like to thank the editor for publishing this truthful letter in THE GREYHOUND and I ask you who will come after me to avoid and break up "cliques" which are forming now.

Sincerely,
Daniel R. Lucchesi, '43

To the Editor of THE GREYHOUND:
Dear Sir:

In reading the Evergreen Echos in your last edition of THE GREYHOUND, you have:

"10 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK"

"BOSTON COLLEGE DEFEATED LOYOLA
GRIDMEN 20-0"

"SEE WHY WE DROPPED FOOTBALL"

This remark "See why we dropped football?" is a very inaccurate half statement of fact. As a member of that last football team of Loyola, I would like to make a few remarks about why football was dropped at Loyola.

This game, we lost to Boston College was the opening game of the season for Loyola and for Boston College. In fact, the Eagles regarded Loyola so highly that they invited us to be their opponent in the first game in their new stadium. We lost that game 20 to 0, losing in the last quarter to sheer weight of reserves. Now, in the first place, what business did small Loyola have playing one of the leading teams in the country? We suffered several injuries in that game, that kept two of our regulars out for the rest of the season. From that game on, we went on to play a suicide schedule of Catholic University, in their Orange Bowl glory, and Western Maryland, in the day of their Bill Shephard. Against colleges of our own size, we defeated Washington College 7 to 0, tied Mt. St. Mary's 7 to 7, tied Langley Field 0 to 0, and lost to Johns Hopkins 36 to 0.

This record against teams of our own class is certainly not one for which to drop the sport that General MacArthur and Commander Hamilton regard as the greatest sport for the development of manhood. Definitely something was wrong with the Loyola football set-up: giving scholarships to tramp athletes from New England and scheduling football giants of the nation were the two main faults. But, when one has a cold, he should not cure the cold by cutting off his head.

I am certain that Loyola could stage successful seasons against teams like Mt. St. Mary's, Haverford, Randolph-Macon and other teams of the Mason-Dixon Conference, with boys drawn from the true Loyola student body.

Sincerely,
Thomas E. Bracken, '37

News In Brief

Ensign Roberson W. Wilhelm, '41, USNR, who received his commission on Sept. 8th, after completing his training course at the U. S. Naval Academy, is now attending Advanced Diesel Training School at the University of Illinois.

Joseph E. Burton, father of Joseph K. Burton, '44, died at Jamaica, Long Island, October 8th. THE GREYHOUND on behalf of the faculty and student body wishes to extend its deepest sympathy.

William Miley, '40, was commissioned Ensign USNR, on March 14, 1941. He resigned his deck officer rating and changed to the Naval Air Corps, receiving his wings on October 13, 1942. Ensign Miley was married at St. Bernard's Church, on Tuesday, October 20th.

Edwin C. Monmonier, '41, who took the name Brother Hugh, O.S.B., pronounced his simple vows at the conventual Mass, Wednesday, Sept. 30, 1942, at St. Anselm's Priory, Washington, D. C.

Cold Spring Murmurings

By GEORGE J. MILLER, JR., '43

All of the former writers of this column at one time or another in their illustrious careers offered some verse for the edification of those who would take the time. With a view toward continuing the tradition, I combed my mind for ideas (it didn't take long—takes me longer to comb my hair—I do too), until I hit upon this epic of epics, written in iambic monometer and presented now for the first time in printed form:

Deciding against blank verse, I used the rhyming scheme a, a—"as any fool can plainly see."

The artistic depths of this poem will probably be searched for centuries (but they won't find any).

It received the B.O.O.B.Y. PRIZE (Best Or Only Bard Yet) of the Sacred Society of Sagacious Seers, Local No. 7.

PLENTY OF ROOM

The following was deleted from the last issue of THE GREYHOUND:

During the summer, a new system for loaning books to the students was devised. It is very similar to the one used by the Enoch Pratt Library. Each book has a card in the back which is turned in at the desk when a student borrows a text. In the back there is a reference room with study tables and reading lamps.

AFTER THE WAR AND YOU

It is universally conceded that Total Victory requires us to win not only the war, but the peace. And just as everyone must serve, conserve and save in order to win the war, so winning the peace will require intelligent cooperation of everyone in the period of reconstruction. Let's not look at this post-war period as something too distant to necessitate personal preparation now. People specialized in Economics, Polity and Sociology are analyzing and planning now, it is true. But specialists alone don't win wars. And neither can specialists alone successfully achieve the ends of post-war reconstruction. The help of each person will be needed—the laborer, the business man, the lawyer, doctor, educator and clergyman.

Loyola College is now offering an opportunity to understand and to become adaptable to the singular, post-war world-situation. Due to highly developed war-time air transportation, the continents, countries and peoples of the globe will be drawn closer together after the war by the relatively little time that will be requisite for inter-continental travel. It will be a world where geography is without boundaries, wherein will arise social, governmental and religious problems which have had no previous opportunity to unfold in the history of man.

In the School For Adult Citizens, conducted by Loyola College, qualified, interesting and farsighted lecturers are analyzing the post-war world, illustrating problems that will arise, and are presenting the probable solutions to these problems.

WHY CLIQUES?

The college, business office, production plant and the political body—in fact—every human institution houses a certain amount of internal disruption caused by cliques. This disruption in a specific body sometimes assumes the form of a quiet, indifferent and uncooperative attitude by a few toward the end that body seeks to attain. Then periodically, there is an eruption of argumentation. Today, in Loyola College, this perennial quarrel is reaching the peak of active eruption.

Several persons with common interests, working together for the betterment of those interests constitutes a so-called clique. A few assert there should be no cliques. Experience will never vindicate their claim.

In Loyola College, those, who have the common interest of seeing that each Loyola enterprise is wholly successful, will of their nature come together; and the influence of their association will permeate the entire scope of their college life.

There are some who are indifferent. Their indifference lends them a passive unity. And then, this passive unity sometimes awakes in a squabble of criticism against the natural clique which shoulders the burden of decision and promotion in extra-curricular activity.

It is when this eruption occurs that a few of the passive clique take on the cloak of active interest. Then they approach the door of the active clique. But the cloak they wear is transient, and fades away when the passion passes. They are like the waves rolling up on the sandy beach. They roll up—and back down again. They never seem to make the grade.

The tremendous consequence of this phenomena is that the characteristics of these two cliques pervade life. Those of the first group carry with them the predominating characteristic of activity. Those of the second group are marked with indifference.

RIGOROUS SPORT TOUGHENS HOUNDS

Ranger Football, Similar To Rugby, Added To Training Program For Undergrads.

War has come to Loyola! The resounding crashes that are heard in the direction of the athletic field every day are not seismographic tremors but Loyola's Rangers in action. The Rangers, not to be confused with their more famous namesakes, are those members of Coach Lefty Reitz's Physical Training classes who engage in that combination of football, rugby, and mayhem under the very appropriate title of "Ranger Football."

"Nobody gets hurt and it gets them in shape. We needed something to vary the routine of calisthenics, yet rough enough to put the fellows in condition, so we worked this out," said Coach Reitz during the course of a game. Ranger football is an attempt to approach the rigorous training program of the Marine Rangers.

Similar To Rugby

The class is divided into two teams who line up against each other in the center of the gridiron. The football is dropped between the two centers, who scramble in an attempt to gain possession of the ball. One of them comes up with it and is immediately swarmed under by a horde of tacklers. In these pile-ups no holds are barred. Suddenly someone breaks loose from the pile and sets sail for the goal. Whether he scores or not depends on his ability to elude all the opposing tacklers in his path.

As yet there have been few injuries resulting from the game. At the end of the period the combatants trudge wearily to the showers. The next class, regardless of all the aching limbs and bruises, are only too eager to take up where they left off. This is the spirit of the Loyola Rangers!

HICKS ELECTED TO HEAD FROSH DEBATING SOCIETY

National Debating Topic Of Post War Reconstruction Chosen For Years Discussions.

Loyola's only society restricted exclusively to Freshmen, the Jenkins Debating Society, held its first meeting of the year on Thursday, October 1st. In answer to a call by the Rev. Paul J. Gibbons, S.J., nearly twenty freshmen attended. This first meeting was solely for the purpose of organization and the election of officers for the year.

Officers Elected

Officers elected were: James Hicks, President; R. Emmet Hook, Secretary; Gordon O'Keefe, Treasurer; and John J. Kernan, Publicity Director. Father Gibbons will serve as moderator.

As their topic of the year, the society has chosen "Post-War Reconstruction," feeling that this question is one of the most important of the war for college students. A full schedule of debates is being planned with other colleges. "We intend," President Hicks has announced, "to have two or more debates each month with other college freshman debating teams in and around Baltimore, and possibly some debates with out of town colleges also."

Radio Debates Planned

Besides these, the club hopes to appear in debates on the radio, giving the members experience in this type of speaking also.

Student Pictorials

(This is the fifth in a series of word-snapshots of outstanding men of Loyola College.)

John J. Pugh

When we accosted John for an interview for this article, he was just taking off his goggles, muffler, and gauntlets after a harrowing drive in his Model-A up to the college on the hill. The Editor-in-Chief of the Evergreen Quarterly wiped the dust of the road from his eyes, took the bicycle clips from his ankles and muttered, "Huh? An interview? Sure, whadda you want to know?" We explained our mission in short order, and began to jot down the following facts and figures about the scholastic career and exploits of John Joseph Pugh.

In addition to holding the aforementioned office of Editor of the Quarterly, John columns the Book Reviews for THE GREYHOUND; has been on the staff since his sophomore year. Active in Sodality circles, John is chairman of the Liturgy and Literary Committees in the senior group and is a key man on the Social Committee.

(At this point, John paused to light a cigarette that we had offered, pushed back his ruffled, curly hair, grimaced as we remarked about his receding hairline, and then continued.)

Mr. Pugh, we learned, is looking forward to that full gold stripe and star of a Line Officer, USNR, soon after he receives his A.B. degree at Loyola this January.

But at present, a great deal of his time is taken up with the NFCCS. Last Spring he was elected President of the Washington Region, and every so often John hies himself over to the nation's capital on Federation business.

Among his other extra-curricular activities, he lists the Dramatic Society, the Debating Society, the International Relations Club and the History Academy.

John is in his glory at various and sundry conventions, meetings, open forums, round tables et al. and his fame as a spirited and dauntless discussion leader at such affairs has o'er-leaped the bounds of his Alma Mater.

Francis J. Mueller

After we left John Pugh we started a search for Frank Mueller, finally found him over in "Lefty's" office, feet propped up on a desk while he munched an apple and thumbed through his Empirical Psychology text.

We soon found out that Frank was recently selected as one of the ten seniors to be listed in this year's "Who's Who In American Colleges," and that he is a member of the Jesuit Honor Society, "Alpha-Sigma-Nu." Last spring Mr. Mueller was elected President of the Loyola Athletic Association and at present is busy organizing the new Athletics Activities Club. A Varsity Baseball man for three years, "Frannie" has also played J.V. Basketball since his Frosh year. Famed for his prowess on the diamond, Mueller has offers to play pro-ball with Baltimore, Washington and Pittsburgh come graduation; evidences a tendency toward the Baltimore club. But in all probability Frank will be in the Navy line-up soon after February, since he is Class V-7, USNR.

Versatile, serious Frank Mueller is also an honor student; makes the Dean's List regularly. He was awarded the prize for Calculus, ex aequo, in second year, and at present holds the distinction of being top man in his B.S.I. division.

In the field of extra-curricular activities, Frank's name is on the roster of the Math Club, and he holds positions on the Evergreen Year Book and THE GREYHOUND staffs. Mueller is the man who keeps his fingers on the pulse of student opinions on current issues, and publishes his findings in the "Student Poll" section of THE GREYHOUND, which has given him the title of the "Dr. Gallop of Evergreen."

Just then, "Lefty" came in and asked Frank to give him a hand with one of his Physical Training classes. Frank said, "Sure thing, Lef," told us he had about covered everything, said "so long" and headed for the athletic field.

services. Not only is the cover (colored silver and green and embossed with an American eagle and stars) indicative of the dominant military theme, but the page layout as well. The student biography section will have its pictures so arranged that they will converge at the bottom of the page to form the V for victory symbol.

Actual production of the Evergreen of '43 has already passed the half way mark, and it is expected that the book will come off the presses shortly after Christmas. To date, all senior pictures have been taken and most large settings as well, leaving only minor changes to be made in write-ups.

Paul Love, Editor in Chief of the Yearbook, together with his associate editors, Fred Dewberry and George W. McManus praised highly the efficiency of the staff, and is certain that the Evergreen of '43 with its unique military theme will be a representative publication.

MARINE OFFICER ENLISTS STUDENTS

Prospective Officers Are Placed On Inactive Status; Will Train At Quantico.

Captain Slaughter, USMC, paid his second visit to Loyola College last Monday for the purpose of enlisting students in the Marine Corps Reserve. The meeting was held in the faculty room of the Library building. Several students were enlisted.

Inactive Status For Students

Enlistment places the students on an inactive duty status until the completion of their education. However, if the needs of the service should require the Reserve to be called into active duty before the men receive their degrees, six months notice will be given, and the candidates will go directly to Quantico to receive officer's training. Five letters of recommendation are required before the student is accepted. Two of these must be from the president or the dean and another from a member of the faculty. The physical requirements are the same as for the regular Marine Corps.

Commissioned Second Lieutenant

The course of instruction covers a twenty-week period. Ten weeks are spent at Quantico, upon the successful completion of this course the man is commissioned a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps Reserve. The officers then go to a reserve officers school, after which they are assigned to Marine Corps units. The men who fail to make the grade in either course, have their choice of serving as enlisted men in the Marines with an opportunity of rising through the ranks for non-commissioned rank, or receiving their honorable discharge from the service.

One Loyola man has already completed the first ten weeks of the course and been commissioned as a Second Lieutenant. He is Lieut. Bernard G. Thobe, '42, USMCR, who was featured in "Stars in Stripes" in the last issue of THE GREYHOUND.

SODALISTS MEET AT NOTRE DAME

Frank Feild Represents Loyola College As Vice President Of Sodality Union.

On Friday, October 9th, a meeting of the College Sodality Union was held at Notre Dame College. This Union is composed of the sodalities of Mt. St. Agnes, Notre Dame, and the Junior and Senior Sodalties of Loyola. Father Thomas P. Ward, S.J., moderator of the union presided at the meeting. The business of the meeting consisted chiefly in the election of officers. Notre Dame was elected to the presidency, Loyola received the vice-presidency and Mt. St. Agnes was elected to the office of secretary. In place of electing an individual to an office, a school was elected. Then the sodality of the college shall appoint an individual to fulfill the office to which it was elected. Father Ward has announced that Frank Feild, a senior, will assume Loyola's position of vice-president.

Closer Contact Of Sodality

The aim of this union, as propounded at the meeting, is a medium for the exchange of ideas concerning the function and operation of the various branches and committees of the Sodality. It is to bring into closer contact the college sodalists of the city in order that they can discuss and plan modes whereby the sodalists can better fulfill their aims.

A dance was held after the meeting, and refreshments were served. The next meeting is to be held at Mt. St. Agnes on Friday, November 6th.

The sanctuary committee has done well in the matter of serving Mass in the chapel every morning. One of the most active committees in the sodality is the orphanage committee. This committee has been functioning practically since the first day of school. Its primary aim is to help, and act as counselors for the boys at St. Vincent's Orphanage; in addition to this it has also formed a football team at the orphanage.

strongest desire is to offer greater opportunities for the faculty members to work hand in hand with each of the student groups."

The Alpha Sigma Nu Society was founded to honor those students who have distinguished themselves in scholarship, service, and loyalty, and to enable such men to use their abilities to the fullest in bettering the college as a whole. Each year seven men from the Junior Class are selected by the A.S.N. men in the senior class, and the president and dean of the college to become brothers in Alpha Sigma Nu. To be selected a student must be outstanding in both scholastic and extra-curricular activities.

Marquette University was the scene of the beginning of this honor fraternity in 1915. Today the Alpha Sigma Nu is a national organization with chapters in more than three-quarters of the Jesuit colleges and universities in America. Plans to extend the society abroad have been temporarily halted by the war.

Booters Open Today At Homewood

HOUNDS BEGIN THIRD SEASON

Squads To Rely On Offensive Tactics. Two Frosh Stars, Five Vets Spearheads.

Today at Homewood, soccer fans will have their first opportunity of seeing the newest edition of Loyola College booters in action when the squad journeys to Hopkins to open their campaign for Mason-Dixon honors.

Principal activity of early workouts has been the sharpening up of attack with hopes of relying on the offensive tactics which marked last season. Graduation and war manpower needs have swept the slate of the greater portion of veterans who held opposition so effectively in past seasons.

Veterans Returning

What is lacking in quantity is more than recompensed by the quality of such hold-overs as Ed Pazourek, Tony Di Noto, Harry Chase, Joe Repetti and Bob Schwalenburg. "The Paz" has turned in two brilliant seasons at his goal slot and should be just as effective in this season's contests. Tony DiNoto has proved his ability on the defense and needs only support from the opposite post to assure a sturdy stand on enemy thrusts. "Joltin' Joe" Repetti is literally a small package of dynamite and together with "Babe" Schwalenburg on the attack should continue the scoring string which the pair began last year when they led the squad. "Hurry Harry" Chase, although deserted by his partner Goldberg who decided to point for basketball, can be relied on for the outside left post.

Newcomers Look Promising

For the remaining posts, if the talent lives up to pre-season information, the 'Hounds should be ready. Jimmy Libertini as well as two freshman, Murphy and Linz have offered practice sessions that mark them as likely candidates. All three are power-deception booters that had the goalie muttering on numerous occasions during shot practice.

HARRIERS SCHEDULE CONFERENCE FOES

Rated as a major threat for the Mason-Dixon championship, a crack Loyola cross-country squad will swing into action against the Blue Jays of Johns Hopkins next week at Homewood.

Line-Up Power-Laden

The Green and Grey harriers, veterans of only one year of conference competition, have a line-up bright with potential stars. Among last year's varsity hold-overs are: Captain Jim Hunter, consistent point-getter of last season's hill-and-dale tests; Clayton McKenny, soph pacer who was top man for the Greyhounds last year; Jimmy Ball, another top-notch; and Larry Schmitt, converted hurdler, who is shaping up well in the distance event.

Freshman Jerry Courtney, who toured scholastic courses under City College banners last season, appears to be a powerful reinforcement for Coach Gallico's team. The remainder of the squad, although rather green in inter-

GREYHOUND COURTMEN OPPOSE TOP-FLIGHT EASTERN QUINTS

The third war-time basketball team in Loyola's history faces a power-laden twenty-one game schedule, including fourteen league games and seven outside tests of major importance. The official card, an exclusive GREYHOUND release, was announced today by Athletic Director Emil G. Reitz, Jr.

For the first time in recent years, the Greyhounds will open their season away from home, meeting LaSalle in Philadelphia on December fourth, and St. Francis in Brooklyn the following night. LaSalle, always a stiff foe, appears ready for the big time again this year, despite losses to the armed forces and through graduation. St. Francis also stacks up as top-flight competition. A glance at last year's record, which includes several major victories in Madison Square Garden double-headers, stamps the Brooklynites as an objective well worth taking.

Marshall Returns

Returning home, the Green and Grey face Catholic U. and Gallaudet in warm-up conference frays and then take on Marshall College and Villanova, perhaps the strongest squads to be seen at Evergreen this campaign. Veteran Loyola fans will recall the three Marshall teams which wily Cam Henderson brought to Loyola a few seasons back. Featuring Jules Rivlin, an All-American in the minds of many observers, these quintets awed Baltimore fans with their lightning fast attack. Rivlin is gone, but Cam Henderson is still at the helm. This fact in itself guarantees an interesting evening when the Buffaloes storm Evergreen gym. Villanova, the last of the pre-holiday opponents, is as strong as ever under the guidance of colorful Al Severance.

January Card Tough

Six conference tilts and games with St. Francis (this time at home) and Georgetown, feature the calendar for January. American U., Western Maryland, Mt. St. Mary's, Hopkins, Delaware and Catholic U. are all met during this period. These games hold the key to Loyola success in her title defense.

Graduation on the last day of January will shear the Greyhounds of several stand-out performers, a factor which will make the tough February schedule just a little bit tougher. The top tests of this period appear to be the return tiffs with Villanova (still pending), Western Maryland and Mt. St. Mary's, along with two games with Washington College, always a power in the Mason-Dixon circuit.

Looking at the general picture Loyola is in for a hard, strenuous season, possibly the toughest in recent years. Whether Coach "Lefty" Reitz can weld a winning combination from the meager material on hand remains to be seen.

Daily Dozen Dazes Dailey

By Bob Chartrand, '44

"Just like I've been through a saw mill, head first and then upside down." So quoth Freshman Frank Dailey when asked how he felt after a session with "Ol' Lovable Lefty" Reitz, he of the physical training program fame. That said, however, the hapless frosh had nothing but kind words left for Loyola's Athletic Director. "No, I figure it's one of the best parts of the curriculum when taken objectively," a remark that would have done credit to a sophomore before the introduction of Logic into first year. "Besides, it's all part of the job to get in better condition since we are at war."

Offers Unusual Opportunities

Did he think that the course was doing him good? "Yes, even though Mr. Reitz doesn't allow any siestas, it does give me a chance to meet fellows that I otherwise wouldn't and I must say that everyone has been swell so far." The

CAGE TEAM GIRDS TO DEFEND TITLE

Graduation Losses Leave Trio Of Vets As Nucleus Of Squad. Inexperience Keynote.

By Joe Burns, '43

"Uneasy lies the head that bears the crown". So it is with the Loyola Greyhounds, kings of the Mason-Dixon Conference and rulers of the local basketball domain for the past three years. Basketball is the Mr. Big of sports at Evergreen, and the success of the 'Hound cagers is of vital importance to every student. While most fans are just accustoming themselves to the football picture all over the nation, Coach "Lefty" Reitz is busily grooming his squad for the defense of its title.

Outlook Gloomy

"Our team will not be as strong as last year's squad. Most of the boys are inexperienced, but they will develop as the season progresses. We may not win the Championship, but I can guarantee that our team will play interesting basketball", mused the mentor as he put the squad through its paces.

The main problem is to fill the gaping hole caused by the departure of Vic Bock, Bernie Thobe, and Franny McDonough via graduation. For three years the high-scoring Greyhound machine was embodied in the ability of Bock, the cool, smooth, set-shot artist, and Thobe, the unerring pivot man. Franny McDonough was the defensive star and also an excellent playmaker. The loss of these three veterans causes quite a problem. Charley McCollum and Nat Glushakow, experienced shock troops, were expected to fill the bill, but neither returned to school.

Senior Stars

Red-headed Franny Bock will team up with Barney Goldberg to supply Loyola's scoring punch this campaign. The "Carrot-top" came into his own with a rush towards the end of last season and in the playoffs, gaining All-State recognition. Many opposing high scorers spent an uncomfortable night in a futile attempt to break the ice under Franny's close watch. Barney Goldberg, another All-Maryland, is a quick-cutting elusive player,

MEMORY LANE

The season debut of Loyola's first war-time soccer team this afternoon calls back memories of another group of Greyhound booters—Loyola's first soccer eleven.

It was two years ago this month that a motley group of basketball players and kids who liked to play soccer but had little experience took to the field at Towson State Teachers' College. The Teachers, woefully weak in all other sports, took great pride in their soccer team, which had won the State Championship the previous season. A crowd of about 500 was on hand to cheer the nattily uniformed pedagogues as they trotted from their dressing-room. At this point, the Loyola boys began to feel a bit out of place. For uniforms, they wore a variety of basketball shorts and some green "T-shirts" which "Lefty" happened to have on hand for basketball practice. As the Teachers ran through a snappy practice routine, the Greyhounds kicked the ball around as best they could. In the eye of every Towsonite, from sage coach Don Minnegan to the giddiest female freshman, could be seen an almost sadistic gleam of delight at the prospect of soundly thrashing those "Charles Street bullies," who used the Teacher basketball squad for warm-up foes each December.

"Lefty" Reitz, who had been drafted as coach despite the fact that he admittedly knew little or nothing about the game, sat on the bench attempting to look very wise, elbow on knee, chin in hand. Huddled about him were three or four substitutes and a group of about ten students who had followed the team from Evergreen. The outlook (to put it mildly) was very glum indeed.

The game started. Screams of encouragement shattered the quiet county afternoon. Roll 'em up, Teachers! Show 'em no mercy! Vic Bock, a great basketball player playing his first soccer game, ran to the side-lines and whispered to Coach Reitz, "Hey, Left! I don't know whether I'm allowed to cross that center-line or not. What should I do?" "Lefty" after a bewildered moment of silence, threw his hands in the air and shouted, "I don't know! Kick the d—n ball!"

After a shaky start, however, things began to look up a bit. The Loyola defense tightened, gained confidence and suddenly found themselves doing a pretty good job. The first quarter ended and the score still stood at 0-0. In the second stanza, the 'Hounds picked up even more and by the end of the half were beginning to make a few offensive gestures. Half-time score—Towson 0, Loyola 0.

The second half started amid screams for Greyhound blood by the somewhat annoyed Towson rooters. Come on, Johnny Shock, let's go! Wake up, Teachers, wake up! But the Teachers evidently didn't hear their partisans, for they didn't wake up. As a matter of fact, they began to look like a gathering of somnambulists (Eng. trans.: sleep-walkers) by the time the fourth quarter got under way. The score was still 0-0, and a gleeful pack of Greyhounds was descending with a vengeance on the surprised home-team goalie. Unsettled as he was, however, he managed to get in front of the ball each time the blood-thirsty 'Hounds sent it sailing at him. With less than five minutes to play, a screaming boot from sidefield just barely missed the goal, and rolled into the path of a No. 8 street-car on the York Rd.

Though the final gun had not gone off, the Teachers were a beaten crew. The torn, deflated soccer ball lying on the track as the old No. 8 swayed down the road just about typified the mental state of the bewildered champions. The fact that the game ended in a scoreless tie after two extra periods was an anti-climax. The game was won, morally at least, and a weary but happy Greyhound team trudged to the showers.

Next morning, Loyola partisans smiled complacently as they read, "GREEN LOYOLA TEAM TIES CHAMPION TEACHERS." A new sport had been established at Evergreen.

CORPSES, BRUISERS TOP 'MURAL LEAGUES

Still in the rudimentary stages, Loyola's newest addition to the extensive list of intramural sports, touch football, is fast catching a foothold. The idea is the brain-child of Jim McManus, Commissioner of Intramural Athletics, and has met with surprising success, especially among the underclassmen.

Bad Weather Holds Up Play

Due to the inclement weather which persisted last week, only a smattering of games have been played, with Connor's Corpses ruling the roost in the Frosh-Soph circuit, and Baker's Bruisers holding sway in the Junior-Senior loop.

CAGE TEAM GRIDS TO DEFEND TITLE

(Continued from page 4, col. 5) whose forte is dumping them in. Goldberg is the spark of the team. Tall Jimmy Nouss is a very strong defensive player and continues to improve his accuracy for the basket with each other game. Though these three proven players are subject to a late January graduation, they form the nucleus for the squad and can help the others for the future.

Two Vacancies

A wide open fight is in progress for the two vacant positions. Joe Repetti, who saw some action with the varsity last year, and Izzy Trovato are leading candidates. Both are fast and fairly good shots, but they are handicapped by their lack of height. Paul Sowa, Joe Huesman and Frank Mueller, who showed promise with last year's "B" squad may break into the picture. At present the Freshmen candidates are an unknown quantity and just as green. O'Connor, Galvin, Saltysak and Carmody stand out among them.

reference was, no doubt, to the profuse apologies that follow a collision during one of those games that Coach Reitz refers to as rugby. Just for the record, our subject, Frank Dailey, is an Arts student who graduated from Loyola High last June who confidentially remarked that "those seniors are a bit easier on us than Mr. Reitz but they like to talk a lot more. I guess I'll understand when I am a little older." A sagelike statement for a Pup. What exactly did he think were the benefits from the work-outs? "Well, it seems that there is quite a bit of spirit developed besides being good recreation. It also gives anyone opportunity to equip himself physically for anything that the country may need in the way of trained man-power."

Companion Interposes Remark

After four classes did he notice any change for the better in his achievement of physical condition? "Yes, sir," realizing for the first time that he addressed a fearsome sophomore, "I feel like fighting my weight in wildcats after a period of physical training now." A bystander suddenly stirred to life chanced to mutter excitedly in our hearing, "Yes but that Mr. Reitz is a slave-driver on those calisthenics. I barely made the No. 11 yesterday." Silenced, friend Dailey continued, "I know it's doing lots of good anyway." Rather encouraging, eh Coach?

Stars In Stripes

by
Ed McGraw

The second of this series about former Loyola athletes now in the armed forces is concerned with one of the young men partially responsible for the active revival and present status of lacrosse as one of Loyola's five major sports. Ensign Noah Walker, USNR, brother of two present Loyola lacrosse stalwarts, Cory and Henry Walker, and a former sports editor of THE GREYHOUND had been closely associated with the game while a high-school player at Baltimore City College, and in 1938, along with a small but determined group of lacrosse-minded students set out to establish the sport on a firm footing at Evergreen.

All-American Selection

Noah Walker started the Virginia game that year, and until his final game against Navy three years later held down a regular spot on the Green and Gray ten. The peak of his performance came in 1940, when after playing in the All-Star game for the second straight year, he was selected on the second team of the All-American squad, the first Loyola athlete to receive such an honor. Again in 1941, he was a member of the South's All-star team. In addition to his lacrosse activities he was active in intramural sports, and in his senior year was a member of the interclass basketball championship team.

Begins Flight Training

Late in the summer of 1941, after his graduation from Loyola, he reported to the Navy Reserve Air Base at Anacostia for elimination training and successfully completed the course in November. From there he moved to the U. S. Naval Air Station at Jacksonville, Florida, where his flight training included courses in celestial navigation, gunnery and aerology, supplementing many hours of dual, solo and formation flying. Last June he won his Navy wings and commission as a Naval flying officer and was commended by Capt. John Dale Price, commandant of the Jacksonville base.

—Official U.S. Navy photograph

Letter to Team

Noah Walker is now on duty at Banana River, Florida on a mission that remains a military secret and nothing could be more fitting as a conclusion to this piece than his own words taken from a letter to the Loyola lacrosse team while he was still an aviation cadet, and printed in THE GREYHOUND of April 24, 1942:

"... When you're on that field your opponents are your enemies; so don't ease up until that ball game is over and you've won it. There's only one thing that matters on the field and that's victory. This may sound like a lot of sentimental bunk but believe me, it's the truth..."

With a spirit like that he's one Loyola man we can bank on to "Keep 'em flying!"

HARRIERS SCHEDULE CONFERENCE FOES

Five Meets Carded

A tentative schedule, as yet incomplete, appears to be a rugged test for the Evergreen runners, who romped off with the South Atlantic team title in their rookie year. Manager Bob Martin reports that he has carded tilts with West Chester Teachers, Hopkins, Delaware, and possibly Gallaudet and American University. Post-season meets will include the South Atlantic event and the Mason-Dixon tourney.

ALUMNI DOINGS

BY EDWARD A. DOEHLER, '31

Since the last listing of service men given in these columns, many members of the Alumni Association have joined the various branches and are today training or fighting in all quarters of the globe. Many more are known to be on the verge of induction, or have made application for enlistment and commissions in the different services. As further information is obtained about these they will be listed in future Alumni Doings.

DIPLOMAT OPENS NEW WAR COURSE ON WORLD UNITY

correspondent, author and lecturer, recently returned from Japan where he was American Advisor to the Japanese Foreign Office until Pearl Harbor. Mr. Moore, who knows the Orient inside and out, especially China and Japan, talked on "The Emperor of Japan and the Men About the Throne." This was a portrayal of how the "Imperial Will" is shaped by the military clique.

"Planned Society In Democracy" was the subject of Father Hugh M. McCarron's lecture Wednesday night. Father McCarron is Professor of Literature at Loyola. Col. Hugh Knerr, scheduled to appear, was summoned to active service and his place was ably filled by Lt. Colonel Harold Evans Hartney. Dr. Edward A. Doehler, Professor of History, lectured on "Geography Without Boundaries."

Next week's lecturers will be Father Bunn on Monday, Col. Hartney, Monday and Wednesday, and Fr. McCarron, Wednesday. Loyola students have enrolled in the course, not in their capacity as undergraduates, but in the role of present and future citizens.

LAND POWER IS TOPIC OF HISTORY ACADEMY MEETING

Chartrand Reviews Book Treating Geopolitics; Molz To Comment On Mahan's Views On Sea Power.

The second meeting of the History Academy was held on Tuesday, October 20th. Geopolitical problems were presented by the moderator and a lively discussion followed. Robert Chartrand, '44, reviewed Strauss-Hupe's book entitled Geopolitics and pointed out that the Nazi use of this new science is really an attempt to rationalize and justify their claims to world dominion. The present German drive against Russia has for its aim the complete control of the "Heartland," that vast region, rich in economic metals, which extends to the Amur river in Siberia. The nation that controls the "Heartland" controls the World island and the World island controls the world.

Molz To Speak

At the next meeting Mahan's book "The Influence of Sea Power on History" will be reviewed by Harold Molz, '44. An interesting discussion is expected since sea power is so vital a factor in the war of today.

A.R.P. CLASSES AT NOTRE DAME

At the request of the Official Air Raid Headquarters a number of Loyola students began a series of courses last Monday evening at Notre Dame College. The courses will train students for the duties of Official Wardens, Fire Watchers and Messengers. Classes are held on Mondays and Wednesdays from 7 till 9 P.M. At the completion of the six week course the students will be on duty while they are on the campus.

FRESHMEN SHOW PROMISE AS ACTIVITY CONSCIOUS "PUPS"

By Maurice F. Mackey

There was the green and gray "pup" cap and the green bow tie—and he was studying. "I am a freshman dirty and low . . ." He wasn't very dirty or low down either, though the sophomores would dispute that statement. A huge pile of books lay on the desk before him, some opened, some closed; he had chosen the best place on the campus for study—the reference room of the library. A quick smile erased the frown with which he was regarding his work, as he acknowledged our greeting. We got to talking about what he thought of Loyola and why he had come here. His story was what you might have heard from hundreds of Loyola freshmen—year after year:

"I had some queer ideas about Loyola before I came here," he related. "Because I had always thought of college in terms of Notre Dame, Minnesota or Ohio State, Loyola seemed to be just another 'jerkwater school' where you handed out your money and 'got educated.'"

We were interrupted at this point by a sudden torrent of oratory from a group of sophomores nearby. We heard Miss Lee's swift step coming toward us; so did they and were promptly silent. The lad in the green "pup" cap went on to tell how he had always wanted to study medicine, that the war hadn't changed his plans any.

"Sure I'd like to finish college—I'd like to go to war as a medical man but it won't be so bad if I have to go before I graduate; the 'other guy' can't win the war alone, and he can't wait a couple of years for me, either."

When asked what he found especially good at Loyola he replied: "The way the teachers, all of them, take an interest in the students. I'm not so good at math but I found that the teacher would be glad to help me any time. I used to think that all a college professor did for a student was: come into class, lecture for an hour and walk out."

Loyola's upperclassmen made an excellent impression on this newcomer: "I don't feel like a stranger at all; why I've been invited to every club and activity in the school."

An ideal freshman—a rare find? We like to think that there are lots of freshmen who have the same opinions about Loyola, who show in their first days at Evergreen a school spirit that is bound to last. Already they have joined many of the school's various clubs and societies in great numbers. The interest and ability is there—they are assured of upper class cooperation — they should succeed! It is not difficult to notice that the "pups" are beginning to look a little like the "Hounds" we all want to see.

Whether they're studying in the library with a huge pile of books before them, or playing pool in the "rec" room, or being "hazed" all over town, the "pups" are anxious to make good at Loyola. They like the place, the teachers, their upper-class mates; you can see a certain earnestness in the way they do things. All they need is to be "understood."

"You'll experience That Extra Something!"

"Coca-Cola is the answer to thirst that adds refreshment. Your own experience tells you just what to expect. Ice-cold Coke has the happy knack of making thirst a minor matter...refreshment your foremost feeling."

"And your own experience will prove this fact: The only thing like Coca-Cola is Coca-Cola itself."

BOOK REVIEWS

By John J. Pugh, '43

I fled him, down the nights and down the days;
... and a Voice beat
"All things betray thee, who betrayest Me."¹

Poised high on a rocky hill, with the wind wildly whipping her dress, Lizzie St. John, the girl, would have laughed derisively had even a whisper of these words touched her ears. Why not? She was the daughter of Maria Monk! Years later on the same mountain, Elsa St. John Eckel, the woman, felt them too strongly to express. This is the story told to John Louis Bonn, S.J., by friends and acquaintances of the St. John's, by Elsa herself in her autobiography, and retold by Fr. Bonn in his latest novel, And Down the Days.²

The opening chapters concern the childhood and youth of Lizzie, haunted by the name, "Maria Monk," and the tragedy of a drunken mother who is famous as the authoress of the "Awful Disclosures" concerning life in the convent, a patient but broken father, an illegitimate sister, and the crowning mockery of all in such a household—a babe in arms. The family is shattered abruptly when Mrs. Maria Monk St. John attempts her own life and those of her three children. Elsa never forgets her last sight of her mother, a reeling drunken target for the numbly cutting pebbles of the neighborhood rowdies. In such an atmosphere is born her dreams of greatness and court life which lead her on over the stepping stones of the American Civil War and marriage to an ambassador, to presentation at the court of Napoleon III. The remainder of the story exposes the mental turmoil and doubts accompanying her subsequent decline, ending ultimately in her reception into the Church and return to America.

To the words "related in novel form" which occur on the front flap of this book might be added "yet not a novel." For, try as you will, it is almost impossible except at rare intervals to feel with Fr. Bonn's characters. Perhaps the reason for this is to be found in the real life persons whom he undertakes to portray. We cannot say. It is quite disappointing, however, to read a story in which you are left completely unmoved either towards or against the leading character, as you are certainly not moved towards or against Madame Eckel. Of the supporting cast Maria Monk is hateful. Howland Prentiss distasteful, and Laferriere lovable. The remainder are lost in the background as they are in most works of a biographical nature.

As a biography, then, this book rates well above the average for the scattered masterful passages such as in Part III, Chap. 3 and at the end of Part IV, Chap. 4, for the clever attention to detail throughout, and for the understanding portrayal of the beautiful yet futile love that lingers as fatal as a sunset through the closing chapters. As a conversion story or as a spiritual reading this is definitely one of the most interesting and most readable. As a novel it is slowed too much by inane chatter and marred by profuse psychoanalysis. It is our contention that the good novelist achieves the same result through the words and actions of his characters themselves sufficiently to preclude elaborate explanation on his own part. This book presents an irregular combination of the great with the ordinary—interesting rather than entertaining.

Intellectualists have long prided themselves on their broadmindedness whenever they picked up a Dime Novel Detective Story or Wild West Thriller. It was a standing joke among them that they all sooner or later turned to these for very light reading. Will James however in *The American Cowboy*³ has turned the worm and made this type of story something that can definitely be called intellectual. In a book filled with the same familiar characters and dialogue Mr. James has cleverly incorporated a rather accurate history of this pioneer American class. In another way, too, this story has more than the Dime Novel can boast of (with the exception of a really fine one which we read "way back when" called—Trail Herd Two Gun Smoke Market—believe us that weird title hid a real story). It re-enacts the unknown and unappreciated struggle of these hardy individuals for life, a home, and security. Mr. James lays aside the stage door bouquets that have come to enshrine the cowboy as master of every trade from removing scalps and bottle caps to detecting murderers and loose dandruff and paints him with his horse, alone in a big country, as the simply practical character that he is and was. This book anyone can enjoy and appreciate.

stalks and straw a plenty. There will be tables and chairs for the more dignified of the gentry, but the straw covered portion of the floor will reign the favorite "for sitting one out and sipping a coke."

In keeping with their promise to provide something new and different at a Loyola dance, the committee has engaged Hank Ludwig and his Hillbillies to entertain during the intermissions. Hank's aggregation, hailing from the wilds of Catonsville, consists of a three piece hill-billy band, a girl tap dancer, a "caller" who will call the square dances and Hank himself who will lead these country dances.

bility. There will also be competitions and tournaments within the club in ping pong, pool, handball and tennis. In Mr. Mueller's words, "We intend to do everything possible to make membership in the Block-L Club well worth while."

Club Has Serious Side

However, the group will not be without its practical purposes. The club will try to create as much enthusiasm and support as possible for the various Loyola athletic teams with particular emphasis on the minor sports. Awards will be given for individual excellence in particular sports and the club will aim at keeping Loyola's sports achievements in the public press. Moreover, the sale of Basketball Season Books will be placed in the hands of the Block-L Club.

Alumni May Join

The membership card, each member's ticket of admission to all the affairs of the club for one year, will cost fifty cents. Members of the Alumni who received either a major or minor letter while at Loyola College may attend all functions of the club although the actual running of the organization will be left in the hands of the undergraduate members. Freshmen will be eligible immediately after their particular sport season, if they are to receive a letter at the banquet at the end of the year.

Dr. Edward A. Doehler was active in an attempt to organize a Block-L Club in 1931. Mr. Michael H. Ventura, '42, also made an effort to organize an athletic club last year.

LAMP DEDICATED TO SERVICE MEN

Formal Dedication

The Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S.J., President of Loyola College, will light this lamp at the formal dedication on Armistice Day, November 11th. The entire student body will participate in the celebration at which the College Glee Club will sing the National Anthem and Alma Mater Loyola. The raising of the Loyola Service Flag will start the ceremony.

The lamp was purchased by the senior class not a moment too soon, for the Maritime Commission has now frozen all sales of naval equipment to civilians for the duration of the war. While being converted to oil, the lamp, formerly electric, attracted the notice of several Navy men who appraised it highly and expressed a strong liking for it. They assured its former owner that a finer lamp couldn't be found.

The WATCH DOG

"A gossip column," said the editor, "is the lowest form of literature. Would you like to write one for us?" Complimented no end, we agreed. So here we are.

GREENMOUNT AVE. REGULARS: John Burns tilting the pin-ball-machine at Sobol's . . . Dick Koch changing cozy twosomes into jolly threesomes at the same establishment . . . The Brink's boys on their Sunday night outing at B. Holly's—Jim Wolfe, a date and ten other wolves (not Jim's relatives) . . . A. A. prexy Franny Mueller taking in the 7:30 show at the Waverly . . . Tommy Lawrence swearing that Mr. Porter's pin-ball device is fixed . . . Bill Ehorst chalking his cue at that Towson billiard . . . and THE GREYHOUND staff dining at Ma's every third Tuesday.

CHARLES ST. TRAGEDY: The local debutantes provided the scenery as Loyola underclassmen danced with the new boarders at Notre Dame two Sundays ago . . . You know how it is, girls . . . Distance lends enchantment . . . Cheerier note of the same occasion was Carroll Feeley exchanging tips on billiard technique with Peggy (call me Reds) Steinbugler . . . The affair, by the way, was strictly for frosh and sophs . . . Evidently John Pugh, Jim McManus, Jimmy Maher and the afore-mentioned Feeley are passing through their second pup-hood . . . 'cause they were there!

THE THAT'S-A-NEW-TECHNIQUE DEPT.: Walt Siwinski romances with Audrey at the Academy of Natural Sciences while Hank Steingass and date contemplate the latest exhibit at the Art Museum . . . To them goes the gilded lotus-leaf of the month for originality.

COLLOQUIALLY SPEAKING: Golly, but Harold Molz is looking happy these days . . . and we hear that Joe (my game's basketball) Huesman is having a Hecht of a time getting a date for the Senior B.D.

REFRIGERATION NOTES: Our Eskimo scout relates that Cory Walker and Jo are throwing ice cubes at each other . . . and adds that John Galvin and Chummy are as distant as Corpus Christi, Texas is from Baltimore . . . What a pity.

MUSIC NOTES

Thos. B. Connor, '43

Music-lovers in Baltimore have reason for exultation and delight this season. From the list of symphony orchestras that have already been booked, the coming season should be one of the liveliest and most fruitful the city has seen in a long time.

Heading the list is the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, who have arranged a full season of twenty-five concerts. Two other symphonic organizations, who have appeared here many times before, have also scheduled more regular appearances. They are the Philadelphia Orchestra and the National Symphony Orchestra.

Orchestra Reorganized

Of chief interest to most of us no doubt, is the return of our own Baltimore Symphony Orchestra. After their wranglings with the union last year, many thought they had seen the last of the organization for some time. But a group of progressive business men and music lovers from this city came to the rescue. On September 10th the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra Association, Inc., was formally launched to bring about a complete reorganization of the orchestra.

Up to the present time, a season of twenty-five performances has been arranged, running through some twelve to fifteen weeks. There will be a Thursday evening series, as well as the former popular-priced Sunday concert series. The Saturday morning student programs will also be continued.

Brilliant Soloist Engaged

Reginald Stewart, director of the Peabody Conservatory, has been chosen as conductor for the entire season. He has taken great pains in reconstructing the group and has secured the best talent available. The orchestra will include about ninety members, many of whom have been retained from last year's group. In making up each program, Mr. Stewart has promised to bring to Baltimore many works never performed here before.

Several brilliant soloists have been engaged for the series which will begin on November 19th. Among these are Rise Stevens, who will appear at the opening concert, and Lily Pons, both from the Metropolitan Opera Company; Harold Bauer, pianist; and Joseph Zsigeti, violinist. Certainly this significant list is equal to the repertory of any other similar group in the country for this season. Such a venture may be new to many Baltimoreans. It is an undertaking both cultural and educational, and as educated men we at Loyola should support it. Our attending the concerts, besides giving us an evening of delightful musical enjoyment, will also insure the retaining of such an organization by the city in the years to come.

Others Scheduled

The National Symphony, under the direction of Hans Kindler, has arranged a series of seven concerts in addition to four special programs. This group will bring with them as guest soloists: Jascha Heifetz, violinist; Egon Petri, pianist; Jose Iturbi, pianist; and James Melton, tenor.

The Philadelphia Orchestra opened the season here when they performed at the Lyric last Wednesday night. They will appear here at different times later in the year with Fritz Kreisler, Arthur Rubinstein, and Rudolf Serkin.

Linthicum Voted Favorite Sports Writer

Ensign Carl Gottschalk, '41, formerly Editor-in-Chief of THE GREYHOUND, was chosen as Associate-Editor of the "Side Bay," recently published class book of the Naval Reservists who were commissioned as ensigns last Wednesday at Columbia University.

Yesterday Carl was married to Miss Lillian Kirchner, of Baltimore at the Church of the Shrine of the Little Flower. After a short leave, Ensign Gottschalk will instruct other Naval Reservists at Columbia.

IRC Conference At Princeton

Dr. Edward Doehler, moderator of the International Relations Club, has announced that the organization is now affiliated with the International Committee of the National Federation of Catholic College Students.

Princeton Conference

Plans are now being formulated to send delegates to the Middle Atlantic IRC Conference at Princeton, December 4th and 5th. The theme is "U. S. in a New World."

"At last year's Conference," said Dr. Doehler, "Loyola had the largest male delegation. This year we hope to hold the same record."

To Attend Catholic Congress

Delegates will attend the Catholic Collegiate Congress to be held in Cincinnati, December 27th to 30th. The general topic for this Congress is "Victory in War and in Peace."

In the near future the Loyola IRC will hold joint meetings with other colleges. Mt. St. Agnes is the first on the list.

TEN SENIORS WIN NATIONAL HONOR

Selected To Appear In "Who's Who In American Colleges", They Are Representative Of Loyola.

Representative Men

This list of names will be submitted to the editors of "Who's Who" as being representative men of Loyola, chosen impartially and conscientiously, with paramount consideration for scholarship, leadership and service at Loyola. At present "Who's Who" is the only means of national recognition for honor students devoid of initiation dues and fees. In the last eight years the number of colleges represented in this annual has increased from 250 to 650. This year it lists practically every recognized college and university in the nation.

Employers' Reference Volume

The purpose of this unique publication has been two fold. First, to serve as a means by which a deserving student, after displaying outstanding talents in college, may receive recognition. Secondly, to establish a reference volume of authoritative information on America's leading college students. At Loyola, mention in this directory is practically commensurate with membership in the Jesuit Honor Society—Alpha Sigma Nu—and marks the approximate climax of a student's career. Not only has this publication served as an incentive for Loyola men to get the best results from their college experience, but it has served as a compensation for what they have already achieved.

Dr. Edward A. Doehler, Chairman of the History Department of Loyola College, will give a series of lectures at the School For Adult Citizens here at Loyola College. "Geography Without Boundaries" will be the subject of Dr. Doehler's talks, and will treat the global unity of the world brought about by the recent developments in air transportation facilities. "Globes instead of maps" will be the keynote of this course.

EUROPE, FAR EAST CHOSEN AS FAVORITE FIELDS OF ACTION

Blondie Chosen Favorite Comic Of Students: Iowa Naval Cadets Fail Voters.

By Francis J. Mueller, '43

"After the war, do you think all colleges should remain on a three-year basis?" was the first question put to the voter in the third of the Student Poll series. Seventy-four students out of eighty responded, 62% of which were against any peace-time three-year plan. It was noted that the senior and junior classes having had experience with both the three and four-year plans, voted 74% in favor of the old four-year system. On the other hand, the sophomores and freshmen classes, having been on the accelerated program since starting college, were equally divided on the length of college tenure after the war.

Linthicum Wins

The question on the most popular Baltimore sports writer resulted in a clear-cut victory for Jesse Linthicum, Sports Editor of The Sun. Almost half the student body (43%) prefer Linthicum's daily "Sunlight on Sports" column to any other local column. Second place was taken by Paul Menton (20%), Sports Editor of The Evening Sun. The remaining 37% was spread among various other local sports scribes, including one big vote for Bonnie Gay.

Seahawks Fool Loyolans

King Football is indeed unpredictable. This saying has been used to the point of triteness but its wisdom cannot be doubted. This is brought home forcibly by the fact that, before last Saturday, 66% of the voters, including all of the seniors, chose the Iowa Naval Cadets as the team most likely to finish first in the country this year. Although Iowa might still seem to some of the voters to rate first place, it's a safe bet that there would be quite a few votes changed if their trouncing by Notre Dame could have been foreseen.

Jesse Linthicum

In the voting for second and third spots in the country, Michigan barely nosed out Ohio State. Some of these Michigan votes also might have been lacking, since the Wolverines lost to the Cadets by 26 to 14 on the previous Saturday.

Blondie Best

Reading the funnies is a great American custom, and naturally we each have our favorites. In an effort to find which is the Loyola College favorite, THE GREYHOUND Student Poll asked each voter to pick the cartoon he liked best. The results showed Chic Young's "Blondie" to be the winner and choice of 30% of the students. Not far behind was "Lil' Abner" (20%) and "Terry and the Pirates" (18%).

The question which asked the Loyola voters in which theater of war they would prefer to fight after joining the service, resulted in a tie between the Far East (42%) and Europe (42%). Only the freshman class showed a clear preference, choosing the European front. The remaining 8% were well split up, ranging from "in the air" to "in a New York Subway."

BELLARMINE DEBATERS PLAN FORUM-SOCIAL, NOVEMBER 6TH

On Wednesday afternoon, October 14th, the Bellarmine Debating Society held its inaugural meeting of the year. A large representation of underclassmen responded together with five veteran seniors. Reverend Father Matthew Sullivan, S.J., will act as the new moderator.

Consequent upon the introductory welcome by Mr. Edmund J. McGraw, president of the society, the debaters began planning for the coming season. Four inter-collegiate debates are tentatively scheduled prior to Christmas. Also arranged was a series of forum-socials on pertinent international questions. The first of these will be held on Friday evening, November 6th, at 8:30 P.M. The meetings, with the socials following, are to take place in the recreation room of the gym. All who are interested are cordially invited to attend.

Post-War Organization

The subject for discussion at the first forum-social is the collegiate debate topic of this year, namely "Post-War Organization." Brief talks will be given by four of the Bellarmine members, followed by an open floor discussion.

GATHERING STUDENT OPINION

Every three weeks student opinion on serious and semi-serious questions is sampled by THE GREYHOUND Student Poll. The name of each student is alphabetically arranged according to year and class. Starting with the first name, every fifth one was chosen to cast a ballot in this week's poll; opinions of the second and every succeeding fifth name on the list will be presented in the next poll. Thus, the opinion of each group so chosen can be taken as indicative of the opinion of the college as a whole.

Please cooperate by returning YOUR ballot as soon as possible. Any questions that you might wish subjected to student opinion may be submitted in writing at THE GREYHOUND office.

A. C. P.'s Correspondent Reports from Washington

The question of basketball off at least 10 per cent; the final games during war time has been aptly answered by Paul V. McNutt, chief of the War Manpower Commission. In reply to the query of some Indiana students, McNutt urged that basketball continue as before the war. However, he frowned on having busses carry fans to games. "We shall have to use your busses," he said, "for purposes connected with the war."
